Huge turnout for Quebec vote

MONTREAL (CP) — Lineups and some frayed tempers were the order of the day at many polling stations as Quebecers voted today to determine the outcome of the province's historic referendum.

People queued at many urban polling stations before the polls opened at 9 a.m., and there were reports of 45-minute waits in some cases as many of the province's 4.3 million voters heeded appeals to cast their ballots early and avoid an expected late-afternoon crush.

With most regions bathed in sunshine a record turnout for a Quebec vote, perhaps as much as 90 per cent of the electorate was predicted. Turnout at advance polls last Friday and Sunday was extremely heavy.

Both CBC and CTV will begin televised coverage of the referendum results at 4 p.m. this afternoon.

Full details of the voting, the reaction of Canadian citizens and political leaders and of the financial community at home and abroad, along with analysis of what the results mean will be carried in Wednesday's Times.

Two men and a woman were arrested by police for parading around a polling station in nearby St. Bruno dressed in military camouflage garb, police reported. The trio were not armed.

St. Bruno police said they had their faces painted black in combat style. They will be charged with impersonating military personnel.

Police were called to a polling station in the city's Outremont district when a shoving match ensued among voters angry with slow service from their poll clerk, and there were reports of minor problems at several other Montreal-area polling stations.

Campaign material was supposed to be removed on polling day, but police here decided to turn a blind eye to violations except where there were specific complaints.

The referendum on sovereignty-association was viewed as an historic turning point for Quebec and Canada, since it was the first time Quebecers had been asked to vote on their place within Confederation.

However they voted, Quebecers may have felt they couldn't win — if they believed the parting pleas Monday from leaders of the yes and no camps.

"It would be tragic to leave Canada," Quebec Liberal Leader Claude Ryan told a rally in his home riding of Argenteuil. "Let us accept instead the great challenge of co-existence."

Premier Rene Levesque warned, however, that a refusal to grant his Parti Quebecois government a mandate to negotiate sovereignty-association would be "very sad for Quebec and Canada."

OUI

NON NO ☐

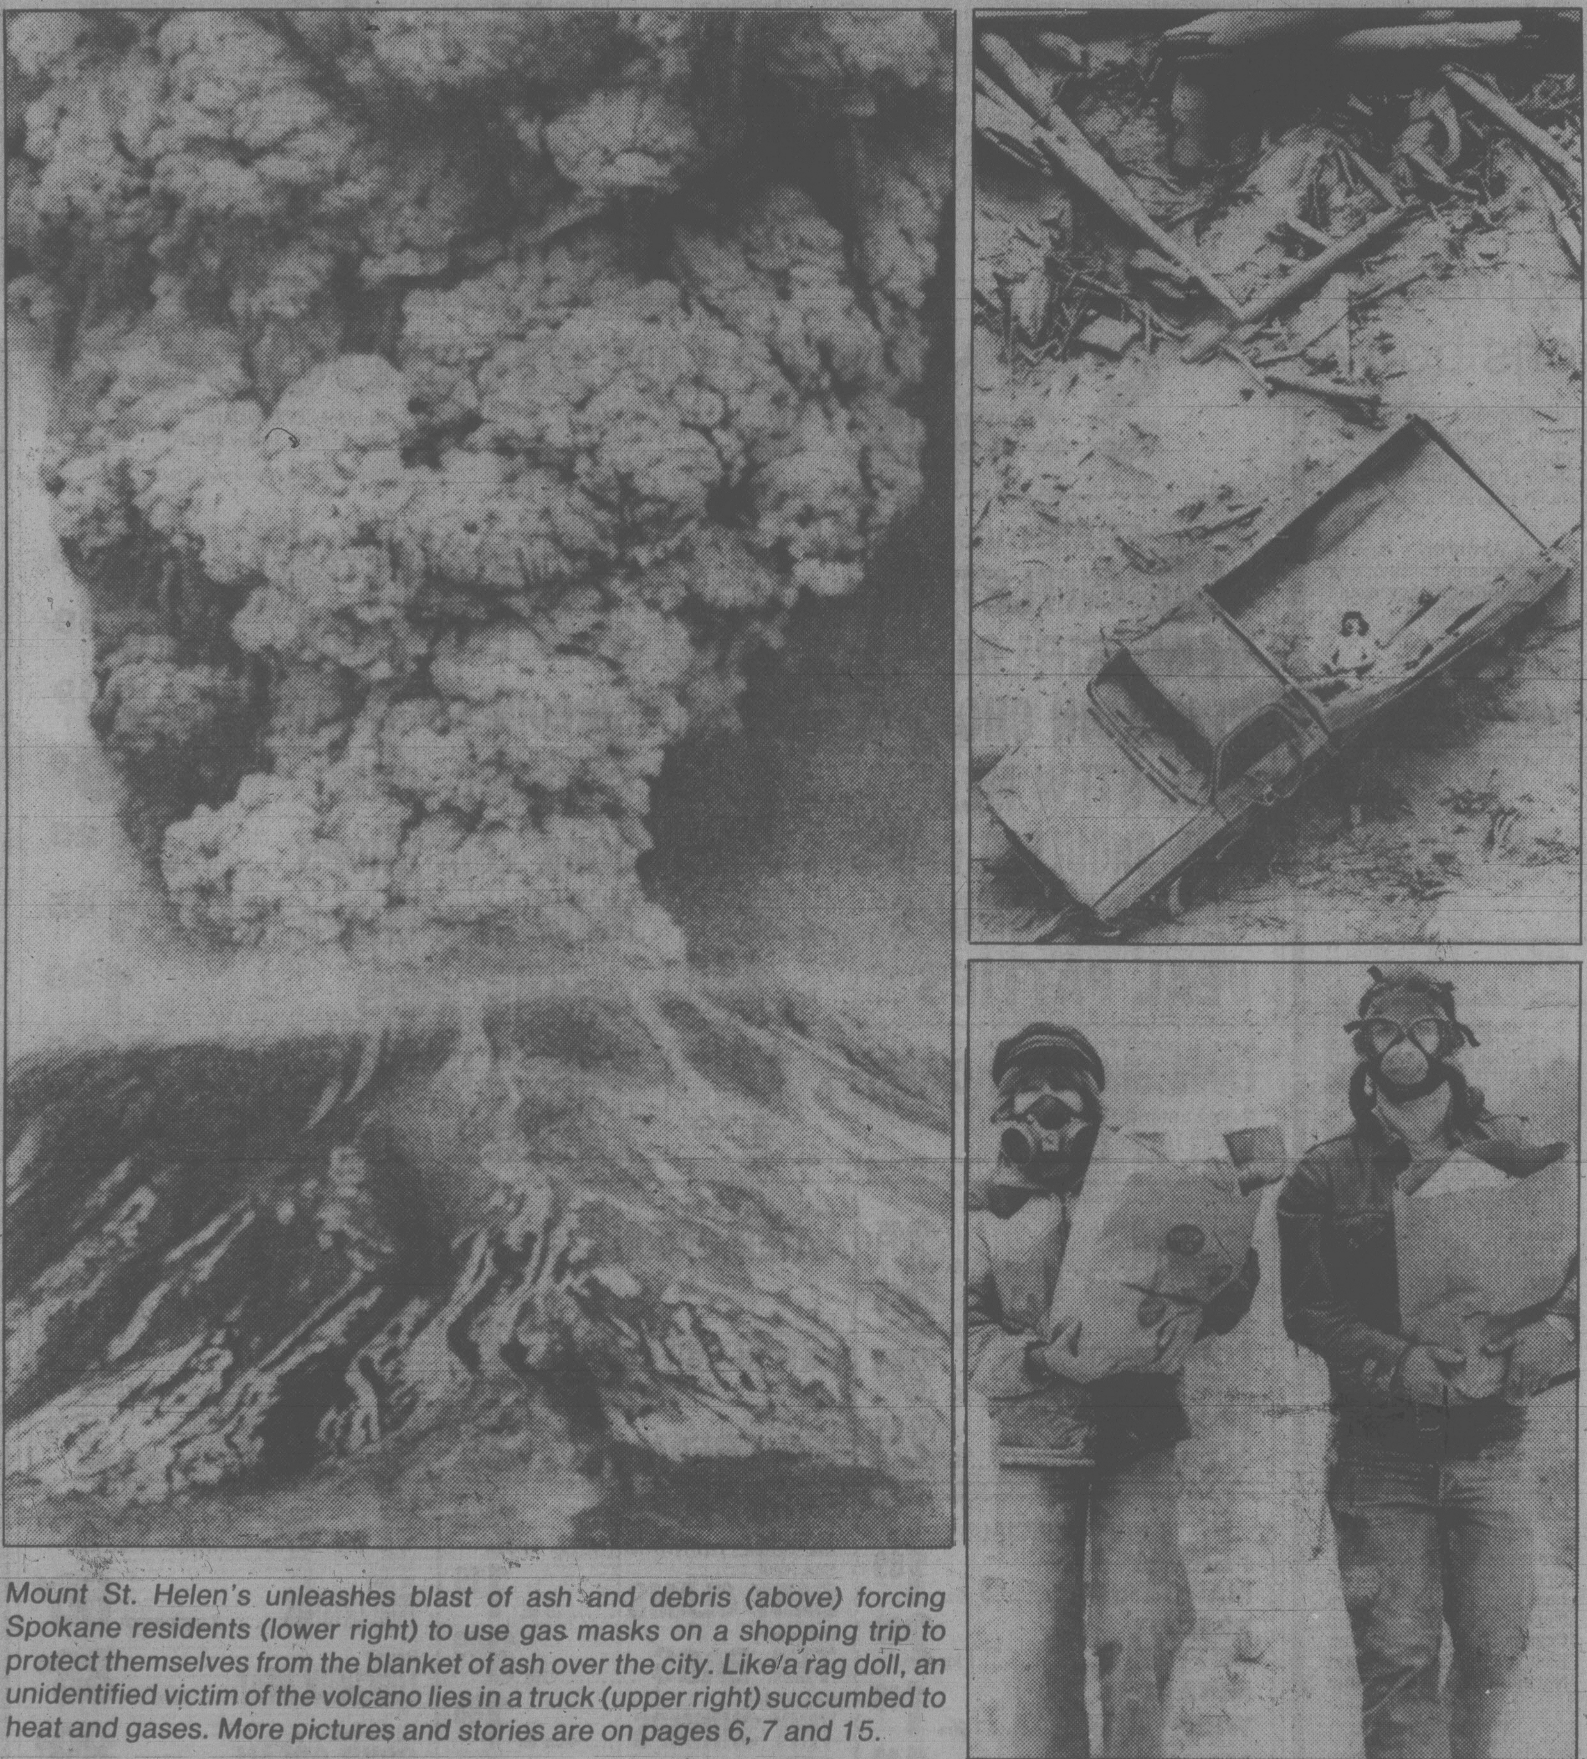
The Government of Quebec has made public its proposal to negotiate a new agreement with the rest of Canada, based on the equality of nations.

this agreement would enable Quebec to acquire the exclusive power to make its laws, levy its taxes and establish relations abroad — in other words, sovereignty — and at the same time, to maintain with Canada an economic association including a common currency.

no change in political status resulting from these negotiations will be effected without approval by the people through another referendum.

on these terms, do you give the Government of Quebec the mandate to negotiate the proposed agreement between Quebec and Canada?

Chaos in volcano's wake



Mount St. Helen's unleashes blast of ash and debris (above) forcing Spokane residents (lower right) to use gas masks on a shopping trip to protect themselves from the blanket of ash over the city. Like a rag doll, an unidentified victim of the volcano lies in a truck (upper right) succumbed to heat and gases. More pictures and stories are on pages 6, 7 and 15.

Spreading ash closes roads

Times News Services

Volcanic ash from erupting Mount St. Helens wrought havoc today with travellers throughout the Pacific Northwest. Most roads, airports and railroad tracks remained closed, and mud and debris blocked ship travel on the Columbia River.

Schools were closed, telephone lines were jammed with anxious callers, while hospitals filled with patients suffering respiratory problems. Amtrak and Burlington Northern halted all rail traffic in the region.

The ash seriously restricted visibility and forced the closure of all major highways from the east slopes of the Cascade mountains through eastern Washington and Idaho to the Montana border and north into parts of B.C. and the Canadian prairies. Driving conditions were hazardous in many areas and drivers were being encouraged to avoid all but emergency travel.

The number of persons listed as missing increased today to 98 from previous estimates of 29 despite the discovery of a number of survivors.

At Mount St. Helen's, small groups of survivors of the eruption, including at least two children, have been located huddled in clearings in the devastated landscape.

Military aircraft which made a detailed search of the Toutle River Valley area at the northern foot of the volcano reported finding a family group late Monday.

"It's impossible to try to say what these people have undergone, what intense heat and horror they have endured," a spokesman for the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration said. "It's a miracle they are alive."

The family, which was camping within 10 miles of the mountain when it erupted Sunday, had found refuge in an abandoned mine shaft.

Nine people in relatively safe areas were picked up by helicopters Monday but a rescue attempt to pick up two adults and two children spotted standing in a clearing of the scorched terrain had to be called off as darkness fell.

Five more people were seen waving just north of the river and more were spotted about 32 kilometres away.

Around the survivors, lakes are bubbling beneath torrents of hot mud.

The sister of Harry Truman, the stubborn 84-year-old man who refused to be evacuated from the Spirit Lake area, said Monday her brother is probably entombed in the lodge he refused to leave.

"It all happened too fast. There was no chance, no chance at all" that Truman scrambled from his lodge to safety in a secret mine shaft he talked about, said Geraldine Whiting, his sister.

The Cowlitz County coroner's office said at least seven badly burned bodies were spotted in mud, ash and downed timber in the Toutle River Valley northwest of the mountain. There were unconfirmed reports of three more deaths.

The eruption of the mountain Sunday ripped off the top 396 metres of the peak, letting loose numerous mudflows and "glowing avalanches" of hot ash and superheated gases that raced down the Toutle

16 dead in Miami race riots

By DUNCAN SPENCER
Washington Star

MIAMI — With an armed force of 7,000 police, National Guardsmen and state law enforcement officers on the scene, Miami authorities expressed cautious hope today that the worst may be over in the racial rioting and looting that has devastated part of the city and left 16 dead.

There was sporadic sniping and at least two fires in the riot-torn North Miami area overnight, but by dawn Joe Keith, the city's public safety spokesman, said, "It appears like most everybody went to bed after midnight — finally."

"It looks at this time like the tide has kind of turned. We have control of the streets," said city police major Michael Cosgrove. "It's the best its been in three nights."

But Dade County Public Safety Director Bobby Jones cautioned: "We're not out of the woods yet. I think any situation or incident could ignite the thing again."

Schools remained closed for the second straight day.

In addition to the 16 deaths blamed on the rioting, more than 300 persons have been injured and 787 arrested since the rioting broke out Saturday night. Two hundred fires were reported. As the city cooled, the extent of damage became clearer. Entire blocks were burned out in the Liberty City neighborhood, where the violence first erupted. Losses are expected to top $100 million.

Tourist officials already were worried about the "Miami image", particularly in England where thousands of sunseekers have been booked for summer excursions to Miami Beach.

"We have noticed some (domestic) cancellations of hotel and airline reservations already," said Arthur Ellick, research director for the Metro Dade tourism department.

Firemen, with armed troops standing guard, fought two major fires during the night — at a junior high school in southwest Dade County and at a paint and body shop in the so-called "war zone" where the rioting was centred. A house in the predominantly black section burned to the ground because firemen had to wait for police to scout the location for snipers before they could bring in their equipment. "The reported shooting delayed our response time considerably," a spokesman said.

Florida Gov. Robert Graham doubled the strength of the National Guard force patrolling the riot-scarred black community Monday and ordered an investigation of the prosecution of the case that sparked the violence.

There was one shooting death in Miami Monday. As dusk approached, a 33-year-old black man on a bicycle at 57th Street and 7th Avenue was shot to death by police. The shooting brought to 16 the total number of deaths reported in the rioting.

Poorhouse inferno kills 173

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — At least 173 people — many of them old, some invalids and some children — are believed to have died in a fire that swept through a government-run poorhouse here early today.

Prime Minister Michael Manley said "first reports from the security forces indicate strongly that this may have been the work of arsonists."

If arson is confirmed, the prime minister said, "it will represent a crime against humanity with no equal in our history."

Nurses eye pickets to pressure gov't

There is now a strong probability that 2,700 provincial government nurses will have to set up picket lines in order to pressure government negotiators into resuming talks, a union spokesman said today.

Jerry Miller of the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. said picketing activity was discussed today at a meeting with representatives of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

The nurses went on strike last Friday but no pickets have been set up allowing other government employees to continue working.

The nurses involved belong to the RNABC and the Registered Psychiatric Nurses Association of B.C. They are employed at various government health clinics and institutions around the province.

About 480 of the 2,700 nurses remain on the job to carry out essential services.

In the Victoria area, Glendale Lodge, Tillicum Lodge and Oak Bay Lodge, all operated by the Glendale Lodge Society, are affected by the dispute although there is no major disruption of health care.

Hubert Hayes, the society's executive director, said today that no more long-term or short-term care patients are being admitted until the strike ends.

Of the roughly 112 nurses employed at the three lodges, about 24 remain at work during a 24-hour period to give medications and provide essential services.

The nurses have rejected the industrial inquiry report of B.C. Supreme Court Judge Henry Hutcheon, which would have given them a wage increase of 25.6 per cent over two years.

The current starting rate is $1,361 a month.

They are seeking wage parity with registered nurses at general hospitals, who recently approved a 44-per-cent increase over 27 months.

The striking nurses said that under Hutcheon's formula they would be paid less monthly than nurses in general hospitals, although the hourly rate is comparable.

Miller said although the focus is on wages there are other issues involved and they will only be resolved if negotiations resume with the Government Employee Relations Bureau.

Tillicum shops in court

The Tillicum shopping centre court case started over again in Vancouver today with a new judge.

Former B.C. Supreme Court Justice Henry Hutcheon was hearing the case last week, but could not make a judgment on some preliminary issues after he was promoted to B.C. Court of Appeal Thursday.

Saanich municipal solicitor Chris Nation said today Saanich and co-defendent developer Cal Investments Ltd. will go back to square one unless the preliminary issues can be settled out of court with the Capital Region District.

The CRD was granted a B.C. Supreme Court injunction preventing construction of the Tillicum project until after a trial.

The company is limited to site preparation, which is going on now, but is attempting in court to have the judge rule invalid a section of the injunction preventing the municipality from issuing building permits.

CRD chairman James Campbell says Saanich's decision to remove a restrictive covenant limiting the size of the centre to 295,000 square feet is a breach of faith and contravenes the official regional plan.

Nation said a third judge will hear the case today.

The name of the new judge is not yet known, he said.

The case was moved to Vancouver last week because there was a problem getting court time in Victoria.

Meanwhile, a special public hearing to discuss the Tillicum development is scheduled for Saanich municipal hall Thursday night at 7:30.

Staff reports from planning, public works, police and fire departments will be examined, along with a traffic survey done by Cal Investments.

Leary entry probed by Commons body

OTTAWA (CP) — When Immigration Minister Lloyd Axworthy approved the entry of Timothy Leary into Canada in March, the document he signed gave no indication that Leary would appear at a Winnipeg hotel in which the minister had a financial interest, a Commons committee was told today.

J. D. Love, deputy minister in Axworthy's department, told committee members the document authorizing a special permit for Leary said only that Leary would perform a comedy routine in Toronto and Ottawa.

Leary, a controversial former LSD proponent, was also to be interviewed as "A Guru of the 60s" on a CTV television program.

Performances in Montreal and in Winnipeg — where he was to appear at the Royal Alberta Arms Hotel in which Axworthy was a partner — were not added to the schedule until later and were approved by junior officials, Love said.

Once the initial entry had been approved, junior officials would approve schedule changes and "would not feel any need to move up the line for further authorization," he said.

the weather

A frontal stream from the Pacific to southeastern B.C. is currently bringing rain to the southwest coast and cloud to the southern interior. Ash fallout from Mount St.Helens continues over southeastern B.C. today. Cool showery weather persists over the northern coasts. Cloudy and sunny areas with isolated showers will continue over the northern interior today and Wednesday.

7,000 lawmen gain control

Police said the man pulled a knife and lunged at an officer. They said that when a second officer arrived, both fired as the man continued to approach with a weapon. Black witnesses said the black man was shot in the back.

U.S. Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, who was dispatched by President Carter to Miami, promised that "everyone — all members of the community — will get a fair shake and fair play."

Civiletti earlier said that a federal grand jury would begin hearing evidence Wednesday concerning possible civil rights charges against the four white former policemen acquitted on state charges in the death of insurance executive Arthur McDuffie, a black man.

Carter spoke to Graham by phone at about 7 a.m. Monday to convey his "strong personal support" for local authorities in their efforts to cool emotions.

"I hope everyone will obey the law and seek solution to the problems through the legal forces and good will of our people," Carter said.

Graham, who initiated a "search for justice," ordered his chief counsel, Lamar Matthews, to work with a seven-member citizens' advisory panel to investigate the handling of the McDuffie case. He said Dade County State's Attorney Janet Reno was among those seeking the inquiry.

Reno is one of the principal political targets of black Miami's anger. She said she would not resign in spite of demands from the black community, including the NAACP, which placed her removal at the top of a list of several demands to defuse the situation.

Reno is blamed for moving the McDuffie trial to Tampa — a charge she denies hotly. "I am as bitterly disappointed as I can tell you," she said of the acquittal of the four white ex-policemen in the McDuffie case.

Monday's shooting incident touched off fears that the rioting, which broke out after the all-white jury in Tampa aquitted the former Miami policemen, would erupt for the third time in three days.

But Liberty City appeared to remain relatively calm.

The rage, however, had not disappeared. Andrew Young, the former U.S. ambassador to the U.N., was booed, jeered, heckled and almost chased out of two public meetings where he tried to rally calming forces by reciting a familiar formula — that Miami's blacks need jobs, money and government attention.

The National Guardsmen began to set up street corner posts throughout the riot neighborhood, where a dusk-to-dawn curfew continued because of high tensions and continued vocal resentment against police and local government.

Many of Dade County's 230,000 black residents stayed away from work, either out of fear of violence or to join a loosely organized "black solidarity day." Businesses closed early.

A continuing source of new anger was cars — dozens of them — which bore spray-painted words "looter" or "thief," allegedly painted by police for identification. Blacks also charged that police stabbed tires widely through the riot area to immobilize those they thought might be involved in the rioting.

Bridge repair to cause more delays

The city traffic department said Friday there will be further work on the Johnson Street bridge in the next two weeks, causing some delays to drivers.

Starting Tuesday flagmen will be at the east and west approaches of the bridge from 9 a.m. to midnight for several days to allow overhaul work on the barriers which come down to halt traffic when the bridge is raised.

The work will resume on May 26.

It's bodies into cars, into polls

MONTREAL — A light plane droaned low over the Westmount patios on the weekend, trailing a large banner that read: "Quebec We Love You. . Saskatoon."

On at least one patio (and, one suspects, on most) the eyes lifted from the hemlock-like scotch with only mild interest.

The feeling seemed to be - you're a little late fella.

Montreal is in a sombre mood, refecting on itself. The introspection is heightened by the fact that the spring which finally arrived was dashed into a wet, dour Sunday, and — irony of irony - a Monday holiday that could not be more irrelevant, being Queen Victoria's birthday, to a Quebec contemplating it's cultural navel.

The exhausting politcal debate (Quebec has endured in 12 months two federal election campaigns, a mini-election by-election, and now this riveting referndum) has left the participants drained, not to mention the voters.

Claude Ryan, flu-induced sweat oozing from his face, had to cancel his Sunday appearances as that ikon-face grew sharper with fatigue.

"How do I carry on?" says Solange Chaput-Rolland, the emotional No headliner who had just resignedly agreed to seven speeches the next day. "Scotch and scotch tape."

Rene Levesque, in his final rally, appears wiped and increasingly bitter as the early momentum of the campaign has slipped away from him.

His petulance in the jibe that Pierre Elliot Trudeau was not truly a French-Canadian merely reveals his lack of concentration. His two press secretaries, both Quebecois, are named Gratia O'Leary and Robert Mackay.

His final rallies — just 400 bottoms in 1,000 chairs in a bingo palace Saturday— indicated that public stamina in this debate was dissipating as rapidly at the end as the leaders' health.

At Verdun, with the usual rock band warm-up to draw in the young people, young men in pony tails, remnants of the 1960s, sucked beer cans outside the auditorium.

Levesque, the elaborate drum set and amplifiers his backdrop, spoke for 50 unending minutes, the steady hum of conversation rising from the stands as he bore on, failing to find an ending.

The lone media star, trailed by Danish newspapers, Swiss TV, all 3 U.S. networks and the man from the St. Petersburg Times of Florida (which half of Anglophone Montreal seem to be eyeing), contrasts so severely with the Ryan entourage of 12 speakers per night; the coalition against The Pistols.

The Parti Quebecois pacifier, as things grow tight and the town broods, is most apparent.

Early on, the word "separation" became a no-no in favor of the fuzzy sovereignty-association."

Now that, too, has become a 22-letter dirty word. Mention of it has disappeared from all PQ campaigning and Levesque's final pitch — a full-page ad with a personal letter from him in both English and French — does not mention the suddenly-censored phrase. In Le Devoir yesterday the full-page ad from the Yes Committee, showing happy children playing, emphasized that on Wednesday morning, "the sun will come up as usual over Quebec, the children will continue to play, there will continue to be the same taxes and pension cheques."

It may suit some, but the reflective ones on the patios up the slope of Mount Royal who know this beautiful, brooding city will never be the same whatever the result tonight.

It's why a 90-year-old grandfather was escorted by nurses to the advance poll on Saturday, as well as every other available body that could be dredged out by a fantastically meticulous netwowrk of drivers and agents mounted by the Yes forces.

Unlike an election, where no-hope seats are written off and a losing total in a lost riding doesn't really matter, in this one-body, one-vote referendum only the final province-wide percentage will count.

It has occasioned the greatest manhunt in the history of Canadian politics and the Shanghai-ing of enumerated voters who still have not cast their ballots by patio-time tonight will be something along the lines of the Barberry Coast's best days.

At this stage the affeetion of Sakskatoon is rather irrelevant. Its bodies into cars into polling booths that is the only imperative.

At a time of high emotion, we're back to shoe leather.

3 fires burn wild

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — One new fire burst out Monday in this central B.C. forest district, bringing the total burning to 125 fires, said a forest service spokesman.

Three are out of control, the spokesman said, adding the biggest is a 40,000-acre fire about 65 kilometres northeast of Fort Nelson, located 550 kilometres northeast of here.

Another fire has burned 25,000 near the Alberta border and remains out of control.

More than 400 men and six air tankers are at work in the forest fire district, he said. While most of the region has a low to moderate forest-fire hazard rating, the hazard remains extreme in the Peace River area.

There were showers in the district Monday.

NDP must fight for reform: Barrett

PENTICTON (CP) — The NDP must concern itself not only with winning the next provincial election but with working hard to determine a new generation of goals for B.C., party leader Dave Barrett said Monday.

Barrett, whose prepared-text speech to 650 delegates was remarkably restrained, warned the party not to rest on past accomplishments and successes.

"We do not seek only for power to form the government," he said on the last day of the three-day convention.

"We strive for reform. Our party is not a mere election machine but an engine of ideas for changes and progress that benefit each individual British Columbian."

Barrett said people are concerned about the present direction the world's consumer society is taking and the tremendous waste of natural and human resources.

He said the NDP must be the cutting edge towards a conserver society which would take into account all the costs in human and natural resources. This must happen before deciding on a development strategy, he said.

"It rejects the unrestricted greed and false expectations that can and will lead mankind to disaster."

Barrett was re-elected by acclamation to his eleventh one-year term as party leader.

Barrett said British Columbians are becoming impatient with the irrelevance of much of the traditional political debate and are ready to discuss issues more vital to their individual lives.

Barrett also made the predictable attack on the Social Credit government, chastizing the Socreds for their panic politics and big ticket solutions to problems.

Instead of providing low-cost housing and other community amenities on Vancouver's False Creek, the Socreds are building an ornate stadium for professional sports promoters to play with, he said.

"Instead of light-rapid transit, the government is building the community-disrupting Annacis Island crossing."

Barrett got his best response when he left his prepared text to attack Science Minister Pat McGeer's proposal for a fixed link to Vancouver Island.

"It's a case of wild imagination gone mad. Our minister of science has come in from outer space to build the biggest exhaust pipe in the history of B.C."

Several major resolutions were passed by the delegates, including new regulations covering the party's involvement in municipal politics and some requesting the party make a serious attempt to run female candidates in at least 50 per cent of ridings where it feels it has a good chance of winning.

Referring to today's Quebec referendum, Barrett said Canadians must respect the decision the people of Quebec make.

"If we respond in a mature basis to that divided result whether there is a small percentage for the oui or non, our response will be reviewed as a co-operative, loving and sharing concern for other peoples in this country and it is our task to keep this country together," he said.

The six-member provincial executive committee headed by president Gerry Stoney, who enters his third one-year term, was re-elected by acclamation.

Also returned were vice-presidents Andy Banister, Joy Lanagan, Dave Stupich, and Jim McKenzie and treasurer Roger Howard.

Who holds the yard-stick

If Forests Minister Tom Waterland adopts the recommendation of a report on a dispute between the province's log scalers, he might be stretching the honor system a little too far.

The B.C. forest service employs about 440 scalers who are represented by the B.C. Government Employees Union. They are responsible for measuring the amount of timber cut in most of B.C.

Scaling allows the provincial government to determine how much to charge forest companies for cutting crown timber. Royalties on timber amounted to about $500 million last year, one of the largest contributors to provincial coffers.

Although government scalers have been working in the forests for more than 100 years, their presence and union affiliation in recent years have been an increasing source of concern for the International Woodworkers of America, a union that represents scalers employed by the forest companies.

Waterland commissioned a report on the dispute after a confrontation between the two unions closed two MacMillan Bloedel operations temporarily last June. Since timber must be scaled before it is delivered to sawmills, he hopes to avoid similar confrontations in the future.

The report recommends that scaling should be done by private or company scalers. Understandably, the BCGEU objects.

Aside from the implications the report has for BCGEU members, Waterland faces a more perplexing problem. Since scaling is used as a basis for taxation, should he allow company employees to do the work?

Without casting aspersions on the integrity of any forest company or its employees, such a situation would compare to allowing homeowners to assess their homes for the purposes of property taxation.

The minister might believe the government stands to lose more revenue through strike related down-time in the industry than any fiddling with scaling reports. It would seem, however, that if he adopts the recommendation, he should also establish some checking system to ensure the public's interest is maintained.

Then what?

Any Victorian who was consoled by reports earlier this year that southern Vancouver Island was the place to be in the event of a nuclear war, should read no further. It will be depressing.

People in the know about likely nuclear targets in the United States, global wind currents and the amount of radioactive fallout suggest that B.C. would escape much of the nuclear devastation. The chances of surviving the initial attack are excellent.

While not disputing those claims, other scientists and researchers are raising questions about the effect on the global environment and the prospects for the war survivors to survive.

A few years back the U.S. National Academy of Sciences examined the long-term environmental impact of a war in which half the nuclear arsenal was detonated. It found that the ozone layer which filters ultraviolet light would be reduced by 30 to 70 per cent in the Northern Hemisphere. Ultraviolet levels would double — and no one would escape.

The loss of protection from ultraviolet rays would cause severe effects on climate and crop production, mutations of disease-causing and other micro-organisms and a marked increase in skin cancer and sunburn. The academy did report, however, that over a period of 10 years or more, the ozone layer would recover. Small comfort.

Academy president Philip Handler says that the aftermath of a nuclear war would be so devastating that there would be no hiding place for anyone. He noted that a war might trigger a major unfavorable shift in climate; that both the direct and indirect effect might destroy North America's agricultural lands leading to widespread starvation in non-combatant nations and that survivors might not have the technology to to monitor fallout, provide food, water and medical supplies, and contain epidemics.

It seems that Vancouver Island and probably most of B.C. would escape the initial holocaust of a nuclear war, but geography would only delay the inevitable. There is no substitute for nuclear disarmament and peace.

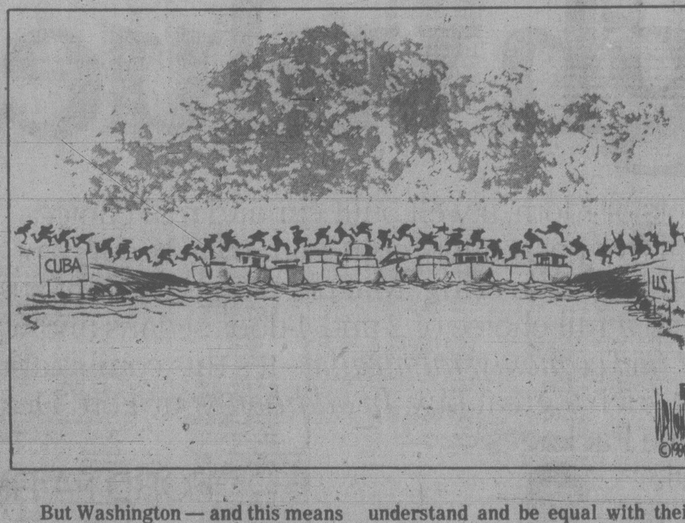
Immigration laws flaunted



WASHINGTON — The United States government has clearly lost control of its immigration policy. The latest invasion of Cuban refugees is only the most dramatic evidence that this country, even at a time of high inflation and unemployment, is not able to protect its borders or enforce its laws against the entrance of illegal aliens.

This is the main point that has been evaded by the federal, state, and local authorities for over a generation. The highest officials of the State and Justice Departments in Washington agree that there are now more illegal aliens in the United States than the total number of unemployed citizens and that the problem of control of illegal aliens is getting worse rather than better.

So long as the Mexicans and other Latin Americans were crossing the U. S. border singly, quietly and illegally, even in the end by tens and hundreds of thousands, especially since they made such a contribution to the economy of the United States, nobody paid all that much attention.

Bootlegging

But the latest invasion out of Cuba is something different. Aside from the honest and troubled Cubans in Florida who wanted to get their families out of Havana, it became a lucrative business for some capitalist entrepreneurs, bootlegging people instead of booze, into the United States.

It would probably be a mistake to underestimate this small-boat traffic out of the Caribbean. Cuba is not the only island in that area where tens of thousands of people would pay anything they have or could steal to get to the United States. The human tragedy is obvious. The question is whether the United States has a policy to deal with an immigration problem that is now reaching crisis proportions.

Even Fidel Castro, in his own crazy way, has a policy. He is exporting his failures. He is getting a subsidy of over a million dollars a day from the Soviet Union, but even so his economy is a spectacular disaster. His sugar and tobacco crops, the main sources of his income, have failed, creating unemployment and opposition, so his policy is clearly to get rid of his unemployed opponents, even his criminals and mental patients and send them to the United States.

But Washington — and this means the Congress as well as the president — has no policy to deal with this new wave of immigration from the South. In the last half of the 19th century and the first half of the 20th, the United States needed the immigrants from Europe to fill up the vast rural continent, and it brought them in under laws that were not always fair or wise, but it did insist on immigration within the law.

That is not happening now. The laws of the United States are being evaded for economic reasons, including the fact that nobody else, even the immigrants of a previous generation, will harvest the vegetables or pick the fruit, or wait on the tables or dump the garbage. So we are accepting the new immigrants to do the jobs our people reject, even if they're illegal.

There is another, and maybe a more serious problem. For this immigration from the south has already reached the point that the Spanish-speaking peoples will soon be the most numerous minority in the United States — more numerous than the blacks — and are now beginning to demand, not only equal rights, which is fair enough, but separate rights for the education of their children in the Spanish language.

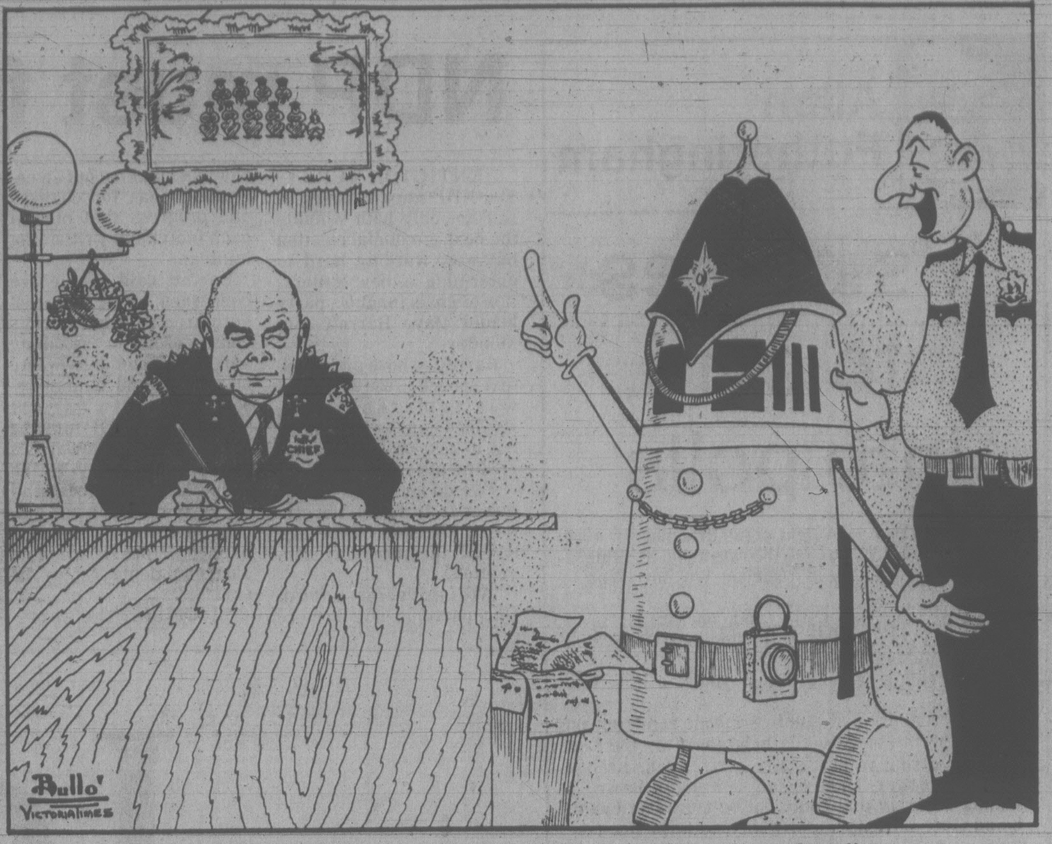
President Carter has been supporting this idea. His budget has been calling for more and more funds for the education of Spanish refugees in the Spanish language. The Hispanics, forgetting the tragedy of the blacks in this country, are now arguing for their own culture — separate but equal — education for their children in Spanish so that they will finally understand and be equal with their English-speaking contemporaries. Obviously they have a point. These are very serious questions both about immigration policy and about what policy Washington should have to this new Hispanic sector of our society.

For the moment, Washington is concentrating on its relations with the allies in Europe, its new Secretary of State Ed Muskie, and how he will get along with the Soviet foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, in Vienna, about Afghanistan, Iran, and the Olympics.

Abandoned issues

But back here in the Western Hemisphere, there are many abandoned problems. What happens in the immigration out of Central and South America into the United States, what happens in the vote next week about whether the province of Quebec will try to move toward independence from the rest of Canada — these in the end could be much more important to the future of this hemisphere than what happens in Iran or Afghanistan, or who goes to the Olympic Games in Moscow.

In a way, this is why the Carter administration is in such trouble in Washington these days even with its best friends. It has not been dealing very well with the problems near home. It has not even been defending our own borders or our own laws about immigration, and this latest invasion of the Cubans in their weekend boats into Florida has not only hurt, but even mocked the authority of Carter and the White House.



"And every two minutes its says, 'now here, now here, move along."

A story of modern Quebec

MONTREAL — They used to play tennis together at the Winter Club in Quebec City, and they made a formidable combination.

Eric Kierans was stronger from the baseline, with powerful, carefully-placed shots. Rene Levesque was better at the net, a darting man of quick reflexes and instant reactions.

They were friends, partners and allies.

Now they stand on either side of a gulf of mistrust.

Premier Levesque says that when McGill economist Kierans resigned recently from the board of Quebec's investment fund, he did so as a grandstand gesture, to help the No forces in today's referendum. Kierans replies that the Quebec government was interfering with the fund for political reasons, and he had no choice but to resign.

Falling-out

The story of these two men — both bilingual, bright, assertive and involved — is the story of modern Quebec. Their falling-out says as much about the issues at stake in Canada as a stack of white papers, speeches and press releases.

They first met in Montreal in 1962. Kierans was president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, a self-made millionaire with a strong background in economics and a reputation for unorthodoxy. Levesque was minister of natural resources in the Liberal government of Jean Lesage.

Levesque made a speech decrying the dominance of the English in Quebec's financial world, and when that world turned to Kierans for a defence, he instead agreed with Levesque.

"What he said was perfectly true. There were more French than English members on the stock exchanges, but it was the English who had the power."

In 1963, Kierans joined Levesque around the Lesage cabinet table, as minister of revenue, and the two found themselves on the same side of most issues.

The millionaire Irish-Canadian from the Montreal financial community and the one-time journalist from New Carlisle took on all comers, and usually won.

They formed a team that lasted until 1967, when it shattered on the issue of independence.

In early 1967, a study paper proposing the independence option was put before a committee of the Quebec Liberal Federation, for consideration by the party's convention in October. Levesque instantly embraced the study, and Kierans just as instantly rejected it.

As president of the Liberal Federation, Kierans made it clear that he would see the study demolished at the convention. For weeks the two men ranged up and down the province debating — with increasing heat — the merits and drawbacks of separation.

But at the convention, it was no contest. Kierans had lined up his delegates well in advance, and Levesque went down to overwhelming defeat. The next day, he resigned from the Liberal party and set out on the long road that led him to the top of the Parti Quebecois and premiership of the province.

However, he remained a friend of the man who had — he said — driven him out of the party. Their conflict was one of principles, not personalities.

In 1968, Kierans went to Ottawa as minister of communications in the first Trudeau administration, but he was never comfortable in the central government setting, and returned to Montreal to teach economics at McGill University in 1971.

By that time, Levesque was the leader of the Parti Quebecois, and a man under constant scrutiny. One of his friends recalls, "He could never be himself; he was always on display, up on a pedestal. So, every now and then, he would call up Eric, and they would spend some time together, just as friends."

They used to talk about baseball, football, hockey — anything but politics.

They appeared on platforms together, too. Levesque came to McGill to debate with Kierans. In turn, he asked the economist to join him in an appearance in Kierans' old riding of Duvernay.

Kierans explains, "He was trying to get an admission from an English economist that an independent Quebec was viable. I said of course it was. But the question was at what percentage of the present level would Quebec remain if it went its own way?"

That was, and remains, a crucial point. Levesque claims that the rest of Canada must come to terms with an independent Quebec. Kierans argues that it may do no such thing, and that if Quebec, whose manufacturing base is supported by external Canadian tariffs, finds itself on the other side of a tariff wall with Canada, the results could be economically disastrous.

"All I ever asked of Rene was that he talk openly about the real cost of separation without association."

As their political positions hardened, the two men found it more difficult to exchange social chit-chat; their last personal meeting was in 1978, but they continued to exchange phone calls and letters, threshing out their differences with good-natured banter.

Then came the blowup over the caisse de depot earlier this month. Kierans, as a director of the investment body, said the province was pressuring the caisse to invest more than was prudent in loans to the province and Quebec Hydro, and to give the borrowers a preferential rate on such loans.

Ultimate issue

Levesque claimed in turn that Kierans was only resigning "at this time" because, as a member of the No committee, he hoped to embarrass the government. He denied that there had been any political interference in the fund.

Whatever the merits of the two sides — and economically, Kierans had the more telling argument — the quarrel between the two old friends quickly became personal and bitter.

Now they are reduced to swapping public insults.

At heart, however, their wrangling is a reflection of their long-standing and fundamental disagreement.

Levesque sees the sovereignty of Quebec as the ultimate issue, the only solution to provincial problems. Everything else, including nit-picking about investment funds, is subordinate.

Kierans sees fiscal responsibility, intelligent planning and freedom from political gamesmanship as paramount. He sympathizes with the aspirations of francophones, and shares many of the frustrations of Quebecers facing a dominant Ottawa, but he regards independence as a dead-end.

Considering the issues involved, it is not surprising that the two men now find themselves glowering at each across Canada's familiar two solitudes.

NEED Crisis Line is please to be celebrating its 10th anniversary this week.

The board of directors wishes to thank publicly the many dedicated volunteers who keep NEED operating 24 hours a day. Over its 10 years of service to Victoria NEED has trained well over 600 community-minded and caring people in communication skills that will be with them for a long time to come.

To the funding agencies of United Way, the Intermunicipal Council of Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Saanich and Victoria, and the Ministry of Human Resources we are very much in appreciation of your financial support and confidence.

Happy 10th birthday, NEED. — The Board of Directors, NEED Crisis Line.

Remorse to follow

Most of us, older folk in particular, have much with which to reproach ourselves, be it of mild or more serious nature. Such regrets could run the gamut between overlooking our parents' birthdays and other anniversaries, to taking the family car without permission, perhaps with an accident ensuing. From lying, or failing to tell the while truth to a downright crime. From skipping school the odd time to being a complete dropout. And so on. The amount of grief we feel now as seniors for our early misdemeanors is dictated by our conscience, and the degree of remorse of which our character is capable.

But the scene has made so dramatic a change where today's young teenagers are concerned that it leaves us older adults really frightened for the future.

At present it is the causeway in Victoria that is under scrutiny, that lookout from the august and charming Empress hotel which should, but does not, tone in with the grand old lady herself. Beggars flaunt their rags in a rude demand for money as though the world owes them a living. Twanging guitars vie with strident voices meant to be music. Acts of indecency are perpetrated openly, according to the news media. All of this would ring a sour and distasteful note to the tourists as it does to those who live here. In short, in place of taking pride in our lovely city, these youngsters seem bent on desecrating it. What will follow?

Some day these kids will smarten up, it is hoped. As mature adults, if their nature allows it, they cannot help but feel heartsick with remorse and disgust every time they walk or drive along the fine old Inner Harbor, when memory takes them back to this regrettable spring of 1980. History does indeed repeat itself, it seems, but tells no better tales during the years of learning. — Gladys Coulthard, 308-105 Gorge Road East.

Weary of past

The kind of separation we really need in Canada was described by Toynbee in his book, Civilisation on Trial, written fifty years ago. It is separation from what he called "the traditional, antedeluvian, historical European outlook".

This point of view recently found some support from Theodore Zeldin of Oxford, a historian of modern France, when he was giving a talk on African affairs on the BBC. "Neither France, nor anyone else, has a workable solution how relatively small groups of people, organized in weak states, can survive against foreign pressures and political ambitions, quite apart from their own internal quarrels. So far, the answer has been in terms of the nation state. This was the medicine Europe prescribed for itself and it brought appalling bloodshed, and there is a realisation now that it is a medicine that will not work."

"The world is weary of the Past
O' might it die and rest at last". — S.G. Woodeson, 6456 Rey Road.

Noo Yawk Tawk

People have been standing on line to ask, "How do I tawk like a Noo Yawkuh?" These seekers of a sense of belonging think that pronunciation is the key, and expect to be accepted as soon as they learn that "vanilla" is "vanella," or that "super" is "soupa," or that no letter exists between "Q" and "S."

That's a soupaficial approach. In recent years, "R" has been making a comeback. But to pass for a longtime resident, you have to live in the city syntax. You must stand "on" line — not, as other Americans say, "in" line. (You get "on" line if you join it at the end, but you are permitted to say, "Get in line," if you are one of a bunch of kids lining up, or "lining gup.")

When others "go to work," New Yorkers "go to business." When others "play the piano," New Yorkers "play piano" — same 88 keys, but no "the." The rube may ask for change "for" a dollar, but the New Yorker will give him change "of" a dollar. An out-of-towner may think he has bumped into a New Yorker, but the native knows he has been "bunked into." (The phonetic substitution of "K" for "P" is common: "To bunk into" is rooted neither in buncombe nor in bunker psychology.)

Irregularities

The New York verb "to have" is irregular. Outsiders with a ball and glove like to "play catch," while New Yorkers invite each other to "have a catch." However, when other hostesses "have a dinner," the New Yorker will "hold a dinner." The west-of-the-Hudson crowd will "have a haircut" but the hirsute Manhattanite "takes" a haircut (a formation that led New York emigres who became Hollywood magnates to "take a meeting").

The preposition "to" is disposable: "We went down the shore" says a New Yorker, where another native will invite him to "come over my house." Within contractions, the letter 'D' is deemed unnecessary: "He dint come over my house when we went down the shore." Although non-natives turn "I'm going to" into the slurred "Ommina," the New Yorker prefers a Bert Lahrian "ongana."

Two nouns with a New York flavor stem from New Amsterdam: A "sliding pond" is a metal slide in a playground, and has nothing to do with a body of water. The "pond" may be from "slide upon," but is more likely from the Dutch "baan," or "track." A "stoop," from the Dutch word for "step," is a description of the porch and front steps on which Brooklynites sit and schmooze, or against which they play stoopball. No other word for front steps is the exact same.

Schmoozing

"Exactly the same" is the way most Americans would describe absolute identicality; "the exact same" is New Yorkese. "To nudge" is a familiar American jab-in-the-ribs verb, but "noodge," or pest, is a New York verb and noun: non-New Yorkers also say "nag."

In New Yorkese, politeness is important: "Thank you" becomes "I really appreciate"; "Yes" is "No objection"; "You're welcome" is often curiously expressed in the locution "No problem."

New Yorkers say "the Bronx"; visitors, and letter writers, often say only "Bronx" (the apocryphal question by a carpetbagging politician: "Where are the Bronx?").

The shibboleth that separates natives from visitors beyond all doubt is the name of the place: to an out-of-towner, New York City is New York City. No New Yorker ever says that: The Big Apple is either New York, or "the city." Beware anyone who says "I come from New York City" — he does not come from New York.

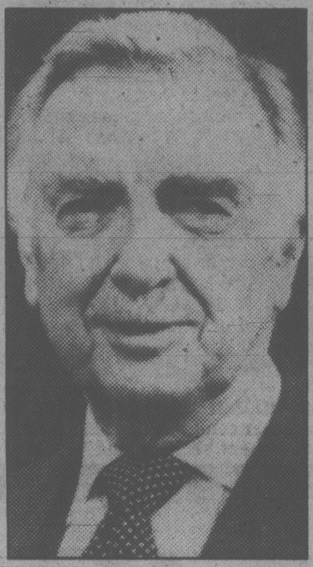
My favorite New Yorkism was supplied by Burton Epstein of the city. "On a crowded IRT ride uptown after work, the disembodied voice of the subway conductor admonished passengers: 'Please lean off the doors.' Everybody knew what he meant, and in a moment, the train departed . . . It calls to mind one of the early American flags and the admonishment there — 'Don't tread on me.' Somehow, 'tread off me' doesn't quite fill the bill . . . ."

It's a soupa dialect. If you don't like it, don't be a noodge. Lean Off. No problem.

When I climbed aboard the press bus which was following the motorcade of a presidential candidate, a fellow reporter called out, "Here comes another Big Foot!" That meant I had joined the ranks of "media biggies."

Among the boys on the bus, "Big Foot" is a jocular term for a columnist, editor or journalism celebrity who deigns to mingle with the working stiffs, often to the consternation of a colleague regularly covering the candidate. T.R. Reid, of The Washington Post, who sometimes works in the shadow of superstars David Broder and Haynes Johnson, first fixed the appellation in print on The New York Times's chief Washington correspondent, Hedrick Smith, who for some months wore a large cast on a broken ankle.

When Walter Cronkite came aboard, however, "Big Foot" was no longer big enough. "The traveling reporters," wrote Reid, "who have divided political journalists into two categories — junior reporters, known as 'little feet,' and senior political analysts, or 'big feet' — have given Cronkite a designation all his own: 'Ultra Foot.' "



Ultra Foot?

Here's the telltale sign of a Big Foot: The second paragraph of his story, or newscast, always begins with the word "privately." Watch or listen for it. What "privately" really means is: "That first 'graph is what the bigshot sources are telling the 'Little Feet,' and want printed or filmed on the record. Now here's what they're whispering to me . . . ."

One certified Big Foot is Jack Germond of The Washington Star. In a commentary on a primary election, he wrote a paragraph that seemed to have an out-of-place sentence at the end:

"It is no secret that many of the moderate Republican leaders who have remained neutral would have been quick to line up with Gerald Ford if he had run, or with Senate minority leader Howard H. Baker if he had survived those early primaries." The paragraph concluded: "If my aunt had wheels, she would be a teacart." (In H.L. Mencken's A New Dictionary of Quotations, this is rendered as "If my aunt had wheels, she would be an omnibus," and is described as a German proverb. Others include an English proverb: "If my aunt had been a man, she'd have been my uncle." An American version: "If a frog had wings, he wouldn't bump his backside every time he jumps.")

Auntie on wheels

Was that last sentence the work of a typo prankster, like the person on The Boston Globe who surreptitiously removed the headline "All Must Share the Burden" and replaced it with "Mush From the Wimp"?

No. According to The Star's executive editor, Sid Epstein, Germond was dictating his copy by telephone. When he came to his speculation — a line with two "ifs" — he could not help mocking himself with an aside to the dictationist. The person taking it down did not realize Germond was commenting on his own commentary, and wrote down his delicious illustration of iffiness: "If my aunt had wheels, she would be a teacart."

Big Foot Germond probably wishes he had kept his thoughts to himself, but — in the 17th-century English predecessor to this construction — if wishes were horses, beggars would ride.

The ladies of the night ship out

By ROBIN SMYTH
The Observer

Tourists from all over the world gazing out from a rotating cabin which spins up and down Rotterdam's 200-metre Euromast observation tower may soon see eight floating brothels moored at the quayside below.

If the sex ships go into business at the foot of the Euromast, with its neat lawns and banks of tulips, a bizarre solution will have been found to a decade of strife over prostitution in Europe's largest port.

But Rotterdam City Council's decision to evacuate the notorious red light district and put it offshore is coming up against strong opposition. It is being resisted by pimps and prostitutes, and challenged by citizens' groups who fear the spread of massage parlors and drug pushers along the quayside.

Three different moorings have been chosen for the brothel barges, which are already known to some people in this fluently English-speaking city as 'whoreships.' Two are tucked away in the immense stretch of docks on the south side of the port and the third is 35 metres from the Euromast.

One of the dock sites is felt to be so deserted that the prostitutes may never consent to go there. The second is declared to be uncomfortably close to a school for seamen's children.

Of the third, the general manager of the Euromast, Albert van Raalte, says: "I can't accept that this should happen to one of the main national tourist attractions in western Holland. It is going to cut deeply into the appeal of the tower and into its takings and will be extremely negative to our whole operation.

"I have nothing against prostitutes. They have a social function. But I don't want them next to my door."

To the despair of the socialist city council most of the citizens of Rotterdam are equally determined not to have prostitutes as neighbors.

Meanwhile Rotterdam's red light district is where it has been for more than a century, in a slice of red-brick seaside boarding houses two streets wide on the narrow Katendrecht Cape jutting out into the Rhine estuary.

Mini-skirted women sit in the lighted, curtainless downstairs windows in incredibly untidy rooms strewn with cola bottles and biscuit wrappings. Sailors and immigrant workers walk or drive up the long approach road. On a spring night at the Cape streets, which are sealed from the river by the high walls of docks and warehouses, resound to the singing of drunks and the buzz of the needles in the tattoo shops.

But there are also shouts from children in the playground up against the dock wall, and in some of the windows there are families watching TV.

In 1974 years of tension between the red light community and the several hundred working-class Cape dwellers burst into anti-prostitution riots. Led by angry mothers, groups of inhabitants barricaded the approach road, stopped cars and attacked the men inside them.

An action group of Cape citizens then managed to wring from a socialist councillor a promise that the red light district would be removed within two years.

The councillor who gave the pledge has since publicly regretted it, but at the time the elected representatives of the people of Rotterdam, who have built up a handsome modern city centre on the war-time wreckage left by the Germans, felt that remodelling prostitution along rational lines should not be beyond them.

Three years after the promise to the Cape people, the city fathers were toying with the idea of floating brothels and were studying models of ships in Denmark. Then the choice moved to a large empty port authority building which was to be turned into a highly organized brothel along the lines of the German Eros centres.

The decision to go ahead with this plan was formally taken last year but by this time the councillors were deeply embroiled in problems they had not foreseen. It is against Dutch law for the authorities to have any part in running brothels, so an independent organization or individual has to be found to do it for them.

The authorities said they would have no truck with the pimps, gamblers and criminal elements, but the answer of the pimps was: no negotiations, no girls. So now there are contacts behind the scenes.

The police want to keep the present red light district. As they see it, the Cape is hidden from the rest of the city and the approaches are easily blocked if there is trouble.

Some Rotterdam citizens react to the idea of living next door to prostitutes as if it were comparable to having a nuclear power station for a neighbor. They say red light districts have become much more sinister and intrusive places than they used to be.

One Rotterdam man says: 'When the Cape was a Bohemian Chinatown we used to go there sometimes in the evening to drink at the bars, but now it's just sordid. No one goes except for the girls.'

Earlier this year the Eros centre plan fell through when the pimps upped their demands for space around the port authority building for sex shops and massage parlors. By then the people of the area were up in arms against the whole project. It soon became clear that the vast brothel and the empty buffer zone around it would take up space allotted for hundreds of apartments urgently needed to ease the city's housing shortage.

What the city fathers of Rotterdam fear most is that popular opinion will force them to select moorings so remote and uninviting that the pimps will break off relations. Then Rotterdam could become the city with the world's only uninhabited floating red light district.

'Mountain moved sideways . . .then it all went up'

CASTLE ROCK, Wash. (AP) — "I could not believe the mudslides . . . hot, steaming mud carrying trees, logging equipment and parts of houses," said Pam Siddens, a camper who was whisked to safety by helicopter after Mount St. Helens erupted with a blast felt 320 kilometres away.

Logger Joe Sullivan said the mountain "just moved sideways and the whole thing went up," when it erupted Sunday. "It scared the hell out of me."

Many people, campers and the curious, had narrow, harrowing escapes down the mountainside. And thousands of others, near the volcano and several kilometres away, suddenly were shrouded in eerie darkness and thick ash.

"I was knocked out of bed by the explosion . . . It's just boiling — going way up in the air," said Ann Katzer, owner of a general store in Toutle, Wash., about 55 kilometres northwest of Mount St. Helens. Toutle's residents were evacuated.

"The devastation on the mountainside is incredible," said Air Force Lieut. D. E. Schroeder. "Trees are knocked down, animals are standing around in shock, covered with ash."

Thirty-two kilometres northeast of the mountain in Randle, ham radio operator James Lanterman said: "The air is so full of smoke and pumice stone that a person would not live outside. I was thinking of evacuating but I didn't think I could make it, so I'm staying inside."

"What we saw, we probably will never see again," said Ms. Siddens, 29, her black hair flecked with grey ash after she reached Castle Rock, 55 kilometres west of Mount St. Helens.

She and Terry Clayton, 41, both of Seattle, had camped Saturday on the shore of Riff Lake, 32 kilometres north of the volcano. They were awakened Sunday by lightning striking the ground and a towering column of black smoke and ash.

They began trying to drive back to the main highway, crossing several bridges covered by water and flowing mud but abandoned their car when they spotted a coast guard helicopter.

The aerial view was astounding, they said.

"I used to fish the north fork (of the Toutle River) and I could not believe the mudslides," Ms. Siddens said. The river was full of "hot, steaming mud carrying trees, logging equipment and parts of houses," she added.

The pair guided the helicopter back to the mountain to warn others, finally convincing hold-out residents to jump in the helicopter.

Logger Sullivan, his wife, brother-in-law and fellow logger Mark Dahl, had driven up back roads to about five kilometres west of the peak Sunday to get a look at the mountain. As they took pictures of the already-steaming volcano, they saw a cloud of pitch-black ash and smoke and jagged bolts of lightning at the top of the mountain.

They jumped into their pickup and raced down the mountain.

"There was this massive black cloud," said Dahl. "We were lucky to get out alive."

Another couple, Tony Caprara, 29, and Mary Lambert, 25, both of Tacoma, missed the roadblocks that ringed the mountain and drove up a logging road Sunday after hearing of the eruption.

Five kilometres from the volcano, their car, affected by volcanic ash, stalled. Luckily, a helicopter spotted and rescued them.

"I just thank God we got out," Caprara said.

Year without summer?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thick volcanic ash in the upper atmosphere is believed to have caused the infamous "year without a summer" in the northeastern corner of the United States in 1816.

Ash belched from the Mount St. Helens volcano might produce a slight cooling trend in the months ahead but government weather researchers expect nothing like the summer of 1816 when crops failed and frost was widespread in upper New York and New England in July and August.

Although much of the volcanic debris spewed high into the sky from Sunday's eruption has settled over eastern Washington, Idaho and Montana, some suspended in the atmosphere 30,000 to 50,000 feet high is moving into the Midwest.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Monday predicted the leading edge of the ash cloud would sweep across much of the U.S. today and into a broad area of the East Wednesday.

Dr. Lester Machta, director of NOAA's air resources laboratories, said the sunlight scattered by the ash would produce spectacular sunrises and sunsets in areas beneath the ash cloud if the weather is clear. And he said rain falling through the ash could be dirty when it hits the ground.

Ash 50,000 feet or higher in the stratosphere is above most of the weather and can stay aloft for a year or two.

No fish survive in Toutle River

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — There are no fish left in the Toutle River, game officials say — Mount St. Helens has turned it into a raging hot torrent and wiped out its spring salmon run.

Much of the timber at the base of the volcano also is gone, and the damage is running into the tens of millions of dollars.

The fish and trees were obliterated when the volcano erupted Sunday, pushing streams of hot mud down the mountain into lakes and rivers.

Spirit Lake, at the base of the mountain, literally boiled and the steaming flows reportedly heated the Toutle River north of the mountain to 38 degrees Celsius. Witnesses said fish leaped onto banks to escape.

Fish in other rivers and streams that drain the volcano are also endangered by high water temperatures, said Tony Floor, spokesman for the state fisheries department.

City of Longview water intakes on the Cowlitz River, 16 kilometres downstream from the Toutle, were measuring water temperatures Monday of 29 degrees, said Floor. Salmon can stand a maximum water temperature of 21 degrees, "and then there is a lot of stress," he said.

On the Green River, a Toutle tributary, one hatchery was buried under a metre of mud and more than 10.7 million young chinook and coho salmon were lost. Damage there was estimated at $2.5 million.

Meanwhile, the state department of natural resources reported that when Mount St. Helens blew, it took about 25,000 acres (10,000 hectares) of timber with it.

Two-thirds of the timber at the base of the volcano was owned by the Weyerhaeuser Co. and one-third was state owned. The state-owned timber alone was worth $54 million.

Snaking scar of mud 50 miles long

By LARRY GREEN
Los Angeles Times

TOUTLE, Wash. — The dense fir forest here is silent. If there are any birds left, they were not singing Monday. If they dared to fly, the sight they saw was awesome.

At Mt. St. Helens, white, gray and black clouds of steam and ash and gases, deceivingly benign to the eye, boiled and billowed Monday from the volatile peak, then drifted east across the continent. In the wake of Sunday's violent eruption of the mountain, there is no movement, no vegetation left in the valley that lies between the steep hills 15 miles to the west. It is a wasteland of mud deep enough to swallow any man who dares to challenge it.

Before Sunday, the forest-covered hills were verdant and lush. Now the colors change from green to gray as the trees get closer to the peak. A talcom fine ash, like a dusting of snow, covers leaves and the once-brown earth.

The path of destruction winds through the hills and valleys westward like a twisted brown ribbon thrown carelessly across the landscape.

The millions of tons of hot mud and rock, unleashed from the exploding mountain, flowed down the channels of the Toutle and then the Cowlitz rivers to the Columbia. The rivers were neither deep enough nor wide enough for the unbelievable volume of debris that left a snaking scar a half-mile wide and almost 50 miles long.

"We heard a roaring, then splintering, trees being broken," said Gary Udd, 36, a Castle Rock, Wash., resident. That was at 2 a.m. Monday when the fourth and final wave of mud pushed west.

Udd's house survived. Jerry Cripe, like hundreds of others who lived along the rivers, was not as lucky. His house was ripped from its foundation by mud at least three feet deep.

"We left when the mud began oozing around the building," Cripe said as he packed his belongings, standing ankle-deep in wet earth and water.

His house, twisted and collapsed, looked like a child's toy squashed by a heavy foot.

Everywhere along the ribbon of mud, which flowed like wet concrete, was evidence of its power:

—Railroad flat cars, loaded with tons of timber, scattered across a lumber camp, some on their sides, some flipped over.

—Roads that come from mud and lead to mud, traveling from nowhere to nowhere.

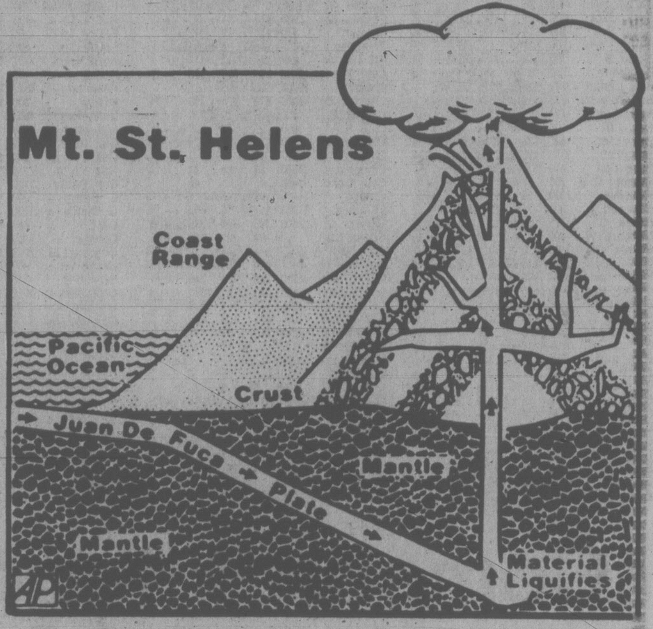
—Houses buried up to their roofs.

—Trees, all their branches torn away 15 feet above ground level.

—Pieces of steel bridges and railroad trestles scattered along the banks of the rivers.

—And bits of pieces of daily life floating in the still warm river waters — a refrigerator, a sofa, a camper, a lamp, an empty life jacket.

Monday evening the mud was still flowing, but it was confined to the river channels. Overhead, helicopters searched the hills and valleys for survivors.



GEOLOGIST'S DRAWING shows how pressure builds up along the Juan de Fuca fault. When the pressure becomes excessive, it is released either through an earthquake, or through the extrusion of molten rock, ash and gas, as has happened at Mt. St. Helens.

Comeback for mid-sized autos

DETROIT (AP) — Americans eventually will return to intermediate-sized autos, although they now favor the smallest, most fuel-efficient models, says Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of General Motors Corp.

It is rare to find a top auto-industry executive willing right now to predict that larger cars will regain popularity. But Murphy is not a run-of-the-mill auto executive.

He starts his day reading the comics and clipping ones with barbed lines to send to colleagues. On his desk is a sign saying "Bless This Mess." And a mess it is.

But Murphy's company not only is the largest auto manufacturer in the world, it is the healthiest of America's famous Big Three.

In an interview, Murphy said the public has over-reacted to last year's televised gasoline lines. He bases that opinion on figures showing there was no over-all gasoline shortage — just shortages in some places and less-publicized surpluses in others. The latest figures show that gasoline inventories now are more than 20 per cent higher than a year ago.

Last year's lines, Murphy believes, had the beneficial effect of finally convincing people the energy shortage was real and not a conspiracy of the producing countries and the oil companies.

But he added that the public went a little overboard.

"I think when you get religion you sometimes over-react," Murphy said.

The year-long industry slump can be divided into two parts, he believes, one produced by gasoline shortages and the current steepening slump produced by tight credit.

In February, when GM trumpeted the recalls of 15,000 employees, "We were saying, particularly for the intermediate-sized cars, that we thought there would be a resurgence of demand."

"We still feel fairly confident that the (retail) demand level is going to be OK. We still have to express concern about the dealers not ordering. That may mean there may be some product shortages if the market is there."

Most experts say the market will not be there until the recession is over. GM sees that happening toward the end of the year.

Cattle

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. today at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 375 cattle and calves consisting mainly of slaughter cows and a few good quality slaughter heifers.

Slaughter cows met a moderate demand from local buyers while slaughter heifers met a dull demand and were hard to sell. Too few slaughter steers sold to quote prices. A1-2 heifers traded $4 below last week's close. All grades of slaughter cows traded steady.

A1-2 heifers over 850 lbs. $68-$69. D1-2 cows 47-50; D3-5 42-47.

DOUGLAS FIR PANAMA

SELF—PROPELLED BARGE Douglas Fir lies alongside at Ogden Point Docks after unloading a cargo of hardwood from Columbia. The 117.5 metre vessel has a cruising speed of 12 knots and because of her shallow draft can go much further up rivers than other vessels. She will load pine and fir for delivery, mostly to ports in California, returning with a cargo of bunker oil for lumber camps on the northern part of Vancouver Island.

today's markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market was up moderately in moderately active mid-afternoon trading today.

Trading in shares of Canadian Utilities Ltd. was halted briefly and by 2 p.m. the stock jumped 5¼ to $26.

Calgary Power Ltd. said it plans an offer of up to 8,725,000 shares of Canadian Utilities or 42 per cent for $27 cash or 1.6 Calgary Power common shares for each Canadian Utilities share.

The exchange also said shares of Skyline Hotels Ltd. have been removed from the trading list. Shareholders approved at a meeting Friday the amalgamation of the company with York-Hannover 421386 Ontario Ltd. and will receive $5.50 for each Skyline share held.

Among industrials, Crush International climbed 2½ to $14⅞, Texasgulf 1¼ to $41¼, Imperial Oil B 1⅛ to $36⅝, Noranda Mines ⅜ to $25⅜ and Dome Petroleum ⅜ to 72¼.

Falconbridge Nickel lost 2½ to $80, Alberta Natural Gas 1 to $19, Nowsco Well Service ¾ to $23, Torstar Corp. B ¾ to $20 and Gulf Canada ½ to $28½.

Dome Mines gained 2 to $74, Carolin Mines 1½ to $17 and Teck Corp. B ⅜ to $13⅜. United Keno Hill dropped 1⅝ to $28⅜ and Gibraltar Mines ¼ to $11¼.

Rupertsland Resources rose ½ to $6, Oakwood Petroleums ½ to $18¼ and Coseka Resources ½ to $20⅝. Basic Resources International fell 1⅜ to $13½ and Canadian Natural Resources ¾ to $17½.

Vancouver

Prices were down in active trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 11 a.m. PDT was 1,928,339 shares.

Of the stocks that traded, 98 advanced, 132 declined and 155 were unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials and lost .10 to $6.40 on 28,009 shares. Northway Gestalt declined .05 to $1.60 on 5,125 shares, Proflex Ltd. was steady at .20 on 4,000 and Potter Distillers A gained .01 to $1.35 on 1,000. Canadian Javelin Ltd. was unchanged at $1.30 and Great National Land dropped .04 to $1.01.

On the resource and development board, Zone Petroleum was the volume leader as it gained .01 to $2.06 on 91,900 shares. Giant Explorations advanced .06 to $1.01 on 64,700 shares, NRD Mining Ltd. gained .20 to $4.60 on 46,025 shares and Sweetwater advanced .15 to $2.15 on 40,300. Seneca Development dropped .05 to .65 and Highwood Resources warrants declined .05 to .20.

Spectrum Industrial Resources led curb traders and lost .02 to .48 on 310,000 shares. Tracer Resources gained .20 to $2.10 on 31,200 shares, Belmont Resources was steady at $2.75.

New York

The stock market drifted around Monday's closing levels today, struggling to maintain the momentum of its spring rally.

The Dow Jones industrial average has climbed more than 90 points from its low on the afternoon of March 27, the day when the collapse of the silver market reached its climax.

Since then, stock prices have responded favorably to a steep decline in interest rates. But considerable debate continues on Wall Street over whether the market has yet fully recognized the effects of the developing recession on corporate profits and dividends.

London

The London stock market was mixed near the close of quiet trading today.

The Financial Times index slipped .4 to $433.4.

Industrials and golds were mixed.

Canadian stocks were higher.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARINGS

APPRENTICESHIP AND TRAINING DEVELOPMENT ACT

Re: Trades of Industrial Electrical and Electrical Work — Construction Section

The Provincial Apprenticeship Board will hold Public Hearings for the purpose of receiving representations on a proposal to combine the above Trades into a single Trade to be known as ELECTRICIAN and to require that persons hold a certificate of qualification to practice or be employed in the trade.

It has been proposed that the trade of ELECTRICIAN be defined as: the installation, construction, alteration, repair, maintenance, operation, commissioning, testing, servicing and calibration of electrical and electronic systems in any premise, place, building or structure.

Persons who make submissions at the Public Hearings may wish to comment on the following points:

1. The proposed definition of the Trade;
2. The proposal to require a compulsory certificate of qualification;
3. Any special provisions that might apply to persons currently engaged in Electrical Work, if a requirement for a compulsory certificate of qualification were to be introduced.

Both written and oral submissions will be accepted at the Hearings. Persons wishing to make written submissions are requested to provide nine (9) copies.

The Public Hearings will be held at the time and place shown on the schedule below:

Productivity a cure for inflation?

Comment
By LEONARD SILK

NEW YORK — Economists have never seemed more like practitioners of a "dismal science." That title was conferred upon economics in the 19th century by Thomas Carlyle, mainly in response to T.R. Malthus's population theories. Malthus offered two dismal propositions.

His first, and most famous, theory was that, because population could expand geometrically (1, 2, 4, 8, 16) and resources could increase only arithmetically (1, 2, 3, 4, 5), population would grow to the limit of resources and would be checked only by misery, war or starvation.

His second dismal theory was that technical improvements that increase the ability of people to get more out of a fixed supply of resources would let population keep expanding longer but ultimately would produce more people living in misery.

Today's dismal theories have to do with inflation and unemployment. One is that inflation is now so deeply imbedded that it can be eliminated only by years of slump or sluggish growth. Another is that the early postwar dream of government action to create "full employment" has been shattered, turning into an inflationary nightmare. This proposition rests on the theory that a "natural rate of unemployment" puts a high and well-braced floor under joblessness. Efforts to push unemployment below its natural rate will worsen inflation and undermine the structure of the economy.

But economics has no absolute laws. The Malthusian theories were overcome, for more than a century, by technological progress. In Europe, in America and in much of what is now called the third world, population grew fast. But productivity grew faster, so living standards advanced. (Eventually, some demographers, economists and ecologists believe, Malthus will prove to have been right.)

Can the current crop of dismal inflation-unemployment-growth theorems also be overcome? From a political viewpoint, high and rising unemployment accompanied by high and only slowly receding inflation may seem too severe for the electorate to accept. Since a cold-turkey cure for inflation also could mean a huge wave of business failures and disruptions, it may also prove unacceptable to industry.

So the search for an escape from the current dismal choices of economic policy is on.

One alternative course would be to accept the risk of "supply side" actions aimed at raising the level of productivity, both to improve living standards and to check inflation. Most conventional economists pooh-pooh this productivity solution as a nostrum, at least in the short run. They argue that an increase of one or two percentage points in productivity is not going to make much of a dent in double-digit inflation.

But William Freund, senior vice president and chief economist of the New York Stock Exchange, and Paul Manchester, an economist on the staff of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee, have completed work on a research paper showing that gains in productivity have a multiplier effect in curbing inflation over a period of years. They calculate that, for every increase of one percentage point in productivity, the nation would enjoy a decline of three percentage points in the rate of inflation.

This multiplier reaches its full effect in about five years. Thus measures to increase productivity growth — such as tax incentives to industry — that would wipe out the 1 percent decline in productivity of the last year and raise the annual rate of productivity growth to 2 percent (a net change of three percentage points) would reduce the rate of inflation by nearly nine points by 1985, according to their calculations.

Freund told the Joint Economic Committee last week that the country needs a balanced program of fiscal and monetary restraint to cool off the economy. But, he added, relying on monetary policy to do most of the job will also have the undesirable effect of curtailing productivity-generating capital investment.

"The critical question right now," he said, "is how to reconcile short-run demand-oriented economic policies with longer-run supply-oriented investment incentives." And he urged Congress not to "let the current inflation crisis deflect you from the realization that robust productivity growth is the essential ingredient for curbing inflation in the longer run and in producing new economic opportunities for growth, jobs and real incomes in the years ahead."

But productivity-raising is not the only way out of the dismal trap. Another possible escape, which is being urged these days by the Committee for Economic Development, a private group of business executives and educators, would be for business and government to work more closely together to improve the skills of, and create more jobs for, "the hard-to-employ" — especially young people and minorities. The goal of this approach is to reduce the natural rate of unemployment.

Slump will doubtless bring the inflation rate down a couple of notches in the short run. But the positive job that lies ahead for years to come is to improve the productivity of both capital and labor.

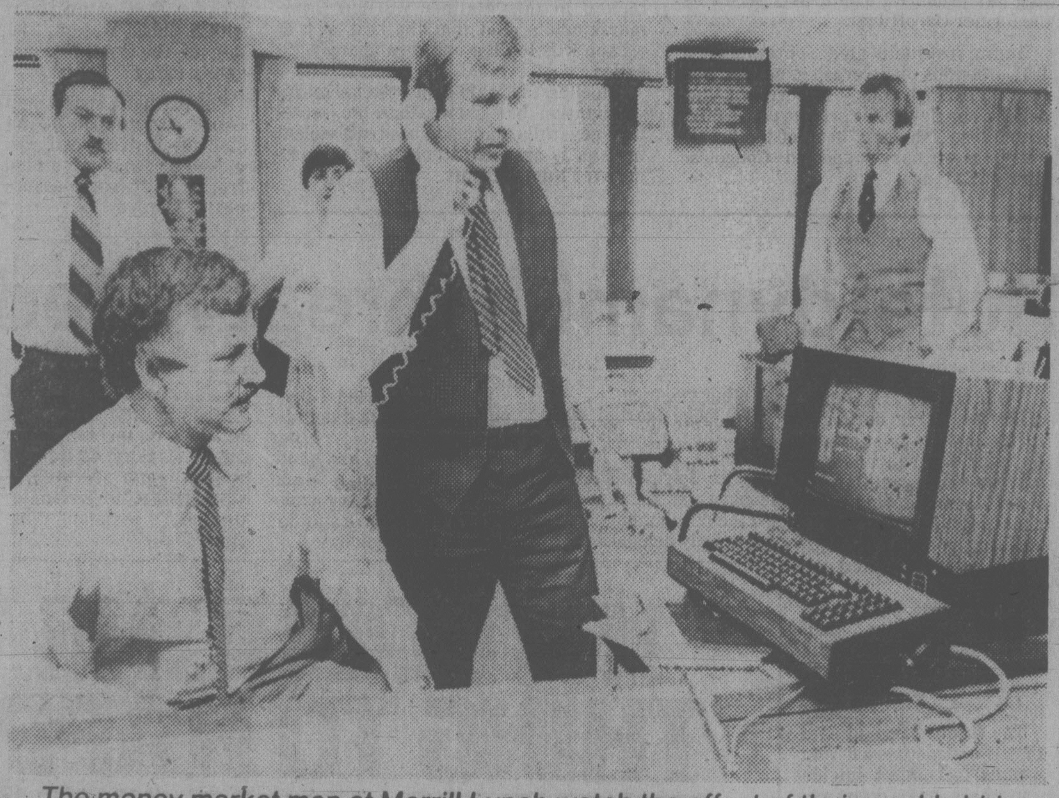
Poker game behind the interest rates



The money market men at Merrill Lynch watch the effect of their weekly bids

TORONTO (CP) — Shortly before noon each Thursday, small groups of highly-paid professionals huddle briefly in their Bay Street trading rooms to plot strategy for a multi-billion-dollar poker game.

They are money traders, and their opponents in the weekly game are the Bank of Canada and rivals in the money business.

The stakes are high, not only for the traders, but for anyone on the verge of borrowing money from a bank or renewing a house mortgage.

That's because Canadian interest rates have been tied since mid-March to the outcome of this poker game — the regular weekly auction of federal government treasury bills.

But the game has become particularly risky lately beause the government's central bank has jumped heavily into the bidding, forcing the cost of credit to remain high.

By mid-day Thursday, the money-market dealers inform the Bank of Canada how much they are prepared to bid for that week's offering of hundreds of millions of dollars in treasury bills, short-lived promissory notes sold to help pay Ottawa's debts.

About 2 p.m., the dealers learn the results of the auction and how many bills they have bought.

The price at which the sale is made — say $96 million for bills with a value at maturity of $100 million — determines the yield or interest rate.

The twin perils for every dealer are the possibility of buying too much at too high a price for profitable resale, or ending up with too few or no securities and having nothing to sell.

A wrong move for these financial experts can cost their firms hundreds of thousands of dollars in a matter of hours. The right bet means good trading profits for their employers and perhaps a bigger performance bonus for the dealers.

The outcome of the game for Canadians is higher or lower borrowing costs for businesses, farmers, homebuyers and people making bank-financed consumer purchases.

Thomson wins shares

WINNIPEG (CP) — Thomson Newspapers Ltd. will own all of the voting shares of FP Publications Ltd., following a Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench order Friday.

Justice John Hunt ordered that 334 voting shares of FP Publications, held in trust for 15-year-old Victor Sifton of Winnipeg, be put up for sale to Thomson.

The shares, part of the assets of two holding companies, were offered to Thomson by trustees of the John W. Sifton estate but June Sifton, Victor's mother, tried to block the sale.

However, she was unsuccessful when the Manitoba Court of Appeal rejected her arguments earlier this year that the action was not in Victor's best interests.

Hunt's order causes the trustees to act on the appeal court decision and give Thomson the oportunity to buy the shares. The Toronto-based company, controlled by Lord Thomson of Fleet, has already indicated it wants 100 per cent of FP's voting shares.

R. Howard Webster of Montreal, the other holdout from the reent takeover of FP, sold his shares to Thomson last month as part of a $34-million deal.

Cuba freedom flotilla now becomes war of attrition

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — U.S. officials say there is finally an end in sight to the so-called Freedom Flotilla that has brought more than 62,000 Cuban refugees to Florida.

But the end may not come until another 50,000 have arrived. "Now it's a war of attrition," said state department spokesman Joanna Capman.

No boats have left for Cuba for the last four days, with U.S. Coast Guard cutters turning back the handful that have tried. Cuban authorities have ignored President Carter's call for all boats to return empty and allow U.S. government-chartered ships to take over transportation — and selection — of refugees.

Most returning boat captains say Cuban authorities will not allow them to leave Mariel harbor until their vessels are loaded with passengers, so U.S. officials now are playing a numbers game.

"If we could control the southbound traffic and the exodus continues from Mariel, we would eventually reach a point when there are no boats left," said Coast Guard Cmdr. Samuel Dennis of Key West.

Officials estimate that more than 2,500 boats have left for Cuba since the first boat departed April 20. So far, more than 1,600 have returned.

However, U.S. officials have noted that since the U.S. began preventing boats from leaving Key West, Cuban authorities are allowing fewer boats to leave Mariel empty.

Of the first 1,500 boaters to return, about two-thirds carried refugees. But about 80 per cent of returning boats since last Wednesday have carried refugees.

"It's hard to predict what's ahead," said Allen Lisle of the federal Emergency Management Agency. "We have no control over the number of people coming. We'll get what they send us."

Federal officials expect as many as 50,000 more refugees before the flotilla ends.

Jorge Gonzalez, a Puerto Rico resident who returned Monday with 34 refugees packed on to his 10-metre boat, estimated about 700 boats are still at Mariel.

Gonzalez said he counted more than 80 shrimp boats still there. Cuban authorities usually pack between 100 and 150 refugees on each shrimper.

Meanwhile, spokesmen for Admiral John Hayes, commandant of the coast guard, said attempts are being made to bring international pressure on Cuba. Cuba and the United States are among 100 signatories of the 1960 Safety of Life at Sea treaty, said Capt. John DeCarteret, chief of Maritime Safety for the coast guard.

He said other treaty members are being told the Cubans are violating the pact by allowing unsafe boats to leave Cuba, by dangerously overloading vessels and by failing to ensure the vessels have sufficient lifesaving equipent.

"There's no provision for retaliation in the treaty," DeCarteret said. "Most of the countries try to live up to the treaty. They try to do what's right."

— The Coast Guard says it could not help a Cuban refugee boat that radioed it was sinking with 21 people aboard because the distress signal came from within Cuban waters. The fate of the boat was unknown today.

Coast Guard spokesman Bruce Pimental in Miami said the distress call was picked up Sunday morning from the 21-foot pleasure craft El Bravo.

'Mercenaries bombed' Hammarskjoeld's plane

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — A new investigation into the death of former UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjoeld has shown that his plane was bombed by white mercenaries fighting for Katanga, a Swedish television producer said Sunday.

The evidence comes from witnesses and was ignored by technical experts and previous investigations into Hammarskjoeld's death, said Gunnar Moellerstedt, who has produced a four-part series on the former UN official.

Hammarskjoeld died September 17, 1961, when his plane crashed near Ndola, then the British colony of northern Rhodesia, as he flew in for private peace talks with Moise Tshombe, head of the breakaway, mercenary-supported Congolese state of Katanga.

"The white mercenaries were desperate," Moellerstedt said. "After Indochina and Algeria they had no other place to run. Katanga was their last resort."

Moellerstedt said the airborne mercenaries, who called themselves the Katanga air force, had developed a small bomb of about two pounds of TNT, wrapped in an iron shell and set off by a hand grenade. They simply dropped them from holes in the bottom of their planes.

A UN pilot whose plane had been attacked in this manner warned Hammarskjoeld's pilot that the best way to escape was to dive and turn sharply, he added.

Moellerstedt said a new technical investigiation has shown that the secretary-general's plane had been in a violent turn as it crashed at night after passing over Ndola airport.

Hotel dynamite threat foiled

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — Three deranged men carrying 25 sticks of dynamite threatened to blow up the elegant Carlton Hotel Monday during a 5½-hour siege but were overpowered by a team of antiterrorism police and arrested.

No one was injured although the assistant manager of the hotel, one of the most luxurious in South Africa, was briefly held hostage and then released.

The three men had said they were depressed and wanted to commit suicide and their only demands were to see a psychiatrist, a doctor and a local newsman, officials said.

"They were people with a psychological problem, that's the best description," senior police spokesman Col. Leon Mellett said.

The men, who have not been identified, spent the day in a 15th floor room of the hotel drinking beer, smoking marijuana and eating a lavish meal they ordered from room service.

The siege ended when the specially trained police team lured the ringleader from the room and overpowered him before he could detonate the 25 dynamite sticks he carried in a back pack. Several minutes later, police burst into the room and arrested the other two men.

The siege started when two of the men walked into the lobby of the 30-story hotel in downtown Johannesburg and demanded to see the duty manager, who was briefly held hostage.

One man carried a back pack loaded with dynamite and wired to a trigger mechanism in his hand. The other held a black briefcase containing explosives and carried a similiar electric hand detonator.

"They had trigger mechanisms in their hands and said they would blow up the place if they could not speak to me privately," said Sebastino Berineto, the hotel's assistant manager.

Missile firing gives China giant military leap forward

PEKING (UPI) — China has test-fired a huge missile capable of carrying a nuclear warhead to Moscow or the west coast of the United States in a giant military and political leap forward.

Japanese military experts said the political impact of the test of the long-range rocket will be enormous, noting it came as China and the United States moved toward military co-operation to counter the growing might of the Soviet Union.

Although the test was a big step for China, Peking is still far behind the United States and the Soviet Union in development of Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles, the Japanese experts said. They said the rocket apparently used liquid fuel, indicating China's development of an ICBM is in an early stage.

Launched from an unidentified base in China, the missile travelled about 7,450 miles before landing on target in a triangle roughly bounded by the Solomon, Fiji and Gilbert Islands in the South Pacific.

Diplomats said China has smaller rockets capable of carrying nuclear warheads about 3,750 miles — meaning the firing was twice as far as any previous test carried out inside China.

People's Daily, the official newspaper of the Chinese Communist Party, trumphantly issued a one-page extra edition Sunday afternoon to announce the successful test. The paper, entirely printed in red ink, carried a map of China and the splashdown area, but did not show where the rocket was launched.

Diplomats guessed the rocket may have been fired from a space launching complex at Shuangchengzi about 1,000 miles west of Peking, or from the Lop Nor area in the northwest, where China tests nuclear weapons.

The same sources said the rocket probably was a Chinese model known as the CSSX4, which has been tested over shorter distances inside China.

Angry families grab officials in protest

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — After detaining two federal officials for about five hours, angry residents of the Love Canal area say they hope they got their message across to the Carter administration.

If not, "what they've seen here today is going to seem like a Sesame Street picnic," said Lois Gibbs, president of the Love Canal Homeowners Association.

The residents want the Carter administration to declare their neighborhood a disaster area so the remaining 700 families can be moved away at federal expense.

Mrs. Gibbs said she had received no assurances that their demands will be met.

The two employees of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency — Frank Napal, a public affairs officer, and Dr. James Lucas, deputy director of a health effects research laboratory — were in Niagara Falls to answer homeowners' questions about the chemical contamination of the area.

Residents would not allow them to leave the meeting as a crowd gathered outside.

After the five hours, the two men were led through a booing, jeering crowd of about 200 people in front of the association headquarters.

As lights for television news cameras glared, Mrs. Gibbs told the crowd she believed the association had made its point.

She said she had learned that U.S. Rep. John LaFalce (Dem. N.Y.) met with President Carter about the situation.

"It reached the White House," she said. "That's all we were really trying to do."

Tension, fear and anger have intensified in the Love Canal area since the agency's announcement Saturday that chromosomal abnormalities had been detected among 11 of 36 residents studied in a research project.

The abnormalities were early warnings that cancer, birth defects, miscarriages and other health problems could occur.

Meanwhile, the agency in Washington denied reports that the White House has rejected proposals that the Love Canal residents be relocated.

The Hooker Chemicals Plastics Corp. used the Love Canal as a chemical dump site from 1942 to 1953. The chemicals were buried in drums and capped with clay. Several years ago, people living in the area began complaining of illness and the odor of fumes.

In August, 1978, after some of the chemicals began oozing to the surface, the state health department declared an emergency.

The state bought the homes of 235 families living on streets next to the canal and relocated them. The state also launched a cleanup project that involved the construction of draining ditches to siphon off leaking chemicals.

Did China copy U.S. jetliner?

New York Times

PEKING — Peking has secretly built a jetliner that bears a very close resemblence to the Boeing 707, but it does not fly and has evidently turned into an embarrassment for both the Chinese and Boeing, which are negotiating for further aircraft sales.

Reports about the plane's existence come from several American aircraft industry representatives who saw it at a factory in Shanghai recently.

The sources say Chinese aviation engineers apparently tried to copy the Boeing 707but they failed to establish the plane's center of gravity so it cannot be flown.

The plane, officially called the Y-10, has four Pratt £ Whitney JT3D engines. China bought 40 of them for its 10 Boeing 707's, far more replacements than normally needed.

When Peking bought three long-range versions of Boeing's 747 jumbo jet last year, it also ordered four extra engines for each.

An official of the China National Aeronautical Technology Import and Export Corp., part of the military ministry that built the plane, denied that it was in any way modeled on the 707.

If the copy is confirmed, it could have serious repercussions for Western businesses that want to manufacture here or set up joint-venture factories using their advanced technology. China does not belong to the international patent and copyright conventions, a problem that worries foreign businessmen.

Snake-sit challenger puts bite on new record

HARTBEESPORT, South Africa (UPI) — Austin Stevens, new holder of the world snake-sitting record, already has a new challenger dismissed by some as a fraud for dining on his cage-mates.

Stevens has pledged he would leave his 8-by-10-foot glass cage on his 30th birthday today, ending nearly two months of confinement with 24 of the world's deadliest snakes.

At 6:01 p.m. (9:05 a.m. PDT) Saturday, the South African broke the previous world record of 50 days, six hours at the Hartbeesport Snake Park.

But his rival, Johannes Mothemane, who today entered his 47th day in a cage with 38 deadly snakes, said Stevens' record "will not stand . . . I will do one day better than Stevens."

Mothemane entered his cage four days after Stevens amid a controversy which might deny him the right to international snake-sitting fame and mention in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Jack Seale, Stevens' mentor and the first record holder, claims Mothemane has eaten several of his cage-mates for dinner — a violation of the spirit of snake-sitting — and does not allow for random checks since the park is closed at night.

"There have been ground rules set down for snake-sitting and they have not followed them," Seale said. "In my book, that's no record."

The charges are dismissed as "rubbish" by Colin Patterson, Mothemane's mentor and director of the Transvaal Snake Park.

Stevens was confined with six mambas, six Egyptian Cobras, six puff adders and six Boomslangs (tree snakes). Mothemane sits in a larger cage filled with 38 deadly snakes, a television set and a radio.

Cars burn on street in Kwangju, South Korea after demonstrators clashed with troops and police

Korean crowds on rampage as military control tightens

SEOUL (UPI) — Thousands of angry demonstrators led by nearly 100 commandeered vehicles rampaged through a major provincial town today battling army troops and seizing two broadcasting stations.

The new violence broke out after the entire South Korean cabinet resigned in a move that gave the military almost total power in the turbulent nation.

The angry crowd in Kwangju, 270 kilometres southwest of Seoul, was so large that its exact number could not be determined in the evening darkness, a newsman in the town said. All the streets seemed filled with demonstrators, many of them women, heading for a government building, he said.

It was the third straight night students and residents of Kwangju fought army paratroopers with rocks, sticks, Molotov Cocktails and iron pipes. No immediate casualty report was available but at least two persons were reported dead and 45 persons injured in clashes Monday, according to unofficial reports.

The violent street actions by residents of the town protesting expanded martial law and strong actions taken by the paratroopers the previous night climaxed at 9 p.m. (5 a.m. PDT), the reports said.

Many people were arriving from suburban areas in the heart of the town, the newsman said. The demonstrators were pushing from all directions toward a provincial government building, he said.

The Munhwa Broadcasting Company station and the Christian Broadcasting system in Kwangju went off air after they were taken over by the rioters, he said.

At the border truce village of Panmunjom, U.S. Rear Adm. Stephen Hostettler warned North Korean officers against military provocations.

He said the U.S.-led United Nations Command "is prepared to take any appropriate action to meet this aggression, and the United Nations Command will crush it."

The entire 21-member cabinet resigned to take responsibility for the current crisis in South Korea. The move leaves the military virtually in complete control.

The mass resignation came one day after the first two reported deaths in street fighting in Kwanju with armed paratroopers, part of the more than week-long anti-government rioting, Korea's worst protests in 16 years.

The resignation of the cabinet leaves President Choi Kyu-hah as the only civilian leader, and he is generally considered by observers as weaker than the military.

Cabinet resignations in times of turmoil are customary in South Korea, but observers said the military might have been behind the move, since it benefits from the action.

Culture and Information Minister Lee Kyoo-hyun, the official Cabinet spokesman, said he and all other cabinet members resigned because last week's riots showed they had become ineffectual.

The resignations came hours after the Supreme Court upheld the conviction and death sentence imposed on Kim Jae-kyu, former head of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, for the assassination of President Park Chung-hee last Oct. 26.

Park's assassination came at a time when he was under pressure to ease up on his autocratic 18-year rule. His death spurred demands for full democracy as quickly as possible in the nation of 37 million people.

The resignations also came on a day when the government barred the National Assembly from opening and troops broke up an opposition political meeting.

To protest the closing and the expansion of martial law, 47 of the 66 lawmakers belonging to the main opposition group, the New Democratic Party, resigned.

The Kwangju riot, pitting 50,000 rock and stick-wielding students and residents against armed paratroopers, raged through the day. Killed were Kim An-bu, 36, who was reportedly beaten by soldiers in a park, and Kim Hyong-yol, 29.

The protesters set fire to a police box and at least five cars and destroyed a radio station. Paratroopers charged into the crowd, swinging their rifle butts. Soldiers cut off from other troops were beaten by protesters, reports said.

Reports said the troops restored order in the evening, as rain began falling and the 9 p.m. curfew, pushed forward from midnight, approached.

Riots broke out early Sunday in Kwangju, hours after the government expanded martial law to the entire country and gave the military the job of enforcing peace. The protesters also demanded the speeding up of a government timetable for introducing democratic reforms and holding elections.

Thatcher forced to back off EEC Iran sanctions

Times News Services

LONDON (UPI) — Confronted by a revolt of her own supporters, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher reversed Britain's decision to impose economic sanctions against Iran retroactive to last Nov. 4 — the day 53 Americans were taken hostage.

The surprise move Monday splintered the delicate compromise reached by the European Common Market in Naples at the weekend, and also left open the question of how effective sanctions would be if other European nations followed London's lead.

Angry Labor and Conservative MPs, in calling for a debate in the House of Commons today, said that they agreed to impose sanctions last week with the understanding that the measures would affect only future contracts, not previously signed agreements.

Confronted by a strong revolt among her own Conservative members, Mrs. Thatcher was apparently faced with the choice of either watered-down sanctions or no sanctions at all, and chose the former.

Under President Carter's prodding, European allies last month agreed to impose economic sanctions against Iran by May 17 if no substantial progress was made in freeing the U.S. hostages from 199 days of captivity.

In Naples last weekend they agreed to impose sanctions, but only retroactive to last Nov. 4, a move that caused some grumbling in the United States as too little, too late.

"After an emergency meeting of her ministers Monday night, it was announced that the sanctions would apply only to contracts signed on or after the date of Orders in Council confirming the sanctions.

The House of Commons last week passed an Iran sanctions bill, leaving the Orders to specify which contracts would be affected. The Orders are due to be published this week.

Japan announced limited sanctions against Iran today but continued negotiations with the revolutionary regime on oil imports and prepared to resume building a $3-billion petrochemical plant.

Iran, which at the beginning of the year contracted to sell Japan 530,000 barrels of oil a day, 11 per cent of Japan's needs, stopped all shipments April 21 when Japanese importers refused to pay a $2.50-a-barrel increase.

But Japanese officials said Tokyo oil traders still are trying to negotiate the dispute with the Iranians, insisting that the matter is purely economic.

In Washington, the state department said Monday the weakened sanctions America's Europeans allies voted against Iran will still be significant and meaningful.

According to state department figures, European and Japanese sales to Iran rose steadily in the last six months, despite a U.S. freeze on all Iranian financial assets in U.S.-owned banks in the United States and Europe.

In Tehran, Iranian leaders indicated Sunday they would cut off oil to countries backing the EEC sanctions.

Meanwhile, President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr returned to Tehran today after observing Iranian naval manoeuvres in the Strait of Hormuz, through which much of the world's oil passes. The U.S. Navy has a 24-ship task force in the area.

Iranian forces are reported to be on heightened alert because of President Carter's attempt to rescue the hostages April 25.

Iran's new parliament, charged with determining the hostages' fate, begins work May 28. It is dominated by Islamic hardliners, many of whom demand the return of the shah and his wealth to Iran as the price of the hostages' freedom.

In Kerman, about 800 kilometres southeast of Tehran, gunmen opened fire today on a building where some of the American hostages now are being held.

Hostages not part of UN talks

TEHRAN (UPI) — Iran sent a message today to U.N Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim saying a U.N. envoy slated to visit Tehran soon, would not be allowed to discuss the 199-day American hostage crisis, the official Pars news agency reported.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh sent a message to Waldheim saying that when the two men met in Belgrade during the funeral of Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito, "it was agreed that one or two members of the commission of inquiry should come to Iran to complete the earlier investigation."

He was referring to the U.N. special commission that went to Iran for 17 days in March to investigate the alleged crimes of the deposed shah in a failed attempt to free the hostages, who today entered their 199th day of captivity.

"As already stated, there will be no talks with this commission about the problems between Iran and America," Ghotbzadeh, currently attending the Islamic conference in Islamabad, Pakistan, said in his letter.

Habib Daoudy, a Syrian jurist who was an original member of the five-man U.N. commission, is scheduled to arrive in Tehran within a week to hold talks with Iranian government officials.

U.S. airstrips undiscovered by Iranians

TEHRAN (CP) — The United States built 20 airstrips in remote regions of Iran and the Iranian armed forces are only now discovering some of them, says the Tehran newspaper Enghelab Islami.

The newspaper said Saturday that it has learned from sources in the armed forces that the U.S. built the airstrips while it had a "free hand" in Iran.

The airstrips are primitive, with unpaved runways such as the one used by the U.S. commando force in the eastern Iranian desert of Dasht-e-Kavir on April 25, the newspaper said.

"Already we have discovered some of them and we hope the rest of them will be known soon," the newspaper quoted one of the sources as saying.

Volcano's plume wreaks wide-spread havoc

River Valley, trapping dozens of residents and campers, wiping out homes and washing out numerous bridges and roads.

The explosion, which created a huge crater measuring 1 mile by 2 miles, was caused by underground molten rock building up pressure for weeks.

It was so powerful that every tree was flattened in an area estimated at 15 miles wide and eight miles long — or 120 square miles of forest once thick with towering fir trees.

Bob Christiansen of the U.S. Geological Survey said part of the mudflow from Mount St. Helen had built up a 1-mile dam 200 feet high at Spirit Lake. Behind the dam, the lake level already has increased more than 50 feet.

"The best scenario is that the water will infiltrate the volcanic materials, seep through and join the river. The worst scenario is that it will rise to the top, overflow and cause a big flood," Christiansen said.

Plumes of smoke and ash continued to steam from the volcano today and numerous small forest fires still burned on its slopes, but the danger from the Spirit Lake situation appeared to be easing.

Meanwhile, falling ash was causing problems over a broad area of the northern U.S. and the Canadian southwest.

In Penticton, small amounts of brown ash, described as "sulphury-smelling," began falling Sunday evening from the sky in the Okanagan region, a police spokesman said.

The fine ash began falling on small communities southeast of Cranbrook in southeastern B.C. less than 12 hours after the mountain blew, and the dust began late Sunday night to sift down on Cranbrook itself.

Reports from local RCMP detachments said the dust is thick enough to cause visibility problems for drivers, as cars kick up clouds of the ash.

The heaviest fallout of ash occurred northeastward from Mount St. Helens but a fanout of the volcanic plume resulted in ash fallout over a broad area.

Weather officials in Toronto said today that no significant haze is anticipated over Ontario but there may be a slight dimming of the sun with hazy red sunsets this evening.

Border crossings were expected to remain closed much of today, because of more serious visibility problems hampering road travel in the three U.S. states.

Amounts of ash were also reported falling on communities in southern Alberta and Saskatchewan.

In the U.S., all Cascade passes except Stevens and Washington (North Cascades Highway) were closed and all state routes in four counties, Spokane, Whitman, Lincoln and Adams, were blocked. Spokane County was declared in a state of emergency, thus all county roads were closed as well. In addition, all roads in Mount Rainier National Park and the Gifford Pinchot National Forest were closed.

Every airport east of the Cascades was closed except those at Pasco, Richland and Walla Walla. Airports at Lewiston, Idaho, Pendleton, Ore., and the Dalles, Ore., and in western Washington were open.

Ship travel up the Columbia River was halted by the Coast Guard Monday night on a 2-mile stretch where mud and debris from the erupting volcano was flowing out of the Cowlitz River near Longview.

The closure kept ships from proceeding upriver and kept all large craft in upriver ports or on the Columbia-Snake river system from reaching the Pacific.

Grant County officials and the Washington State Patrol were organizing caravans to move stranded travellers caught in the heavy ash fallout in central Washington.

Stranded motorists spent the night in shelters, churches, colleges and schools. A total of 2,000 stranded travellers were housed in temporary shelters at Central Washington University in Ellensburg.

The Red Cross in Ephrata reported there were still many travellers stranded there by the ash fallout.

Economy at crawl in U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. economy, reined in by an ailing housing industry and cautious consumers, slowed to a crawl during the first three months of the year as the country wallowed into recession, the government said today.

Last month, the commerce department reported the "real" gross national product — the total output of goods and services stripped of inflation — grew at an annual rate of 1.1 percent between January and March.

But in a revised report released today, the department said new data revealed the increase in real GNP was actually only 0.6 percent in the first quarter — or roughly half the original estimate.

At the same time, the department reported that profits for American businesses, after inventories and capital were adjusted for inflation, fell by 2.6 percent in the first quarter to an annual rate of $171.8 billion.

While the economy was on the wane, inflation was on the rise.

The Commerce Department said its "implicit price deflator," a general measure of the underlying rate of inflation, rose 9.3 percent between January and March. That represented a hefty increase over the 8.4 percent rate recorded during the last three months of 1979.

Doctor's office entered

A 29-year-old Victoria man was arrested after a doctor's office was broken into about midnight Monday.

Saanich police said office premises in the 4000 block of Shelbourne were entered.

The man was arrested about an hour after the break-in when city police checking a car discovered drugs, syringes and other items believed taken from the doctor's office.

The driver is to appear in court charged with breaking, entering and theft.

In other Victoria burglaries over the holiday weekend, three guitars valued at $400 were taken from Bernie Porter's music store, 725 Caledonia, $200 cash was stolen from Morris Printing, 1745 Blanshard and $75 cash was taken from Fort Cook Restaurant, 1031 Cook.

Meanwhile, city police police are investigating a rash of break-ins since Friday, mostly in the James Bay district.

Businesses hit include the Texaco bulk plant at 120 Kingston, Simcoe Foodliner, 129 Menzies, and Boyd's Hairstylists, on Menzies.

In case you're wondering

How many visitors come to Victoria each year and how much money do they contribute to the economy?

The Victoria Visitors Information Centre is glad you asked because, like many other bodies — including the provincial government, it is convinced the tourist dollar is not only very important for the city's economy now but will continue to be for many years.

The centre estimates about two million people visited Victoria last year and spent about $200 million dollars while they were here, said Lorraine Cooper, the centre's public relations officer.

The centre compiles its figures by using information gathered from ferries serving Vancouver Island.

Although it's difficult to estimate the impact of tourism on the economy, Cooper says judging from studies, about 28,000 jobs are created because of tourism.

The centre breaks down the tourist dollar this way: 28 per cent to retail sales, 23 per cent to restaurants, 20 per cent for transportation, 16 for accommodation, 8 per cent to attractions and 5 per cent for miscellaneous expenditures.

In terms of economic benefit, Cooper said, visitors in the city on conventions are the most desirable tourist.

TOWN TALK

Apparently they don't know what day it is at the mail sorting centre in Toronto.

A parcel of books has just arrived in Victoria for Philippa Gould, 227—2075 Milton. And while it is now beyond the middle of May, the invoice was dated April 25, 1980.

But the real surprise was the post office's date stamp on the parcel. According to the marking, the parcel was handled on the 20th, not the 25th. Of March, not April. Of 1979, not 1980.

We realize Toronto's in a different time zone, but a different decade?

Six Canadian armed forces divers will swim from Vancouver to Victoria next week to raise money for the B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children.

Members of the Canadian Forces Fleet Diving Unit (Pacific) plan to swim about 130 kilometres in relays of 12 hours each to make the harbor-to-harbor passage.

They will leave Coal Harbor at Vancouver at 4:30 a.m. on May 29 and will swim through Boundary Pass and Haro Strait, finally arriving in the Inner Harbor. The trip is expected to take about 80 hours.

The divers will wear wet suits and fins during the swim. They will be accompanied by a 95-foot navy diving tender and some smaller craft.

The society is taking pledges on each mile completed by the swimmers. Those interested in placing pledges can do so by phoning the society at 382-3171.

The career exploration class at Central junior secondary school is getting into the job-finding business for the entire student body.

Starting this week the class of 20, including three boys and 17 girls, will accept job orders for part-time and summer jobs around the home or in business for the school's 900 students.

Ken Simms, 17, spokesman for the class, says no job is too small and a phone has been set up in the school library to accept orders between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. each school day. The number is 386-1514.

The job-seeking service was launched as a term project by teacher Malcolm Sneddon and is the first of its kind in the Victoria area.

Where does the man in charge of provincial parks in the Victoria area go when he wants a quiet weekend of camping?

Not to one of his parks, says Don Carruthers, but not because they don't have some of the nicest camping sites available.

Carruthers says he can never relax and enjoy camping in one of them because he's always on the watch for problems.

So he and his family rent some property near East Sooke for their camping.

It's fun to take the credit after somebody else does all the work.

That seemed to be what was going on at the official dinner last week launching Victoria's new jetfoil service.

Credit was given ten Victoria citizens, mostly provincial politicians, who collectively had done about 10 per cent of the work.

The two men who had done about 90 per cent of the job were totally ignored.

They are Sam Bawlf, who carried out the pioneering studies, and Cedric Steele, who put the package together in record time.

Strangely, neither man was asked to stand up and take a bow.

A third man who fought hard to get the jetfoil service, B.C. Development Corporation chairman Newell Morrison, was only recognized as an afterthought.

Watching the watchers of the parade

Rain or shine, Victoria Day means only one thing in these parts: the parade.

Threatening weather and the occassional drizzle to the contrary, parade watchers were out in full force along the Douglas Street route.

Parade watching is an art and the idea is to come prepared, as the folding chairs and umbrellas in the bottom photo indicate.

First prize for parade preparedness, however, went to the watcher who enjoyed all the comforts of home by pitching a tent on a flatbed truck and stayed warm by brewing coffee on a propane burner.

It's also a good idea to bring along a friend to cuddle in inclement weather, as does Christine Armstrong, 4, of 2533 Dowler (top left). Christine's friend goes by the name of Killer, so he's obviously on hand for protection, too.

Above all, dress for the weather. Four-year-old Chuck Halliday (top right) knows all about that. He's visiting from Montreal.

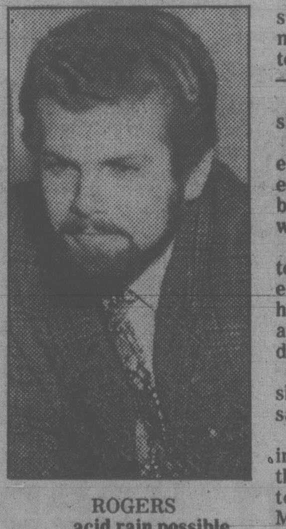
Fallout from the Mount St. Helens volcanic erruption could bring acid rain to southern B.C., Victoria seimologist Gary Rogers said today.

But the Victoria weather office said there is almost no chance that the volcanic ash will reach Vancouver Island.

The fine, whitish, pumice-like ash which has been discharged into the atmosphere since Sunday's explosive eruption has blanketed parts of southern B.C. and with rainfall, may produce some corrosive acid.

Canadian airlines have been warned to avoid flying through the ash but all flights were on schedule this morning.

Meanwhile, a University of B.C. geologist said the eruption will not trigger similar volcanic action in southwestern B.C.'s extinct volcanoes.



ROGERS
. . . acid rain possible

People in many parts of southern Vancouver Island from Salt Spring Island to San Juan River, and Esquimalt to Cowichan Lake heard the southern Washington volcano blow after weeks of preliminary activity.

There were rumbles and sharp reports — which many Victorians compared to cannon fire and thunder — around 9 a.m. Sunday.

Some said their houses shook and windows rattled.

Dogs and birds became erratic. Some pets barked excitedly and flocks of wild birds were seen to take wing suddenly.

Rogers said it is hard to tell whether there are more eruptions in the offing, but he believes it unlikely that any will match those Sunday.

"But I don't expect it to shut off, either," Rogers said.

He said he has been talking to seismologists from the University of Washington who have monitored Mount St. Helens closely.

Activity is expected to last at least for several more weeks, he said.

Two earthquakes of magnitude 5 started the eruption.

It came after a long period in which instruments picked up about 20 to 30 seismological events a day.

They were recorded here and at other sensing stations throughout the northwest.

The pressure has eased with Sunday's explosions and these events have dropped to two or three a day, Rogers said.

But with the phenomenon has come a harmonic tremor not previously recorded here with as much intensity.

Rogers said the noise — the sound of molten rock moving in the earth — is much louder and sustained than ever noted before.

An earthquake west of Vancouver Island Friday had no connection with the volcanic eruption, Rogers said.

Southwestern B.C. volcanoes are not likely to erupt even though some are sisters to Mount St. Helens, says Dr. Hugh Greenwood, the head of geology at UBC.

While the mountains are all part of the Cascade volcanic system, B.C.'s Garibaldi system is "a different breed of cat," Greenwood said.

The Garibaldi chain around Squamish, about 70 kilometres northeast of here, is composed of older mountains that show no signs of being active, Greenwood said.

This is true even though Mt. Baker, in northwest Washington, is considered more active.

Visibility was limited this morning in southern portions of Canada from the Kootenays to Saskatchewan, ranging from three to four kilometres.

The ash was as high as seven kilometres over Canada but not thick enought to pose an immediate problem.

Air Canada has had to re-route some of its flights into California because they fly through the centre of the problem in Washington, Montana and eastern Oregon.

Flights across Canada were not affected.

Air Canada flights from Alberta to California and from Toronto to California took about 30 minutes longer than usual as pilots avoided the flyash.

In Victoria, the 36 U.S. bands that participated in the Victoria Day parade were getting out all right, although some had to wait until today to get home.

Bands from the Yakima Valley got home safely by bus Monday afternoon although they had to travel slowly.

They phoned Victoria parade organizers to confirm their safe return home.

Bands from southern U.S. states expecting to fly home today.

West coast airlines were not experiencing difficulties, although some were re-routed to avoid flying through the ash.

The main coastal highway south was open.

Gas victim recovering

A Victoria man whose clothing burst into flame when a can of gasoline caught fire Friday is in satisfactory condition at Victoria General Hospital.

Michael Paine, 37, of 1126 Richardson, was walking in the 600 block Linden carrying an open can of fuel and paused to light a cigaret.

Householders heard him call for help and smothered the flames.

Reid controversy hitting peak

This is the week when the controversy over the Victoria convention centre should peak.

There are three public meetings on consecutive nights this week where the $8 million convention centre will be the central topic.

Tonight at 7:30 in the James Bay Community School, 140 Oswego, former mayor Peter Pollen is the featured speaker at a gathering of those opposed to a trade and conference centre on the old Reid site.

It is sponsored by the James Bay Residents' League. Pollen will present a series of slides on the Inner Harbor and harbors around the world to back up his argument that Victoria's downtown waterfront must be kept open.

Wednesday night is the big public hearing at city hall on the rezoning of the provincially-owned property — now a special harbor commercial district — to include public buildings such as a convention centre. It also starts at 7:30.

City council usually holds these hearings at its regular biweekly Thursday night meetings, but the convention centre created so much controversy after plans were first unveiled earlier this year that it set aside one whole evening.

Anyone may speak on the topic.

On Thursday night, council will discuss the related question of whether to issue a development permit to the Provincial Capital Commission, which is building the centre for the B.C. government.

Although the public may not participate in this debate, there is a 20-minute question period at the beginning of the council meeting at 7:30 in which residents may offer their opinions.

The PCC plans to lease the finished project to the Pan-Pacific Conference and Trade Centre Society, a group of downtown businessmen, headed by dentist Dr. Arne Lane, who have been organizing the convention centre for the past 18 months.

Islanders see fun in weekend escape

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — Home ice and all, the impression came through clearly: New York Islanders figured they got off easy in a 5-2 victory over Philadelphia Flyers on Monday night.

"We didn't play that well tonight and we still won, and that's the fun of it," said right winger Mike Bossy, whose ninth playoff goal gave the Islanders a 1-0 lead on a power play in the eighth minute of play.

"We got that 2-0 lead and those guys kept coming and coming," added Bob Nystrom, another Islander right winger ready to explain New York's pained concern.

The Islanders enjoy a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series in which they hope to win their first National Hockey League playoff title — the Stanley Cup.

The Islanders ripped the Flyers 6-2 — Philadelphia scored the only goals of the third period — in the third game Saturday night.

New York got five power-play goals and one short-handed, the latter was scored by Lorne Henning, to tie a playoff record. It was the seventh short-handed goal by the Islanders in the playoffs, another post-season record.

The Flyers were scoreless in six power-play opportunities and stretched their impotence in that regard in two games here to 0 for 11 with five more futile efforts Monday night.

Butch Goring made it 2-0 at 13:06 of the first period, then the Flyers made it close as John Paddock scored the only goal of the second period at 1:35.

Bryan Trottier's wining goal at 6:06 of the third period was followed by a Ken Linseman goal for the Flyers to make it 3-2.

But Nystrom and Clark Gillies, who assisted on the two first-period goals, wrapped it up at 12:35 and 14:08, respectvely.

"We missed a lot of scoring opportunities and I started saying 'Hey, the breaks are going the wrong way,'" said Nystrom. "I was a little scared."

Among the reason for Nystrom's concern were three breakaways by teammates that went for naught in the second period — by Bossy, Wayne Merrick and Bob Bourne.

"They had us on the run, in the second period, but Smitty came up with some big saves," said Trottier of New York goaltender Billy Smith.

"I think we lost our momentum when we were missing those breakaways, but we didn't lose our hungriness or our poise."

"I got to say we were a little bit sluggish out there," said Nystrom, continuing the Islanders' refrain. "We weren't playing as well as we have.

"But I have to say they were playing awfully well. It was an awfully hectic in the first two periods. They got where they are because they never quit."

Pete Peeters, in goal for the Flyers after Phil Myre surrendered six goals in the third game, turned in 22 saves in trying to thwart the Islanders.

Smith made 34 stops.

The victory was a record 14th this spring for Smith. The playoff mark had been 12 — by Ken Dryden of Montreal Canadiens.

The Flyers tried to imitate a brave face even while lauding the Islanders, fifth over-all in the regular season compared with the first-place Flyers.

"We always tend to make things difficult, so we'll just have to put our backs to the wall and win the next three games," said Philadelphia captain Mel Bridgman.

"They're playing good defensive hockey, and they're getting good goaltending," he said of the Islanders.

Belmont race Risk's revenge?

BALTIMORE (AP) — It's hard to imagine a turf event that would have the national impact of the ill-fated match race in the summer of '75 between Kentucky Derby champion Foolish Pleasure and the sensational, undefeated filly, Ruffian, but one is in the making.

That is the prospective return duel at New York's Belmont Park on June 7 between Genuine Risk, the first filly in 65 years to win the Derby, and Codex, the California comet whose rider, Angel Cordero, is alleged to have "done her wrong" in last Saturday's Preakness.

Codex, winner of the 105th Preakness by a shattering 4¾ lengths after a brush with Genuine Risk on the final turn, is committed. Trainer LeRoy Jolley says the filly's chances of keeping the date are 50-50, but more encouraging is the offended filly's owner, Diana Firestone.

"The Belmont was in our original plans," she said. "If she is all right, I assume those plans still hold."

It shouldn't be hard to generate enthusiasm for this proposed renewal of the Battle of the Sexes.

First of all, it would almost certainly decide three-year-old honors for the year. Secondly, it would afford the filly a shot at revenge and offer recourse to the multitudes who are screaming their heads off that Genuine Risk was cheated by refusal of Maryland's stewards to honor the foul claim of beaten jockey Jacinto Vasquez.

There hasn't been a racing incident in years that has so aroused the populace.

The Sun reported receiving a flood of telephoned complaints from all sections of country. Telegrams and letters of protest were piling up in the offices of the Maryland Racing Commission.

Cordero's alleged "bump-and-run" tactic, which is more familiar in pro football than in horse racing, has ignited a controversy that may sizzle for years.

Did the horses bump? Did Cordero's flailing crop strike the filly and make her break stride? Films failed to show conclusively. Still, there was no question that the filly was inhibited and was shorn of her desire to run.

The outcome was little more satisfactory to the winners than to the losers. Thus a rematch in the 1½-mile Belmont Stakes — third leg of U.S. thoroughbred racings' Triple Crown — is a welcome opportunity for both.

Observers already have begun relating it to The Big Match Race, staged at Belmont July 6, 1975.

Tragically, Ruffian, the filly who had won all 10 of her races, shattered her right ankle while protecting her lead in the race against Foolish Pleasure and had to be destroyed.

Genuine Risk has similarly captured the fancy of sports followers, winning her first six races before being thrown against the boys. She finished third in the Wood Memorial — where the winner Plugged Nickle also drifted out in the stretch — won the Derby and came in second behind the stout-running Codex in the Preakness.

Genuine Risk was only the second filly to win in 106 Derbies.

Just as society once thought women should wear veils and retire to the kitchen after dinner, so horsemen felt fillies had no place on the track with colts. But times are changing.

"You're going to see more fillies in the big races," says trainer Jolley. "Genuine Risk has shown the way."

SLOW GETTING TO FIRST, a Nanaimo player is about to be put out by Stockers North Americans' first baseman Lori Skinner while pitcher Debbie Derkson watches in background during semi-final game in Billy Griffith women's softball tournament Monday at Hyacinth Park. New mate helps as Irish cut loose

Victoria Shamrocks, bouyed by some long-awaited awards from last season and a new clubmate, romped to a 23-7 victory over Nanaimo Timbermen in a chippy Western Lacrosse Association game Monday night at Memorial Arena.

In another game, Coquitlam Adanacs edged Vancouver Burrards, 17-15, at Coquitlam.

The Irish received their Mann Cup rings, symbolic of winning the national title last season, at the game and were joined by Tarey Pollock.

Pollock, who played for Esquimalt Legion in the Western Major Junior League and was picked up for several games last year by the Rocks, was acquired in a cash deal from Nanaimo Timbermen before the game. He had refused to report to Nanaimo.

Jim Lynch scored five goals and assisted on four other markers to lead the Shamrock attack while Jim Boyd added four goals and Pollock and Kevin Alexander scored three each in a game marred by 101 minutes in penalties, 61 of them to Nanaimo.

Gerry Cadwallader, Chris Hall and Rick Baker scored two goals each for Victoria, which had dropped a 12-8 decision to the Adanacs in Coquitlam on Saturday night, while singles were added by Bill Marechek and Mike Yager.

Doug Angrove and Ron McNeil set the pace for Timbermen with two goals each and singles were added by Pete Rushton, Ron Brown and Ted Greves.

Larry Smeltzer and Mike Duch combined for 44 saves in Victoria net while Mac Maude and Earl Nicholson stopped 38 shots for Nanaimo.

Mike Reelie led the way with three goals in Coquitlam's win over Vancouver while Mark Valastin, Jim Acheson, Kevin Parsons and Ray Mattinson counted for two goals each.

On Saturday, the Rocks ran out of steam in the late going.

Alexander led Victoria marksmen with three goals, Lynch and Boyd added two each and Paul Michael scored once.

Tonight in sports

Sports fans in the Greater Victoria area have softball, baseball, rugby and lacrosse to pick from tonight.

All the softball and baseball games start at 6:30.

In softball, Vidalin Construction faces Victoria Athletics and Strathcona Stingers take on Island Dryco Breakers in Victoria-Saanich Senior Women's League play at Hyacinth Park.

At Macdonald Park, Mega-Power meets Mayfair Insurance and The Rebels play Trafalgar Legion in Macdonald Men's League action.

And, in the Sidney Men's League at Sanscha Park, Salties clash with Harvey's Sporting Goods.

The lone baseball game is in the Victoria Cosmopolitan Senior League with Capital Radiators meeting Quadra Warehouse at Lambrick Park.

Rugby fans have a special treat in store as the B.C. Selects and a Wales XV square off at 7 in an international exhibition match at Royal Athletic Park.

And, in lacrosse, Esquimalt Legion takes on Burnaby Cablevision in a Western Canada Major Junior League game at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Italians, Dutch vote 'go'

Times News Services

Italy's National Olympic Committee (CONI) today voted to attend the Moscow Summer Games, joining several other prominent European countries that have defied pro-boycott wishes of their governments.

The committee voted 29-3 to send a team to Moscow, despite a recommendation by the Italian government to boycott the Games. The cabinet had issued the boycott call on Monday, stressing that if CONI decided to send a team to Moscow, the government would not allow the use of the Italian flag or the national anthem.

On Monday, the Netherlands' National Olympic Committee voted, by a 49-19 margin, to go against the urgings of the Dutch parliament and cabinet and send a team to Moscow. The Dutch government had called for a boycott to protest alleged Soviet human rights violations and the military intervention in Afghanistan.

But at least two Dutch athletic teams — one with a chance for a gold medal — will support the boycott. Leaders of the Dutch field hockey and equestrian federations said today they would stay home. The field hockey team was considered a contender for a gold medal.

The Dutch teams attending will not participate in the opening ceremony and will not bear the Dutch flag during the games as gestures of protest — nor will the Dutch anthem be played.

The Olympic Council of Ireland voted 19-1 Monday to defy the advice of its government and send a team to Moscow. The lone dissenter was the Irish Boxing Federation, which said it would not go.

Earlier, Britain and Portugal — among major European countries — also resisted their governments' calls to boycott.

In other developments, Burma said it would not field a team because of the lack of top-level competitors, and New Zealand Prime Minister Robert D. Muldoon asked his country's National Olympic Committee to reconsider its decision to compete.

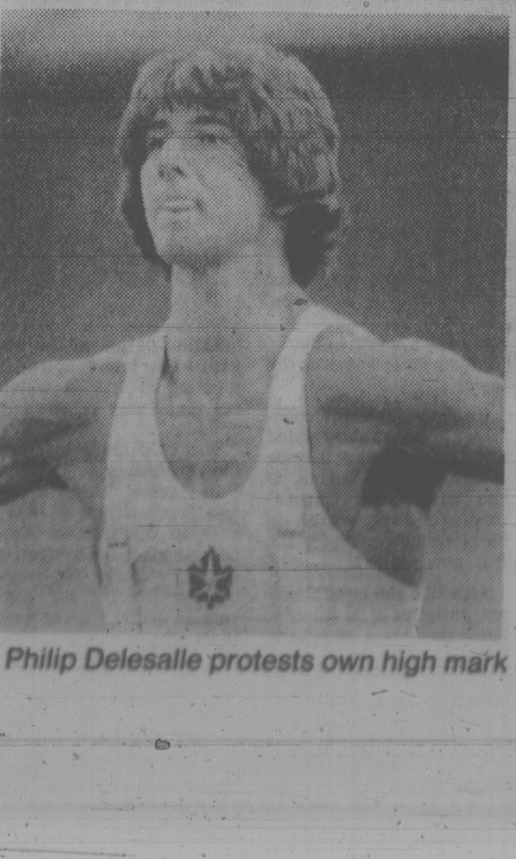
Belgium's Olympic Committee reaffirmed its earlier decision to send a team to Moscow, and the Swedish and Austrian Olympic committees decided officially, as expected, to compete.

Meanwhile, with the Olympic movement locked in a life-or-death struggle, Lord Killanin is preparing to step down as president of the International Olympic Committee.

Killanin says he has rejected suggestions that he stay on after his eight-year term ends this summer.

"I considered it, but after the events of the last few months, I have decided it is the right time to hand over to a new president."

Delesalle seeks perfection, keeps title



Philip Delesalle protests own high mark

Times News Services

For Philip Delasalle, perfection is something to strive for, but rarely attain.

So when the judges gave the Victoria native a perfect score of 10 for some work on the pommel horse Saturday at the Canadian gymnastics championships at Alma, Que., he was unhappy. He felt he had made two mistakes.

And that's what he told the judges. They listened to his argument, and agreed to mark him down to 9.85.

"I don't like scores I don't deserve," said the 21-year-old gymnast par excellence. "I don't want good marks for reputation, only for performance.

"And there were a few things wrong with this performance.

"But don't let me sound like I'm unhappy with the judges. Their work here all weekend was very good. At world events, the judging is usually a lot less consistent."

The judges were consistent with Delasalle, who is ranked 12th in the world, giving him enough points to win four medals Sunday in the individual competition — including two gold — as he claimed his fifth consecutive men's overall title.

Jean Choquette of Montreal was second in the men's overall with for medals, including one gold. Ontario took both team titles.

Owen Walstom, also of Victoria, finished seventh over-all and had a third on the high bar.

The women's title was taken by Karen Kelsall of Surrey, who won four events during the weekend competition.

Val Hansen of Port Alberni finished sixth overall in the novice women's division and had a fifth-place finish in unenven bars while clubmate Bev Beres placed third in uneven bars in the same class. Heather Cameron of the Nanaimo Gymnastics Club finished fourth on balance beam.

Delasalle won the individual pommel horse event with a 9.95 score and the uneven bars with 9.85, drawing thunderous applause from an appreciative crowd of 2,000 in a junior-college gymnasium here.

Then on the horizontal bar, usually his best event, Delasalle tried something new and blew it totally, losing what would have been his third gold of the day.

"I just felt like having fun," he said later.

The gold went to Quebec's Jean Choquette with a 9.0 score.

Choquette, 21, will be back next year, which is good news for Canadian gymnastics officials as he is a promising international competitor. That they'd also like to have Delasalle back goes without saying.

But he may have had his last hurrah here.

"The whole Olympic thing was a real disappointment," he said, referring to Canada's decision to boycott the Moscow Games.

"For the last 12 years, I've centred my life around gymnastics. I've spent 10 hours a day on gymnastics. Now I'm 21, and I want to do other things, things I've never had time for before.

"I'd like to find out what it's like to take a vacation. And I need time to think."

Seven Islanders to face Wales

Teams from the Vancouver Island Rugby Union will supply seven players for the B.C. Selects side scheduled to meet a Welsh XV in an international exhibition match tonight at Royal Athletic Park.

Game time is at 7.

Props K.C. Walt and Ron McInness and hooker Ray Rogers were picked from James Bay Athletic Association along with second-row man Hans de Goede and No. 8 Gary Johnston.

The other member of the second row is Chris Fowler of Oak Bay Wanders and Gary Grant of UVic was picked as a flanker.

Rounding out the side are flanker Jim Donaldson of Richmond, scrum half Preston Wiley of UBC Old Boys, outside half John Billingsley of Vancouver Meralomas, centres Randy Palm of Surrey and Andrew Bibby of UBC; wings Spence McTavish and Rob Greig, both of UBCOB; and fullback Graham Taylor of UBC.

Chuck Shergold of JBAA, Larry Chung of Castaways, Ken Peace of Surrey, Ro Hindson of UBCOB, Peter Mortifee of UBC and Gary Hirayama of Ex-Brits were

The B.C. team, which contains 10 players who will also play for Canada against Wales at Swangard Stadium in Burnaby on Saturday, is coached by Jim Ryan and managed by Ken Yates, both of Vancouver.

Wales taught a Vancouver-area side an important lesson Saturday.

You can't play rugby without a ball.

The Welsh consistently denied Vancouver possession of the ball both in the mauls and lineouts and came out on top, 35-4.

At the same time, Anti-Assassins came up with a strong kicking game to trip JBAA 22-13 in an exhibition match Saturday at Royal Athletic.

The touring British all-star side was ahead 16-13 with James Bay pressing hard in the final minutes when a mishandled kick before approximately 1,200 fans put the match out of reach for the home side.

Peter Williams scooped up the ball and scrambled across the line for a try and Nick Spaven kicked the convert to give Anti-Assassins the victory.

James Bay carried the play for the first 15 minutes and took a lead when Murray Allen kicked a penalty goal. Paul Coupland and Paul Vaeson scored tries for JBAA and Allen booted a convert.

Steve Smith and Simon Langford scored the other tries for the British side.

Big numbers, mutuel jump mark harness racing return

By BILL WALKER

Harness racing returned to Sandown with a bang on the weekend with big numbers the story.

Opening day Saturday and the Victoria Day holiday Monday drew a record total of 4,247 fans while the mutuel figures set new standards as well. The punters pushed $155,562 through the windows on Saturday and $142,247 on a wet and rainy holiday afternoon for a total of $297,809. This is an increase of about 30 per cent over last year.

The mutuels also took first billing away from some excellent racing with the Triactor, a betting feature offered for the first time at Sandown, proving extremely popular and obviously what people were looking forward to.

And on Saturday it was a case of most looking on with anticipation to another day after the 10th race, as the opening Triactor of Habitant Anik, Baron Lea A and Matsqui Miss paid off boxcars for four lucky bettors.

It returned a whopping $2,719.80 for a $2 wager and half of that on one $1 wager, which can made under the new system by betting what is called a 'wheel'.

The triactor is a wager in which the bettor must pick the first three horses in the correct order of finish in the 10th race only.

A "wheel" is a $42 bet (with an eight-horse field), the punter playing one horse to all the rest at $1 per try. The payoff is half the normal $2 wager.

On Monday, the reward wasn't as great but it took a picture to separate the three horses on the wire — Dusty Tex, Fort Tilden, The Wild Weed — as they finished that way ~~to return~~ a still handsome $442.40.

Joe Hudon and Tom Burke cashed in on the two features on the respective days.

Hudon, who had been booed only minutes earlier when the highly-favored Cut The Deck ran down the line in the eighth race Saturday, returned to pilot 8-1 Sheraton N to victory with a nose decision over Irish Flame in the $8-10,000 claiming handicap.

On Monday Burke was in the sulky for Satin Satan who took the Preferred-Invitational Handicap.

Miles Armstrong took driving honors the first day with three winners and Grant Hollingsworth was Monday's best, also with three.

The new mutuel machines were a definite improvement over the old. These are four-way machines where a patron may wager win, place, show or Exactor.

The Triactor appeared to take a little getting used to for most, especially as fans attempted to figure out their boxes and wheels.

"But they'll get used to it," as general manager Jim Keeling Sr. said. "It was by far the most popular wager at Cloverdale."

There were a few bugs, naturally, but none serious. As a matter of fact the Saturday crowd may not have been aware of it. But a pin broke in the starting gate and for a time that threatened a delay. However, John Todhunter was quick to the rescue, fashioned a new pin in jig time and everything was normal again.

There was also something unique — an outdoor tea room behind the stands. And it went over fairly well after people found out about it on Saturday. On Monday anything of that nature outside was a disaster.

However, it should sell.

Racing resumes Thursday at 5:30.

Saturday and Monday results are on page 26.

Stockers, Drug Mart meet later

Stockers North Americans, the Victoria senior "A" women's team, and Tillicum Shoppers Drug Mart of the Victoria-Saanich Senior Women's League will have to wait until next weekend to determine the winner of the Billy Griffith tournament.

The final between the two squads was rained out Monday and a specific time and date for the game hasn't been decided.

Earlier in the day, Stockers advanced to the final with an 8-7 decision over Nanaimo while Tillicum won the other semi-final 3-1 over New York-New York.

Debbie Derkson pitched the victory for Stockers, scattering nine hits while pushing her record for the tourney to 3-0. Lee Wallace led Stocker batters with three hits in three trips to the plate while Norma Wood went two-for-three and drove in two runs.

Karen Perkins extended her record in the three-day tourney to 4-0 by pitching a three-hitter for Tillicum, striking out two and walking none.

Marion Ell and Linda Rebbit both were two-for-four to spark Tillicum batters.

Stockers finished atop Zone I during round-robin preliminary play with a 4-0 record while New York-New York was second at 3-1.

Tillicum (3-0) and Nanaimo (2-1) were first and second, respectively, in Zone II.

Quinn coach of year

UNIONDALE, N.Y (AP) — Pat Quinn, who guided Philadelphia Flyers to a record 35-game unbeaten streak and the regular season championship with 116 points, has been named coach of the year by the National Hockey League Broadcasters Association.

Quinn received 110 points in the balloting for the Jack Adams Trophy, named in honor of the legendary coach of Detroit Red Wings. Scotty Bowman of Buffalo Sabres, the 1977 winner, was second with 42 points.

Two baseball games get 'volcanoed out'

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Two Pacific Coast League baseball games were "volcanoed out" Monday.

The Albuquerque Dukes were scheduled to leave Albuquerque on Monday, fly to Denver and Spokane, then go to Vancouver for their game.

But when they arrived at the Albuquerque International Airport, they learned that the Spokane airport had been closed due to volcanic ash from the eruption of Mount St. Helens.

The Ogden at Spokane game also was postponed due to volcanic ash.

Strike might cool Dodgers

By The Canadian Press

A major league baseball strike might do what no National League baseball team has been able to do for the last month — cool out Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It's a shame the labor relations are as they are," said Burt Hooton, unwinding after pitching the Dodgers to a 5-1 win over St. Louis Cardinals. "We've got a couple of guys going good, but that's the chance we took when we voted to strike."

The players say they'll go on strike at midnight Thursday night if an agreement is not reached before then with the club owners. In the weeks heading towards the bargaining-table showdown, the Dodgers have been burning up the league.

Monday's win at home was the eighth in nine games and 19th in the last 24 for the Dodgers who sit in first place in the NL West, two games up on Houston Astros and Cincinnati Reds.

The Dodgers warmed up for the Cards by dispatching of Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 on Sunday and 3-1 on Saturday.

In the American League, left-handers Ron Guidry of New York and Ken Kravec of Chicago had everything fall into place in a pair of 1-0 victories.

Guidry, whose 4-0 record belies his inconsistent pitching this year, hurled a six-hitter for his first shutout as the Yankees edged Detroit Tigers.

Kravec, who led Chicago with 15 victories a year ago but hadn't pitched in 12 days, yielded four hits before getting ninth-inning help from Ed Farmer as the White Sox nipped Minnesota Twins.

"I felt that all I had to do was pitch," said Kravec, 2-3. "I didn't fool around.

In other AL games, Kansas City Royals shaded Oakland A's 6-5 in 11 innings, California Angels outlasted Texas Rangers 3-2 in 13 innings, Baltimore Orioles downed Cleveland Indians 4-1, Toronto Blue Jays trimmed Boston Red Sox 7-2 and Seattle Mariners turned back Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 in 12 innings.

Kirbys, Czechs win out

Vancouver Kirby's and Ruzomberok of Czechoslovakia collected victories in senior women's basketball exhibition games Saturday at McKinnon Gymnasium.

Joanne Sargent scored 16 points as Kirby's trimmed Vancouver Island All-Stars 60-42 while the Czechs defeated an all-star team from Seattle, 75-60.

Cindy Smith scored 14 points for the Island team.

Vlasta Vrbilovan scored 22 points for the Czechs and Zoenka Mottlova added 18.

Can halt baldness Finnish scientists say

LONDON — Two Finnish scientists said they have developed a scalp treatment that can halt baldness and even start new hair growing in many cases.

The scientists, who are putting the treatment on sale in the form of a solution, say that among volunteers who applied it to their scalp for 28 weeks, hair growth resumed in 60 per cent of the cases and hair loss decreased within four weeks.

The claim, however, was greeted with initial reservation by some medical experts.

The product contains a synthetic detergent, which clears away dead hairs and other dirt clogging the follicles — the tiny sacs in which hair grows.

Another ingredient, a compound, then sets in motion a process which allegedly results in the growth of new hair.

Reutemann winner on rain-slick track

MONTE CARLO (AP) — It looked like the Belgian Grand Prix all over again — France's Didier Pironi in the lead from the start of the Monaco Grand Prix and only 20 laps to go to a second straight victory.

But as he swung through the fast left-hand turn into the square in front of the famous casino, his Ligier jumped out of gear.

It spun into the rail and let veteran Carlos Reutemann of Argentina through to his 10th Grand Prix victory in 121 starts.

The last 20 laps were the hardest of the race as rain increased to make the streets a skating rink for the 500-horsepower cars on slick, dry-road tires.

Reutemann tiptoed the car around, cruising slowly and delicately, knowing he had a cushion of more than a minute over the Ligier of France's Jacques Lafitte.

Third home, to take a one-point lead in the 1980 world championship, was Brazil's Nelson Piquet in a Brabham. The slowdown forced by the rain allowed Lafitte to hold off Piquet, who had come dangerously close as the brakes of the Frenchman's Ligier started fading in the punishing conditions.

Only nine of the 20 starters were running at the finish, four having been eliminated 100 yards from the start in a mass pileup in which the Tyrrell of Ireland's Derek Daly flew over three other cars. None of the drivers was injured.

Another crash victim was France's Rene Arnoux, his Renault pushed into the barriers by Ricardo Patrese's Arrows. But he still has 21 championship points to Piquet's 22.

German Jochen Mass in the other Arrows was placed fourth.

Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., overcoming tire problems that sidelined Ferrari team-mate and defending champion Jody Scheckter, was fifth. Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil in his own Fittipaldi was sixth.

Mario Andretti had to pit his Lotus 10 laps from the finish with suspension and gear selection problems and finished seventh.

Ferrari and Renault were back in the field because of tire problems — Arnoux was never in contention before his crash — and Villeneuve made fifth through sheer brilliance as Ferrari also still has not found the form of its 1979 championship year.

Villeneuve has three points to tie for 12th place in the driving points race after seven of the circuit's 16 races.

U.S. champ wins, Canadian crashes

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Misfortune for Canadian champion Steve Gervais meant victory Sunday for U.S. Superbike champion Wes Cooley as the American took first place in the Molson Victoria Day Sprint for Formula One motorcycles at Mosport Park.

Gervais, 24, of Toronto, was leading the feature event on the 13th of 15 laps when the rear wheel of his Yamaha lost traction on a turn. Gervais crashed to the pavement but was not injured while Cooley, of Mission Viejo, Calif., went on to win on a Suzuki.

33. Tom Sneva, Spokane, Wash., No.89, McLaren-Cosworth, 185.290

(Tom Sneva qualified the No.9 Phoenix-Cosworth in 14th position last week but crashed it in practice and must start the substituted No.89 McLaren at the rear of the lineup.)

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The largest group of rookie starters since 1965 leaves a lot of veterans, including three former rookies of the year and the only woman driver in Indianapolis 500 history, on the sidelines for the May 25 race.

Ten rookie drivers qualified in the two weekends of time trials. With the return of a handful of other veterans such as Mario Andretti, who missed last year's race, that means 16 drivers who took the starting flag a year ago are not in the lineup this time.

Some, such as Roger McCluskey and Wally Dallenbach, retired voluntarily. Others, like Salt Walther and Sheldon Kinser, qualified for the race but were bumped from the lineup by faster cars.

Some, like Steve Krisiloff and Larry Rice, didn't have rides. Others, like Howdy Holmes, Joe Saldana, Lee Kunzman, Vern Schuppan, John Mahler and Janet Guthrie, still were waiting in line to qualify when rain washed out their chances Sunday afternoon.

"Until the rains came, it looked pretty good," said Guthrie, who had driven in three previous Indy 500 races and finished ninth in 1978.

Guthrie never got a chance to qualify. Her car was in line for an attempt early enough, but her team-mate, Johnny Parsons, blew an engine while driving it in pre-qualification practice Sunday morning. By the time the car was ready to go again, it was the raining.

Guthrie, driving for the Lindsey Hopkins team, had turned a lap at 184 miles an hour in practice more than a week ago. But she never got above 181 m.p.h. last week, and that was why Parsons was testing the car before the final qualification period, she said.

"We encountered a mystifying handling problem earlier in the week, and they (the team) though Johnny could sort it out quicker than I could since we were running out of time."

Parsons, whose father won the race 30 years ago, earned a third-row start for his seventh race during the first weekend of qualifications.

Guthrie, visibly upset with her current situation — Indy was to have been the only race her sponsor, Texaco, was committed to running — said she wasn't sure of her racing future.

"I hope to come back here next year in a full racing program, with a front-running team. If I can't do it that way, I won't be back . . . probably."

Besides Guthrie, the list of missing starters from a year ago include Holmes, the seventh-place finisher and rookie of the year; Rice, who shared rookie-of-the-year honors with Rick Mears in 1978, and Schuppan, the top rookie driver in 1976.

Besides Andretti, the 1969 Indy winner who passed up last year's race to compete in the Monaco Grand Prix, other veterans back in the lineup after missing at least one race were Jerry Karl, Larry Cannon and Gary Bettenhausen. Two spots were lost this year with the return of the starting field to the normal 33 cars.

Last year, amid cries of cheating and threatened lawsuits, qualifications were extended an extra day and two more cars were allowed to start the race.

The 10 rookie qualifiers this year — headed by Tim Richmond, Gordon Smiley and Roger Rager — is the largest group of first-year drivers to earn Indy starts since Andretti, Al Unser and Gordon Johncock led an 11-man contingent in 1965.

Stone beats an old foe

Gordie Stone came out on top after renewing an old rivalry Saturday in the stock car portion of the program at Western Speedway.

Stone won the 25-lap main event and defeated Al Miller, an old rival who was visiting from his new base in Calgary.

The scheduled stock car and jalopy program on Monday was rained out.

Miller, driving his old 1967 Cougar, took command of the race on the fourth lap and held out until the 22nd when a yellow caution flag tightened the pack.

Then Stone grabbed the front-running position and stayed in the lead the rest of the way.

Gord Gicas then passed Miller to finish second while the visiting driver placed third.

Dale Taylor, who won the first two main events this year, had electrical problems in his 1968 Firebird and had to settle for fourth place in the main event after missing the trophy dash and withdrawing from one of the heat races.

Jim Smith set a new track record of 19.525 seconds during time trials.

In the jalopy section of the program, Ed Court won his first main event in more two years of racing.

Court took over the lead midway through the 20-lap affair and then cruised to the checkered flag.

Earnhardt holds lead, first to hit $200,000

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt has maintained his lead over Richard Petty in the NASCAR points race despite a 10th place finish Sunday in the Mason-Dixon 500 at Dover Downs International Speedway in Delaware.

Earnhardt has compiled 1,844 points, followed by Petty, 1,782; Cale Yarborough, 1,707; Bobby Allison, who edged Petty for the win at Dover Downs, 1,609; Darrell Waltrip, 1,629; Jody Ridley, 1,566; Benny Parsons, 1,565; Harry Gant, 1,489; Dave Marcis, 1,460; and Terry Labonte, 1,404.

Earnhardt also continues to lead the money-winning standings, becoming the first National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing competitor to top the $200,000 mark this season with a total of $204,310. He is followed by Bobby Allison, $163,705; Petty, $159,600; Buddy Baker, $153,610; Waltrip, $145,225; Yarborough, $132,490; Parsons, $130,280; Ridley, $74,925; Neil Bonnett, $67,160; and Labonte, $63,080.

CATCH FOR BRIGHTON

BRIGHTON, England (Reuter) — Brighton of the English Soccer League's First Division has signed Israeli international midfielder Moshe Gariani for $100,000.

Flames will flicker in Calgary, but two still seek franchise

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Flames have not been saved and the National Hockey League club soon will be based in Calgary, club president Bob Kent said Monday.

"I don't think there's any question about that," Kent said.

He said the bidding for the franchise has come down to two interested parties — Vancouver real-estate developer Nelson Skalbania and the Seaman brothers, owners of the Calgary-based Bow Valley Industries.

Rumors swept Atlanta during the weekend that a Saskatchewan group was also interested in the Flames and that Coca-Cola was considering investing in the club and keeping them in Atlanta.

Coca-Cola denied the report and Kent said he was not aware of any such interest and knew of no alternative to the team moving to Calgary.

He also said a local Save Our Flames committee has not been encouraged in efforts to keep the team here.

"We are not looking for any short-term solutions," Kent said.

He added that he feels hockey cannot succeed on a long-term basis in Atlanta unless it consistently can draw capacity crowds and get a television contract.

Kent said he sees no prospects for the club obtaining the necessary TV revenues.

He would not discuss the figures being discussed in purchasing the Flames, but the Seaman brothers have been reported to have offered $14 million.

Skalbania said Friday night he had purchased the Flames for $16 million, but he later denied making the claim.

Kent said no transaction had been completed and negotiations with both groups will continue.

SERVICE AT FIRESTONE MEANS MORE THAN JUST REPLACING OLD PARTS.

When you come to Firestone for automotive service, we make sure you know what parts were replaced and why they needed replacing.

But service at Firestone means more. It means expert car care by qualified mechanics. It means national brand name parts like Champion and Moog. And it means sound advice on how you can reduce costly repairs by following regular preventive maintenance plans.

So you see, Firestone service means more than just replacing old parts.

TUNE-UP SHOULD BE CHECKED EVERY 18,000 km

WE USE ECHLIN IGNITION PARTS CHAMPION

At Firestone a tune-up means we install new points*, new condenser* and new rotor. We also adjust timing and carburetor and lubricate the heat riser valve. We check the distributor cap, cooling system hoses, spark plug wires, coil, PCV valve, air filter and gas line filter.

Our licensed mechanics take great care in making sure the job is done correctly the first time so that you get miles and miles of trouble free driving.

Oh yes, we also install new Champion spark plugs.

Lietzke jumps for joy after sinking birdie putt on final hole

Lietzke's analysis overlooks the truth

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — At 28, Bruce Lietzke admits he chokes a bit, marvels at Tom Watson and Ben Crenshaw, lacks a killer instinct and is leery of golfing stardom.

He lies. Or at least it seemed so Sunday.

The slender, curly-haired Lietzke gunned down Watson and Crenshaw in a shootout and swept to a one-shot, $54,000 verdict in the $300,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

He fired pressure-packed closing rounds of 71 and 69 on the treacherous par-70 Colonial course, scuttled a Crenshaw playoff bid with a clutch 25-foot putt and torpedoed Watson's ballyhooed Texas Bonanza.

"It was an exciting afternoon," he smiled.

Lietzke secured his fifth tour title with birdies at the 70th and 72nd holes, overtaking Crenshaw with his 25-footer at 18 for a four-round total of 271.

That nine-under-par figure stemmed largely from a record-tying 63 in the rain-delayed first round Friday and flurry of critical shots Sunday.

His longtime rival and fishing companion, Crenshaw, matched the closing 69 for a 272 and second-place money of $32,400.

"Well, there it goes again," sighed Crenshaw as he watched Listzke's putt disappeared in the cup at the final green. He said it was his seventh time as a runner-up.

"I'm getting a little tired of it," he grumbled.

Young Jeff Mitchell stripped five shots from par for a 65 and charged into third place two behind the champion and a stroke ahead of Watson and Doug Tewells at 274.

Watson hit town after four consecutive triumphs and needed a victory here to earn the $200,000 offered to the winner of last week's Byron Nelson and the Colonial.

"The iron at No. 9 was a $300,000 shot," said Watson, referring wryly to a crisply-struck approach that failed by inches to clear the pond guarding the green.

His double-bogey six crippled his bonanza bid but he miraculously remained a threat until a 50-foot birdie putt lipped the cup at the 71st hole.

"I'm disappointed. I didn't play better. It was really an exciting finish."

Instead of the potential $254,000 jackpot, Watson settled for $13,200.

Gladders in form in Incogs victory

Incogs, Cowichan and Nanaimo chalked up victories in Victoria and District Cricket Association matches at the weekend.

Incogs defeated Saanich by 106 runs at Beacon Hill Park and Cowichan dropped Alcos by 58 runs at Windsor Park on Sunday while Nanaimo clubbed Metchosin by 150 runs in a Saturday tussle.

Dave Gladders easily had the outstanding individual performance of the weekend.

He toppled eight wickets, including a hat trick, for the loss of only 14 runs while bowling for Incogs.

Scores and leading batsmen and bowlers:

INCOGS (154 for 9 declared): Batting — Jim Wenman 66, Rob Wilson 29 not out; Saanich bowling — John Newton 3 for 38. SAANICH (48, all out): Batting — Peter Howe 25 not out; Incogs bowling — Dave Gladders 8 for 14.

COWICHAN (117 all out): Batting — Howard Martin 58, Tim Lord 21; Alcos bowling — Steve Hanson 4 for 13, Bob McKay 3 for 18. ALCOS (59, all out): Batting — Trevor Bagot 17; Cowichan bowling — Lord 6 for 31, Martin 2 for 6.

Saturday

NANAIMO (182 for 4): Batting — Frank Dickinson 81, Dave Erwin 28 not out, Ozzie Greaves 23, Raty Telford 22. METCHOSIN (32, all out): Batting — Michael Barry 13; Nanaimo bowling — Erwin 5 for 12, John Skelly 3 for 17.

Rick ties record to beat the pros

Rick Gibson came home during the holiday weekend to beat the pros and grab first place in the annual Labatts Cedar Hill Open golf tournament.

Home, for Gibson, was the par-67 Cedar Hill course, of which he was a member when he won the provincial junior championship and also earned a place on the B.C. senior team at the Canadian Amateur tournament.

Now a Vancouver resident, Rick certainly appeared at home on the tricky Cedar Hill greens Sunday as he charged from off the pace with a course-record-equalling 59 to finish four strokes ahead of a pair of touring professionals, Bob Beauchemin of the Glen Meadows club and big-hitting Dave Barr of Kelowna.

Four strokes behind the pace-setting Beauchemin and tied for ninth place after carding a 66 in Saturday's opening round, Gibson turned in a spectacular putting display on the way to his eight-under-par 59 that equalled the record established last September by Vancouver pro Terry Wiens.

Beauchemin, who has campaigned on the Australian and Canadian pro tours, who had his southpaw swings in the groove enough Saturday to fashion a one-shot lead over Victoria pro Jim Rutledge and Vancouver amateur Keith Westover.

He posted a 67 Sunday to slip into a deadlock at 129 with Barr, who has taken shots at the money on the American tour. Barr who closed with a 63, and Beauchemin shared the top pro money and each collected $775.

Paul Beauchamp, a Vancouver amateur who had a pair of 65s, was fifth at 131, one shot ahead of Seattle pro Noel Dalziel.

Rutledge, who returned last week from a Texas mini-tour to defend the Cedar Hill title he won last year, damaged his chances on the second hole Sunday when he hit a trap with he tee shot and wound up with a double bogey. Trouble with water on the 11th cost Rutledge another double bogey and he wound up with $400 after posting a 69 for 132.

Also at 132 were three amateur aces — Westover, Dave Mick of Colwood and Gorge Vale's Dave Donaldson.

Another Gorge Vale member, Rick Casson, an eight-handicapper who won the handicap title title in the Vancouver Island Open, earlier this month, was another of the big winners in the event that packed $4,000 in pro money and amateur prizes valued at $6,000.

Firing rounds of 67 and 63 for 130 that his handicap reduced to a net 114, Casson collected the top handicap prize.

Sharing second place in the pursuit of handicap awards were Tom Graham (71-73), a 13-handicapper from Uplands and Cedar Hill's Lloyd Stevens (73-75). Both had net totals of 118.

No-hitters continue to escape Guenter

The time may not be ripe for Rob Guenter to churn out no-hitters, but the 25-year-old newcomer to the Victoria Budgets' mound staff isn't holding back with the shutouts.

The former Saskatoon resident, turning on some of his former teammates, out-duelled Gene McWillie as the Budgets shaded Saskatoon Allomatic A's 2-0 in their senior men's exhibition fastball meeting Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

Budgets came right back to win the second game, 4-0, behind the one-hit performance of southpaw Mark Smith to emerge with a 3-1 series triumph in the first of Victoria's 1980 "Super Series" engagements.

Teams swapped 2-1 victories Friday.

Guenter's shutout Saturday was his third in four starts for the defending provincial champions. Now 4-0, he also was Friday's winner but has yet to give up an earned run in his four games.

And for the second time in a week, Guenter lost no-hit perfection in the final inning. Les Howey's infield bouncer spoiled Guenter's no-hit bid with one out in the seventh inning.

The previous weekend, Guenter had retired the first 20 batters in order before his no-hit bid in a Northwest League game here was spoiled by Woodinville with two out in the seventh.

Guenter helped win his own game by singling in the third inning. He moved to second on a wild pitch and scored the winning run on a single by Carl Walker.

Smith, 4-1, also lost a no-hitter to a slow roller that failed to get through the infield.

Budgets capitalized on three Saskatoon errors to score all four runs in the third inning and provide Smith with ample working room.

Victoria returns to Northwest League action next weekend by facing Seattle Peterbilt Saturday and Seattle Westside on Sunday.

DONNA HORTON WHITE . . . swings to victory

White scores second victory

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) - Donna Horton White captured her second tour title of the year and of her career Sunday when Debbie Massey bogeyed the first hole of a sudden-death playoff in a $125,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at the Upper Montclair Country Club.

Massey sent her second shot on the par-4 first hole into a bunker beside the green and, after blasting to within 12 feet of the cup, missed a par putt.

White got down in two from 18 feet to clinch the championship and the $18,750 first prize. Last month, White, 26, registered the first victory of her three-year career at the Florida Lady Citrus.

Massey earned second-place money of $12,250. The two golfers had finished the regulation 54 holes tied at two-under-par 217.

White, six shots behind second-round leader Pat Bradley when the round began, qualified for the playoff by shooting a one-under 72. She missed a chance to win the tourney in regulation when she bogeyed the 16th and 17th holes and left a 20-foot birdie putt 11 inches short on the 18th.

Massey kept pace with a par round Sunday, needing three birdie putts to offset three bogeys.

Sandra Post, the Canadian who makes her home in Florida, fired a closing round 74 that left her at 220 — three strokes behind the leader in a tie for seventh place. She took a cheque for $3,667.

Bradley held a comfortable four-stroke lead going into the final 18 holes, but soared to a six-over 79 to finish one shot behind the leaders.

Bradley, who finished second six times last year, lost all but one shot of her advantage after nine holes by making the turn in three-over 40. She went three-over on the second nine, going all day without one birdie.

Codex has disputed victory; Risk a welt over her right eye

BALTIMORE (AP) — Genuine Risk, the most beloved filly in the United States, has a welt over her right eye, a souvenir from Saturday's controversial 105th Preakness Stakes that ended her bid to become the first of her sex to win U.S. thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

Angel Cordero Jr., who rode Tartan Stables' Codex to a 4¾-length victory over Genuine Risk, was absolved of any wrong-doing by the stewards after a foul claim was lodged by the filly's jockey, Jacinto Vasquez.

But the controversy lingers because of the following Genuine Risk attracted since May 3, when she became the first Kentucky Derby-winning filly in 65 years and because many television viewers, perhaps prompted by race analyst Eddie Arcaro, saw the race differently through the eyes of ABC cameras than the Pimlico Racetrack stewards did.

Arcaro, a former jockey and six-time winner of the Preakness, observed that Codex should have been disqualified for interfering with Genuine Risk as they battled for the lead entering the stretch.

Not only did Vasquez claim the filly was bumped by Codex, he said that Cordero reached over with his whip and hit the filly.

After checking the filly Sunday, trainer LeRoy Jolley was asked if Genuine Risk's welt could have been the result of Cordero's whip.

"I don't know how it happened," he said. "It could have been from clods of dirt.

"Anything can happen in a race."

But Jolley's assistant, John Nazareth, was still bitter about the outcome, saying about the welt: "Where else could it have come from than Cordero's whip?" He also called the stewards "incompetent people" who should be fired.

Viewers voiced their disapproval to local newspapers and radio stations while Pimlico security officials were tipped by a New York police agency that a bomb threat had been made against Cordero shortly after the race. Officials searched Cordero's rented limousine and his belongings in the jockeys' room but found nothing.

Cordero has been implicated by accusation in a New York race-fixing scandal, along with Vasquez and Jorge Velasquez, rider of the Preakness third-place finisher, Colonel Moran.

Jolley admitted that rough riding tactics, which Cordero sometimes employs, are part of the game.

"The unfortunate part," he said. "The part nobody wants."

Cordero denied he bumped or used the whip on Mrs. Diana Firestone's Genuine Risk.

"I didn't touch the horse," he said.

State steward J. Fred Colwill said of the incident:

"Cordero definitely did come off the rail as Vasquez approached him with the filly. Cordero went slightly wide, but in our opinion it did not hinder the filly enough for disqualification. The stewards did not see the winner hit Genuine Risk as claimed by Vasquez."

Vasquez said: "He (Cordero) did his job the best he could to beat me, but he hit the filly over the head with the whip. I thought this was a racetrack, not a rodeo. I think they should take his number down. It is no different than any other race, no matter what the purse is.

"They took the heart out of my filly when he brushed me."

"When a horse goes a mile in 1:36 and gets bothered, it's tough to regenerate," Jolley added.

Wayne Lukas, trainer of Codex, said his colt was "the best horse in the race on May 17."

Of the controversy, he said: "I don't think it's right for me to make an evaluation. The stewards have five or six angles."

Codex paid paid $7.40, $3.60 and $3.80. The victory was worth $180,600 from the gross purse of $250,600. It raised Codex's career bankroll to $534,576.

His time of 1:54 1-5 for the 1 3-16 miles equalled Spectacular Bid's second-fastest Preakness in history and was only one-fifth of a second off the track record.

Rowdies get even

By The Canadian Press

Tampa Bay Rowdies gained a measure of revenge Sunday, edging Vancouver Whitecaps 3-2 in the first scheduled meeting between the two teams since the Whitecaps beat the Rowdies to win the North American Soccer League championship last year.

Oscar Fabbiani scored two goals, including the winner with 18 minutes remaining in the game at Tampa, Fla., to help the Rowdies to their sixth win in nine games. The Whitecaps are 4-6 in their first 10 games this season.

In one other game Sunday, Rochester Lancers blanked Minnesota Kicks 1-0 in a shootout in Rochester, N.Y.

On Saturday, Chicago Sting shaded Detroit Express 3-2, Philadelphia Fury shut out Atlanta Chiefs 2-0, Fort Lauderdale Strikers edged Washington Diplomats 2-1, Tulsa Roughnecks defeated New England Tea Men 2-1, Los Angeles Aztecs beat Dallas Tornado 1-0, Seattle Sounders downed San Diego Sockers 3-2 and San Jose Earthquakes trounced Houston Hurricane 3-0.

Steve Wegerle opened the scoring for Tampa Bay at the eight-minute mark, taking a long pass from Peter Baralic and sending a 10-yard shot into the left corner. Fabbiani made it 2-0 at 13:46 on a penalty kick after Bob Lenarduzzi of the Whitecaps was called for grabbing the ball in the Vancouver penalty area.

The Whitecaps rebounded at 26:59 when Trevor Whymark bulled his way past three Tampa Bay defenders to beat goalkeeper Winston DuBose. Bob Bolitho tied the score early in the second half for Vancouver, taking a pass from John Craven and sending an eight-yarder past DuBose at 58:29.

On Monday night a goal by reserve defender Bob Newton with less than three minutes left in regulation time lifted New England Tea Men to a 4-3 victory over Chicago Sting.

Caps, Cosmos in Cup series

NEW YORK (AP) — The North American Soccer League announced Monday it will hold the Trans-Atlantic Challenge Cup begining Wednesday.

Vancouver Whitecaps, NASL champions last year, and New York Cosmos, who led the league in points during the regular season, will represent the NASL in the tournament with a pair of European Division I teams, Manchester City of Britain and Italian Cup champion Roma.

The Whitecaps will host Roma and Manchester City will visit the Cosmos in games on Wednesday. On Saturday, the European teams will switch opponents, Roma meeting the Cosmos and the Whitecaps at home against Manchester City.

The tournament concludes with a doubleheader on Monday at Giants Stadium, home of the Cosmos. In that program, the European teams will play in the opener with the NASL teams meeting in the second game.

Tournament standings will be determined by points with two points awarded for a victory, one for a tie and none for a loss. Goals differential will be used for a tie-breaker, if necessary.

Bid merely spectacular again

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Odds-on favorite Spectacular Bid trailed the field going by the stands the first time and then, under the ride of champion jockey Bill Shoemaker, came on to handily win the $210,400 Mervyn LeRoy Handicap at Hollywood Park on Sunday.

In capturing his 22nd race out of 26 starts, Spectacular Bid carried 132 pounds — highest of his career — and went the 1 1-16 mile in one minute, 40 2-5 seconds. Peregrinator was a surprise second and Beau's Eagle third.

Shoemaker, who gained his 155th victory in a race worth $100,000 or more, sent Spectacular Bid to the front on the far turn and there was no challenge.

Spectacular Bid, winning his sixth straight, went off at odds of 1-5 and returned $2.40 to win, the same amount to place and $2.10 to show. Peregrinator, an Irish-bred who carried 119, returned $4.80 and $2.10 and Beau's Eagle, who carried 121, also paid the minimum $2.10 to show.

Flying Paster, the No. 2 choice among the 44,700 fans, finished fourth under 122 pounds, followed by Life's Hope and the early pacesetting Replant.

Chris McCarron rode Peregrinator, who also came up from behind to take the place, but seven lengths behind the son of Bold Bidder.

The victory, worth $120,400, boosted the winner of the 1979 Kentucky Derby and Preakness to total winnings of $2,209,818, $184,000 off the record career earnings for thoroughbreds held by the now-retired Affirmed.

Arsenal comes up empty

MIDDLESBROUGH, England (Reuter) — Showing all the strain of an arduous 70-game season, Arsenal had its final hopes of playing in Europe next season shattered Monday when it was blasted 5-0 by Middlesbrough in its final match.

The London club, so full of hope 10 days ago with both the English Football Association Cup and the European Cup Winners' Cup finals to look forward to, thus finished its campaign empty-handed.

Arsenal needed to win Monday to finish third in the English First Division and thus qualify for a spot in next seasons UEFA (European Football Union) Cup. But Middlesbrough never gave them a chance and Arsenal could not cope with the faster, fresher football of its opposition.

Craig Johnston, Dave Hodgson and Graeme Hedley scored in the first half and Dave Armstrong collected a pair after the break. To underline Arsenals futility, Alan Sunderland missed a penalty with two minutes left.

It was a missed penalty in the European Cup Winners' Cup final against Valencia of Spain last week that led to its 5-4 defeat in that match after a scoreless draw through 30 minutes of extra time.

West Ham United had beaten Arsenal 1-0 in the F.A. Cup four days earlier.

The loss left Arsenal fourth in the English First Division, one point behind Ipswich, which goes into the UEFA Cup with Manchester United and Wolverhampton.

Arsenal never really recovered from its titanic four-game battle against League champions Liverpool in the F.A. Cup semi-finals, which it won 1-0 in the third replay.

But ultimately they paid the price for an indifferent home season in the League, where they won only eight of their 22 matches with 10 draws and scored just 24 goals.

BITING THE BALL is Jimmy Connors way of showing displeasure at a what he thought was bad call in Louisville International Tennis Classic. Connors went on, to beat Eddie Dibbs and pocket first-place prize money of $36,000.

Merchants top Coast baseball

Victoria Merchants swept a doubleheader against Vancouver TOS on Sunday to take over first place in the Pacific Coast Junior Baseball League.

Merchants tripped the Vancouver club 8-2 in the opener and then collected a 6-4 decision in the second game at Topaz Park.

On Saturday, the same two teams battled to a 4-4 deadlock in a game cut short at eight innings by darkness at Lambrick Park.

First baseman Ed Geric, who returned to the Merchants from vacation Sunday, drove in seven of the 14 Victoria runs.

He drove in the first run of the day with a sacrifice fly in the third inning and keyed a four-run outburst in the sixth frame with a double that drove in Gary White and Dale Schmidt.

In the second game, Geric had four RBIs. He drove in White and Mike Bull with a double in the third inning and powered in the same two runners with a single in the fifth.

Relief pitcher Ron Burton came up with two saves Sunday, helping Paul Hrach push his record to 3-1 in the first game and Larry Wedgewood boost his record to 3-0 in the second.

On Saturday, Victoria tied it up in the bottom of the sixth when Bull doubled in Craig Gillespie and White scored on a sacrifice fly by Don Towner.

Merchants face second-place Sandpipers in Surrey this weekend.

Vancouver 000 110 0—2 7 1
Victoria 001 124 x—8 6 0
Steve Clarke 0-2 and Dave Calabrigo; Paul Hrach 3-1, Ron Burton (6) and Mike Bull.

Second game:
Vancouver 030 001 0—4 7 4
Victoria 013 200 x—6 9 1
Bill Lummerding 0-2, Andre Melo (4) and John Rainer, Calabrigo (4); Larry Wedgewood 3-0, Burton (7) and Bull.

Saturday
Vancouver 020 002 00— 4 8 2
Victoria 001 102 00— 4 8 1
Chris Nyberg, Steve Clarke (8) and Dave Calabriga. Dean Patten, Ron Burton (5) and Mike Bull.

Victoria captures peewee grid title

Juan de Fuca and Victoria earned victories as the Saanich Hornets Peewee Football League wrapped up its season Saturday at Glanford Park.

Juan de Fuca topped Saanich 18-6 and Victoria tripped Gordon Head, 14-6.

Victoria finished atop the league with a 8-1-0 record and was followed by Juan de Fuca at 5-4-0, Saanich at 3-5-1 and Gordon Head at 1-7-1.

Scoring:

JUAN DE FUCA (18) — Paul Juch two touchdowns, Gordie Galbraith touchdown. SAANICH (6) — Pat Thomas touchdown.

VICTORIA (14) — Tom Johnson two touchdowns, Moki Barrett two-point conversion. GORDON HEAD (6) — Jeff Kirby touchdown.

McEnroe, Connors add to their credits

John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors added two more tournament titles to their list of credits during the weekend while Bjorn Borg, the man they are chasing for the No.1 spot in the rankings, spent his time at a charity match.

Borg and his fiancee, Mariana Simionescu of Romania, met Chris Evert Lloyd and her husband, John, in London on Monday in a match to raise money for charities supported by Princess Anne. The Lloyds won, 6-4, 6-3.

Borg, 24, is to marry Simionescu, 23, in July. They spent five days in Stockholm training together for the charity doubles event.

Meanwhile, McEnroe, ranked No. 2 behind Borg, beat defending champion Victor Amaya 6-2, 6-3 Sunday to win a $175,000 tournament at Kobe, Japan. The women's title was won by top-ranked Martina Navratilova, who beat Pam Shriver 7-5, 6-3.

The winners earned $28,000 apiece.

Connors, rated No.3 in the world, pocketed $36,000 by beating Eddie Dibbs 6-2, 6-3 in the final of a $104,000 tournament in Louisville, Ky. Connors won the last four games of the first set and then raced to a 5-1 lead in the second.

Elsewhere, Harold Solomon upset Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-7, 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 to win the first prize of $28,000 in a tournament in Hamburg, West Germany, and Adriano Panatta of Italy beat Raul Ramirez of Mexico 6-2, 2-6, 6-4 in the final of a $50,000 event in Florence, Italy.

In Berlin, Sue Barker of Britain subdued Paulina Peled of Israel 4-6, 7-6, 6-1 to clinch the second singles victory for her team and move Britain into the second round of the Federation Cup tennis tournament Monday.

Earlier, Glynis Coles brushed aside Hagit Zubary 6-1 6-1.

"I didn't expect that much resistance," Barker admitted after her hard-fought victory.

Britain will meet Argentina in the second round after the South Americans won both their singles against The Netherlands.

Ivanna Madruga beat Marcella Mesker 7-5, 6-1 and Claudia Casabianca defeated Elly Vessies 6-3, 6-2.

Britain did not use its No. 1 player, Virginia Wade, who had injured an ankle during training.

"The day of rest will do me good because I will need all my strength against Argentina," Wade said.

WORLD JUNIOR MEET

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirty-three countries will compete here in the 1980 World Junior weightlifting championships, May 24-31.

France beats Soviet for European title

MOSCOW (Reuter) — France won the European Rugby Union championship for the 13th time Sunday with a comfortable 18-7 victory over the Soviet Union.

Ahead 14-0 at half-time, the French relaxed the tempo in the second half but their lead was never seriously threatened by the home side.

More than 15,000 spectators saw France score two goals and two unconverted tries through Pelliccia and Bertranne during the first half of play.

Borrowing principles from prairie farming, on level land this new machine dramatically speeds up tree harvesting and makes reforestation easier. Such innovation can help Canada compete in world markets.

Productivity tools

It took a couple of Saskatchewan boys to draw this analogy between wheat harvesting and tree harvesting.

Where the ground is reasonably regular and the trees smallish and close together, their boldly obvious implement harvests timber like grain. It fells and collects twenty or more trees a minute.

The Forest Engineering Research Institute of Canada has been helping to develop this ingenious aid to productivity.

The forest accounts for one Canadian job in ten. Reforestation for future crops, in addition to improving timber productivity, can create jobs.

Canadians have been creative in solving knotty problems in wood harvesting and processing techniques in making pulp and paper. For instance, there are astounding skidders like colossal dune buggies that haul logs over rugged ground, formidable tree harvesters that snip off trees like pruning shears. There is the Papriformer that improves the quality of paper by extracting moisture from both sides of the sheet at once.

Modern "tools" make skilled workers more productive to help keep Canada's costs in line so we can compete in world markets.

New equipment and manufacturing improvements cost money—growth money. Thanks to healthier profits, the pulp and paper industry invested more than a billion dollars in 1979 in new machinery and equipment.

Meet the Competition: in South Carolina, Mrs. J.D. Royall's plantation pines are ready to harvest in 15 years. Canada's trees grow more slowly but intensive forest management can speed up growth and timber productivity.

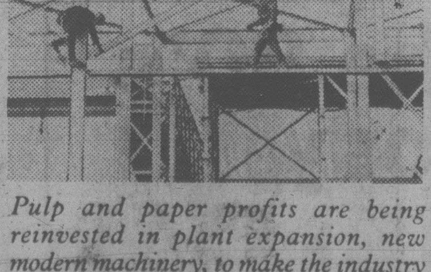
These massive investments are important to every man, woman and child in Canada. The pulp and paper industry is the largest manufacturer in Canada. It brings in more dollars than any other export industry, about $1000 a year for each Canadian family.



Pulp and paper profits are being reinvested in plant expansion, new modern machinery, to make the industry more competitive internationally.

Ex-rider convicted of bribing jockeys

NEW YORK (AP) — Former jockey Con Errico, accused of being the key figure in a conspiracy that enabled gamblers to win some $500,000 on fixed horse races, has been convicted of bribing jockeys to throw nine races at Aqueduct and Saratoga in 1974 and 1975.

Errico, 58, had been accused of engaging in "a pattern of racketeering activity." He showed no emotion after the jury of six men and six women returned the verdict at 9:47 p.m., EDT, Monday after deliberating for about four hours.

But asked outside court how he felt, Errico said, "It's like winning a race and you get disqualified."

Errico was found to have bribed jockeys Jose Amy and Ben Feliciano in races which netted more than $500,000 for big gamblers who were described by the government as associates of Errico.

In his testimony, Amy said some of racing's top money-winning jockeys told him that they fixed races. He said those jockeys included Kentucky Derby winners Angel Cordero, Jacinto Vasquez and Jorge Velasquez, and Triple Crown winner Jean Cruguet.

Amy said he took bribes to hold his mount back in seven races. Feliciano said he threw two contests. And Michael Venezia, another jockey who testified, said Errico had once offered him a bribe.

All three jockeys testified under immunity.

Every week the Rabbit makes more sense

Everytime the cost of gas goes up, you'll be glad you own a Rabbit.

The amazing Rabbit Diesel goes further on a litre of fuel than any other car in Canada. And the gasoline Rabbit is not far behind.

But in addition to great economy, you'll also appreciate the way this Volkswagen is built for reliability and durability.

The VW Rabbit. A great car for today. A great investment for the future.

Seasprays earn split

PORT ANGELES — Port Angeles and Seaspray split a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League doubleheader here Sunday.

Port Angeles won one game 8-2 and Seasprays posted an 8-7 decision in the other.

Timmons leads T-Birds

Victoria T-Birds tripped Saanich Braves 5-1 in the men's final of the inaugural Victoria T-Birds Classic soccer tournament Monday at Victoria High School.

Charlie Timmons scored two goals to spark the T-Birds while single tallies were added by David McDougall, Ernie Alfred and Alex Nelson. "Spud" Henry replied for Braves.

Scowlitz, from the vicinity of Harrison Hot Springs, defeated Alert Bay Thunderettes 6-1 in the women's final.

T-Birds won the women's consolation final and third place with a 1-0 victory over Victoria Strikers and Oak Bay Alumni took corresponding men's laurels by blanking Nanaimo Tillicum House, 3-0.

Perhaps the closest action, however, came in an old-timers' exhibition match.

Kwakiutl, from the northern area of Vancouver Island, edged Coast Salish 1-0 after a shootout. The two teams had battled to a scoreless deadlock through regulation time and overtime.

Dan Henry of Braves was picked as the most-valuable-player among the men while while the other individual awards were taken by Alfred (best offence), Randy Bell (best defence) and Slash Taylor (best goalie), all from T-Birds.

Little Pine from Saskatchewan was named the most sportsmnalike men's team.

Sherri Anton of Scowlitz was selected as the women's MVP while clubmate Lollie Phillips was picked for best offence. Millie Willie and Too Much Alfred, both from Alert Bay Thundrettes, were picked as the best defence and best goalie, respectively.

T-Birds supplied three of the players picked to the men's all-star team — Alfred, Rudy Henry and George Taylor. Rounding out the squad were Dan Henry and Rudi Henry of Saanich, Hugh Owen and Paul Farrell of Oak Bay, Rick Johnson of Alert Bay, Jamie Thorne of Duncan, Butch Penaer of Chehalis Eagles and John William of Nanaimo.

The women's all-stars were Debbie Hunt and Vickie Mills of T-Birds, Too Much Alfred and Sharon Alfred of Alert Bay, Phillips and Nita Douglas of Scowlitz, Penny Reading of Victoria Strikers, Terry Crocker of UVic Vikettes, Shelly Williams of Nanaimo, Sam Mount of Victoria Selects and Lidia Bob of Duncan.

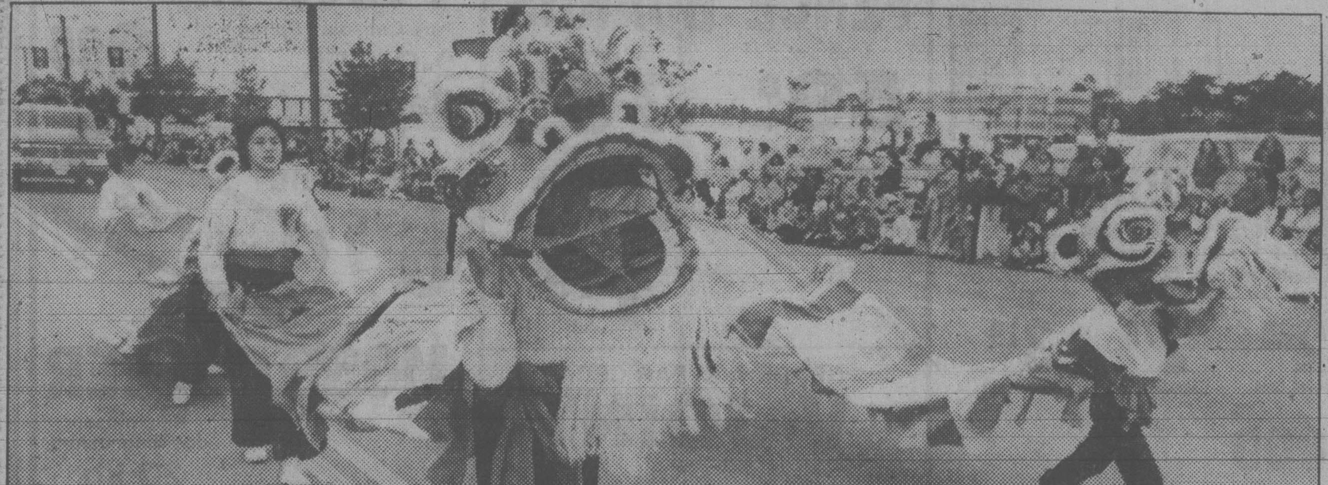
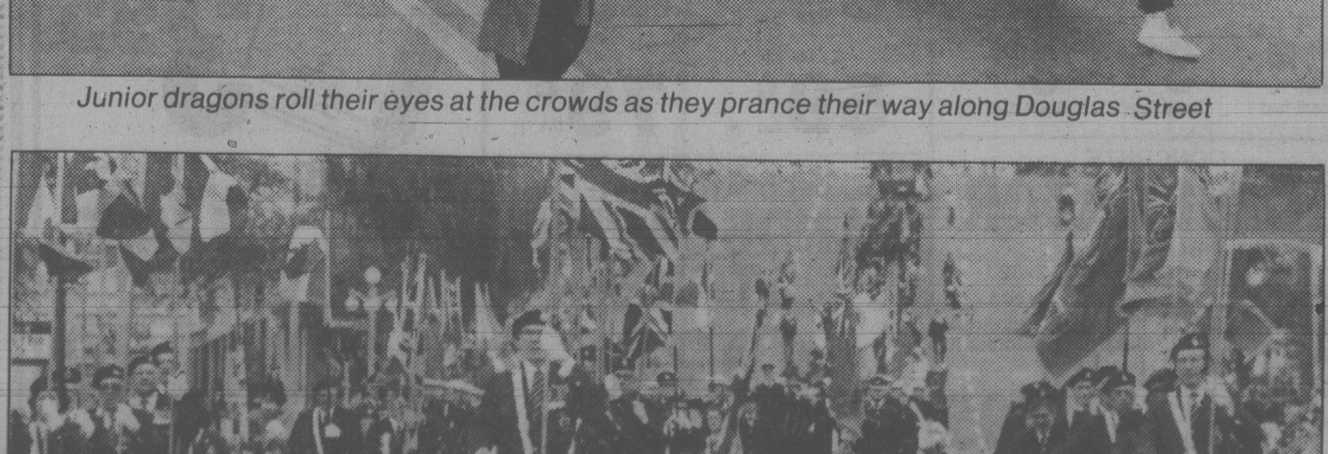
There's nothing like a parade, and despite some drizzle, the crowds turned out in usual numbers for the bands and floats



Junior dragons roll their eyes at the crowds as they prance their way along Douglas Street



Veterans rallied to the occasion, with representatives of all forces and many branches of the Legion

And, of course, what's a parade without clowns?

B.C. economic picture bright

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's economy is expected to grow at a faster rate over the next two years than the country as a whole, says Tim Whitehead, economist with the economic forecasting group, Data Resources of Canada.

Whitehead said the real domestic product in B.C. is expected to grow by 1.8 per cent this year despite the poor housing market in the United States and deteriorating conditions in foreign markets.

With returning strength in the U.S. and Pacific Rim economies, growth in B.C. will accelerate to 2.8 per cent in 1981 and 4.6 per cent by 1982, he said in an interview from Toronto.

The forest industry, which contributes 50 cents of every dollar of the gross provincial product, will continue in its current slump throughout the year, but Whitehead is optimistic about 1981-82.

Whitehead said the outlook for B.C.'s mining industry is "quite good" even though metal prices have been falling on most major exchanges.

Production should be strong in 1980 with a 4.9-per-cent increase in growth of a weighted composite of copper, molybdenum, lead and zinc, he said.

Whitehead anticipates most of the increase will be in copper as world stocks are low.

B.C. mineral production jumps 44%

B.C.'s mineral production was worth $2.9 billion in 1979, an increase of 44 per cent from the previous year, the provincial government announced on the weekend.

Of the $880.5 million increase, copper accounted for $221 million, petroleum products (including natural gas) $183 million, molybdenum $155 million and coal $142 million.

Petroleum maintained its first-place status among provincial minerals, despite the surge in copper production.

The ratings of the top five, in terms of dollar value of 1979 production, are:

1.Petroleum $738.8 million.
2.Copper 652.6 million.
3.Coal 523.8 million.
4.Molybdenum 322.1 million.
5.Zinc 63.1 million.

The five products had ranked in the same order in 1978. But five years ago, in 1974, copper had been in first place.

The 1974 rankings were:

1.Copper $541.6 million.
2.Petroleum 231.3 million.
3.Coal 154.6 million.
4.Molybdenum 60.8 million.
5.Zinc 59.6 million.

In 1979 copper prices ranged from 30 to 50 per cent higher than in the previous year. Production was also up, due to a full year of operations from the Afton mine.

The outlook for this year is for further production increases but prices may be a bit lower, due to the recession in the United States.

In the petroleum sector, natural gas production was worth $565 million, up from $401 million, while crude oil was worth $174 million, up from $145 million.

Strong increases are expected in 1980, especially in natural gas supplies.

The provincial government received a record $191 million for drilling rights last year, indicating exploration activity will remain brisk.

Coal production was worth $524 million, up from $382 million and the outlook for 1980 is good with demand high and prices increasing on the export market.

Japan's recent interest in thermal coal as well as coking coals has added to market opportunities. Korea has also begun buying thermal coal from B.C.

Molybdenum prices soared during 1979, relecting a world shortage. Prices slipped and stablized at year's end.

Interest in gold and silver remain high although production volumes are low in British Columbia.

The numbers were released by the ministry of Industry and Small Business Development in an annual report.

Nanaimo workers end study session

NANAIMO (CP) — Union members employed by the Nanaimo regional district returned to work Saturday, ending a 2½-day study session.

Bus drivers, recreation workers and other members of Local 401 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, had been protesting what they called mistreatment of a planning assistant by a management staff member.

The union ratified a tentative agreement Saturday morning with management and the provincial labor relations board.

The agreement called for workers to return to the job and for the region to withdraw its complaints to the board about the walkout.

The agreement also set up a meeting May 27 between the union executive and the regional board to discuss grievances.

Red tide poison death report soon

A report on whether a northern Vancouver Island man died of so-called red tide poisoning after eating butterclams during the weekend is expected today.

Fisheries protection officer Ron Kehl said in Victoria the cause of death of Ernest Daniel Fred, 33, of Health Bay, should be determined by the analysis.

Paralytic shellfish poisoning is suspected.

There have been no reports yet of the red tide inside Queen Charlotte, Johnstone or Georgia Straits, but the toxin can build up in butter clams and remain at levels dangerous to humans for several years.

Meanwhile, a ban on harvesting shellfish remains in effect along a 190-kilometre stretch of the east coast of Vancouver Island from Kelsey Bay to the northern tip of the Island at Cape Scott.

Almost the entire west coast of Vancouver Island has been closed since the first week of May because of red tide, Kehl said.

It includes all coastal waters north of Juan de Fuca Strait, from Bonilla Point on the west coast trail about 25 kilometres northwest of Port Renfrew and will remain in effect until September.

Fred died in hospital at Alert Bay early Saturday after eating the clams. Two other residents of Health Bay, a small village on Gilford Island, were also taken to hospital and were reported in satisfactory condition at St. George's Hospital.

A spokesman said they are up and around and should be released by Wednesday.

There are numerous local closures of waters in the Victoria area and the Gulf Islands, but these are due to sewage contamination, not the red tide.

"Other than our local waters closures due to sewage outfalls there are no other closures," said Kehl.

All of Sooke harbor, Esquimalt and the Inner Harbor of Victoria are closed along with most of the east coast of the Saanich peninsula and parts of Finlayson Arm.

Kehl said probably the safest area close to Victoria is Mill Bay, south of Frayne Road around Bamberton provincial park. North of Mill Bay to Cowichan Bay is closed, as are waters around Crofton, Chemainus and Nanaimo.

There are also numerous restricted zones in the Gulf Islands.

Kehl said anyone planning to go after shellfish this summer in the islands should get a copy of the department's guide, available at 816 Government.

Detailed information on Victoria waters is available from the local office at 388-3252. For the Gulf Islands call the district office in Nanaimo at 753-4181.

Search continues for Parksville man

The search continued today for Ted Trill, 56, of Parksville, whose 10½-foot Glass craft was found overturned and empty about noon Monday approximately 2 kilometres off the mouth of the Big Qualicum River.

A spokesman for the RCMP detachment at Parksville said a search was being conducted along the shoreline but bad weather was preventing a more extensive sea search.

Nanaimo girl dies in blaze

A house fire in Nanaimo late Monday night killed nine-year-old Tanya Moon and sent her twin sister Monique to hospital in Victoria.

RCMP said today the fire in a house on Park Avenue was reported just before midnight. The girls' parents, brother and two boarders managed to escape the blaze.

A spokesman at Victoria General Hospital said Monique is in satisfactory condition today.

Police are investigating the cause of the fire.

Tow rates rile alderman

An Esquimalt alderman claims Gordon's Towing has unilaterally raised its towaway rates in his municipality to $25.

But the company said today that figure has been in effect for several years.

Ald. Colin Blair told the Times a new sign has gone up at the Esquimalt liquor store at Esquimalt and Admirals saying the 15-minute parking limit is enforced by Gordon's.

Space on the sign for the towaway charge has been blanked out, he said, but it has gone up to $25.

Blair noted that Gordon's recently came to Victoria city council and asked for permission to raise its towaway charge to $25.

"In Esquimalt they've already done that without permission."

However, Gordon's general manager Gerald Hartwig said today that the towaway charge has been $25 for four years. The company does not do much parking lot patrol outside the city of Victoria.

The liquor store in Esquimalt and a bank in Saanich are about the total of Gordon's contract business outside Victoria, he said.

It's all on a call basis, he added, meaning the owner calls Gordon's to remove an overparked vehicle. In the city Gordon's tow trucks are continually patrolling commercial lots for vehicles with expired tickets. The charge for towaways in this case is $16.

To raise that, Gordon's must have city council authority under a Victoria bylaw.

"The way it is in Esquimalt, they can charge whatever they like — $50 or $100. That concerns me," said Blair.

Dr. Owen Schwartz, no favorite of Winnipeg's medical establishment, has gone into the health clinic business. The Winnipeg physician was suspended this spring for three months for suggesting his patients change their lifestyle and eating habits rather than taking drugs or having surgery. Schwartz said many of his former patients are coming to his Focus on Health clinic, but there's one problem. The advice they receive is no longer covered by medicare.

Georges Forest, the Winnipeg insurance man who led the court battle for official recognition of the French language in Manitoba, is campaigning in Quebec for the referendum's no forces. And he had some unbrotherly words for Quebecers who want independence. "There is egotism in Quebec wanting to separate, like that of a child who doesn't want to play with his neighbor and leaves with all his toys."

Spiro Agnew says he snubbed Richard Nixon when his former boss telephoned him more than a year after they both resigned in disgrace. "I didn't take the call because I thought it was a little late," the former U.S. vice-president told Barbara Walters on ABC-News' 20-20 program. Agnew also said he doesn't rule out running for office again.

Komataro Kishi lives alone in an apartment in the Bronx and goes out regularly to the local market to buy the vegetables he favors in cooking his meals. He also keeps his own house. None of this would be remarkable except that Kishi, a bachelor, is 102 years old, which makes him, according to a volunteer organization known as Japanese American Help for the Aging, the oldest member of the Japanese-American community in New York. He came to the U.S. in 1898 and has not returned to Japan. "Sometime I go," he says.

Dear Abby:

I am engaged to marry a very handsome, successful business executive I'll call Mike. Mike hired a secretary about three months ago. I saw Nora only a few times at Mike's office. She's middle-aged, slightly overweight and very plain looking. She's a divorcee. Mike said she was very competent.

Yesterday Mike told me that Nora had come to his apartment on the previous Sunday afternoon, unannounced, saying she had something very important to talk to him about. He invited her into his apartment, without the slightest idea what she wanted to discuss. She then said she was very nervous and would Mike please pour her a drink. He said he gave her a drink and had one with her to make her feel more comfortable.

Then Nora told him that from the first moment she saw him she had a schoolgirl crush on him, and would he make love to her just once before he got married!

Abby, can you imagine such a request?

Mike said he politely told her that he didn't think that was a very good idea, and she had better leave because he had an engagement.

Speechless

Dear Speechless:

I think Nora is pathetically in need of a man. And Mike has a very big mouth.

Dear Abby:

At age 76, this is my first letter to you. Ten years ago I had surgery for an enlarged prostate. My doctor told me that it would not affectd my desire for sex or my ability to perform.

After the surgery, both were affected. I have no problem because neither my wife nor I miss the sex, but my question is, Was the surgeon wrong, or am I the exceptional case?

Wimpy

Dear Wimpy:

Much depends on the extent of your surgery. Perhaps the surgery was more extensive than the surgeon thought it would be. There is also the possibility that your inability to function sexually is due more to psychological than surgical reasons.

Dear Abby:

A friend of mind has an oil painting of a naked lady hanging in her den. She claims it is a work of art, but it looks like pornography to me.

This friend entertains many religious and elderly people who avoid going into her den because they are embarrassed by this obscene painting.

Abby, don't you think if she likes it so much she should hang it in her bedroom where it wouldn't embarrass anyone?

Red-Faced

Dear Red-Faced:

Your friend has the right to hang whatever pleases in her home. Pornography — like beauty — often lies in the eye of the beholder.

The show that can't succeed but does

The incredible has happened. A Canadian television show has not only hung up a viewership of well over 2,000,000, but has ensconced itself as the only Canadian-produced entertainment in our top-rated ten.

That show is The Beachcombers, which against all reason, has persisted into this its tenth season. Furthermore, and allowing for the fact that the ways of television are passing strange, there are encouraging indications that the show will keep right on rolling along.

Its budget would scarcely pay the bar bills for one of those richly-funded turkeys which CBC Toronto produces with monotonous regularity. (Remember Jalna? And House of Pride? And what's-it's-name, that pathetic steal from Grand Hotel?)

Its disarmingly unsophisticated stories are whipped on to film at blinding speed by a production crew which, at first sighting, looks like the company of a pirate ship. Gibsons, the Sunshine Coast town that harbors it, hates the Beachcombers almost as much as it loves the show. After all, it must be more than a trifle annoying to have mid-day traffic halted by girls with stop signs so the shooting of a street scene can proceed!

As a show, it continually walks a tight-rope between tragedy and disaster.

Key members of its cast vanish either permanently (like Bob Park, who played 'Hugh') or for a number of months, as did Pat John, the young actor from the Sechelt Band who is 'Jesse' in the show.

It started out to be, and is still listed, as a half-hour romp for children. But with increasing frequency, its episodes attract an adult audience.

Various reasons have been advanced for the show's sustained success in the teeth of adversity. The magnificent Coast mountain-and-sea background against which it is shot is one of these. Also, the presence in the star role of Bruno Gerussi (Nick the Beachcomber) does it no harm whatever.

But as a writer for Beachcombers, I don't attempt to analyze the why and wherefore. I'm too busy turning out scripts.

This is not an easy job. It is so tricky, in fact, that I would warn others who are minded to try it that they haven't a cat-in-hell chance unless they are prepared to digest and abide by certain iron-bound rules.

The common mistake of would-be writers for Beachcombers comes from failure to recognize the fact that the characters make the show. Instead of weaving a story around the characters — with a lively eye on their habits and quirks — they attempt to make the characters conform to story-lines to which they are emphatically unsuited. Or worse still, the 'regulars' are reduced to bystander roles while a new batch of characters take over the action.

Then too, there is the matter of dialogue. One of the hardest things I had to learn when I ventured away from the printed page was that television speech is significantly different from "literary" dialogue.

Television characters simply do not make speeches. Nor do they give out with rounded phrases, measured clauses, and pleasing cadences. They speak tersely, in short sentences. Their meaning must at all times by crystal-clear. And the words must not betray the actors who speak them into awkwardness.

I learned my lesson about television dialogue one day on location. The crew had set up its props and lightboards, the camera was rolling, and Hugh strolled on scene. He was in conversation with another actor.

At once, it became apparent that I had wished on him an awkward mouthful of a sentence that he couldn't handle.

He made a game attempt at it. But it came out mangled, and the director snappedhis "Cut!"

Five mortal times, that scene was repeated, with the same dismal result. Much film was expended and many minutes wasted in a tight schedule. Finally I did a field patch-up on the trouble-making sequence. I cut it by two-thirds, simplified the construction, and set it in easily-handled words. That did the trick: the next take went smoothly.

It is when the day's filming, known as the "rushes", is screened in a pokey basement cubbyhole of Molly's Reach that the rewards of hard and often frustrating labor are reaped.

There's no music, no prettying up, but magically, one section of the show takes shape, while the people who labored to bring it to life sit around with mugs of coffee or bottles of beer.

Another Beachcombers is in process of being born, and everyone connected with is genesis knows a thrill of satisfaction.

Trends served up with tea

A summer of high tea fashion previews will begin June 4 in Victoria for the benefit of out-of-towners and home-towners alike.

The fashion shows, with fashions and hairstyles by the Bay, has been in the planning for months, says Lynn Downey, one of the organizers.

"Tourists shall now have an opportunity to preview the latest in fashions over a high tea atmosphere in the Crystal Ballroom in the Empress Hotel," she said. "We hope to feature five or six models, with a piano accompaniment and commentator as well."

Downey said modelling and fashion co-ordination will be handled by Hilary Jordan and Sue Little of Victoria.

The June 4 show will be the first of a series promoted by Downey of the local Women Beautiful agency.

"I feel the shows will be very popular as tea and fashions are a perfect combination — especially during our lovely Victoria summer," said Downey.

Shows are planned to run twice weekly on the average — at 2 p.m. each time in the ballroom. Tickets, at $6.50 per person, are available at the Bay.

Shows scheduled at present are June 4, 11, 14, 16, 19, 23 and 24; July 8, 10, 15, 17, 22, 24, 30 and 31; August 6, 7, 12, 14, 20, 21, 26 and 28.

If the series is successful, Downey said, it will be continued on an annual basis.

The Claiborne line comes from one of the U.S.' best known sportswear houses. She carries mostly separates — pants, sweaters, shirts, blouses, jackets and camisoles — all of which combine to make up a suit or dress look.

All at sea on worth of the waterbed

By DR. BOB YOUNG

Lying on a bed of thorns implies a situation of stress and apprehension, while finding oneself in a bed of roses suggests contentment and pleasure. What about a bed of water?

Waterbeds are comparatively new, and I have been able to find nothing in the medical literature that will help me answer the questions posed by a Victoria reader of this column. I have consulted with some of my medical friends, however, and the following represents a melded opinion.

Many people find sleeping on a waterbed a comfortable experience. They waken refreshed and relaxed, and swear that they will never go back to an ordinary mattress. Others try them once (often in a hotel or motel while travelling), and do not sleep a wink.

Doctors are sometimes asked about the use of a waterbed as treatment for back problems. Most patients are aware that the use of a firm mattress is often recommended to help relieve backache and disk problems. This advice is generally given in an attempt to avoid a sagging bed — one in which the head and foot of the bed are higher than the center. A soft mattress placed on the floor accomplishes the same thing.

Some patients (and a doctor or two of my acquantance) report that they find sleeping on a waterbed very helpful in relieving and preventing back discomfort. Other patients have noted very little, if any difference. I do not think the results in an individual case can be predicted.

Most reputable waterbed merchants will allow a trial period of up to a month when they sell a waterbed. They may make a small charge for delivering and setting up the bed, but as waterbeds represent a fairly large outlay the cost of a trial period is a good investment. Thirty days should be enough time to learn whether your back will be helped, and even if it is not, you may want to keep the bed anyway.

Waterbeds are in the yachting news, and will shortly be in the medical news, as a possible method of avoiding seasickness and other motion sickness. It has been found that sailboat crews who sleep in waterbeds for a few nights before a race are much less likely to suffer mal de mer when on the water. The American military has shown interest in this finding and are doing some research.

Info/Health is brought to you by the British Columbia Medical Association and the Times.

Key to frames and blocks

Quilting with Kathy Faryon

Bernie Goedhart is a mother, writer, and talented sewer who has approached patchwork and quilting with relish.

She chose to make this Baby Block Quilt and Bumper Pad set in bright primary colors for her baby's room. She selected sunny yellow, apple green, cherry red, navy for contrast and small calico prints and dots to mix and match.

Bernie's personal technique and style is evident in her work. She has designed some of her own quilts based on bright-colored silk-screen prints framed by solid colors of broadcloth.

For example, one print depicted children running with a bouquet of balloons. In the borders, Bernie had transferred the balloon idea into quilting stitches, some showing words, the others showing the actual balloons.

It is these creative touches which add a uniqueness to your work and make the difference between a quilt and a work of art. It may also be a deciding factor in determining whether or not your work will sell to the public.

This simple-to-make quilt and bumper pad set is patterned along a frame design. Basically, the first panel has a design appliqued onto a background piece, which is then surrounded by different sized borders or frames. In the second border, the Baby Block motif is repeated in the quilting stitch pattern. This provides not only continuity, but also visually holds the quilt "sandwich" together. The Baby Block motif is created by repeating only one template shape, the 60° Diamond, three times.

As you can see from the illustration, the colors were chosen to give a three-dimensional quality to the figure.

The darkest of the colors, either a printed or plain fabric, is placed in the lower left position in each figure. If you turn the illustration upside down, you will see the different effects this motif creates. By repeating or changing the color placement in each block, or set of three diamonds, an interesting variation of the design will result. If the block design is repeated on the reverse side of the bumper pads also, they will be twice as useful.

The set is completely washable since the filler is pure polyester quilt batting (better than foam rubber which disintegrates in time).

For this set, you will be employing some patchwork piecing and applique, but you will use mostly fast and easy machine-sewing for adding on the borders. The quilt may be tied (tufted), machine-quilted "in-the-ditch" along the seam lines, or lovingly hand-quilted in leisure moments.

Sudden wealth hasn't changed Reuben's life

DETROIT (UPI) — Inflation and recession don't bother Reuben Metson, who recently joined the ranks of the nouveau riche. But even before he inherited $250,000, worrying about money didn't take up much of his time.

On a stool in a bar, Metson ordered a shot and a beer and talked about his lifestyle. He said he inherited the money from his great aunt — an estate worth considerably more than he'd ever earn during the rest of his life at his $4-an-hour-job.

"Let's put it this way," he said, "I live conservatively."

Metson lives in an older one-room apartment near a downtown expressway. His rent is $93.50 a month. He also lives without a telephone and a car.

"I haven't got a problem in the world," said Metson, sporting a scraggly beard and gaps between his teeth. "I eat three full meals a day — sometimes four."

At 48, Metson said he's too old to change.

Metson spends as much time in the West Detroiter bar as he ever did and gave the owners, Richard and Nancy Paquin, $5,000 for Christmas. But there is one difference since his inheritance last October, Metson quit his $4-an-hour job as a quality control inspectors at a steel supply company in suburban Warren.

"No, I am not (working)," he says. "Why should I? Though they would most certainly like to have me back. I want all the rest that have been laid off, who need the money more than I do, to go back first."

Big wedding? Styles changing

By J.C. BARDEN
New York Times

NEW YORK — When Mary Sheehan and David Naka began planning their wedding earlier this year in Washington, her parents were expecting to pay for a formal wedding and a reception for more than 100 guests. But the longer the couple looked into the costs of a reception the more disenchanted they became with the idea of having her parents pay about $5,000 for an afternoon of food and drinks.

What they did, instead, when they were married last month was have a families-only wedding and set aside part of the money her parents would have spent on the reception. "My parents wanted to give us money when I told them how we felt," Mary Sheehan said, "so we're investing it in the money market and maybe will use it later to help pay for a house."

They are just one of many young couples who are doing something different instead of having the bride's parents spend thousands of dollars on weddings and receptions. They range from the couple's splitting the costs themselves to letting the bridegroom or his parents pay for everything. And sometimes, like Mary Sheehan and David Naka, they prefer the money rather than a reception.

All of this is perfectly proper, according to Letitia Baldrige, who amplified and updated The Amy Vanderbilt Complete Book of Etiquette two years ago.

"Who pays for the reception or whether the couple takes money instead should be based on common sense and need instead of tradition," said Miss Baldrige in an interview. "But this is the one time to do it up if you can afford it and you want to." The tradition of the bride's parents paying the big bills related to a wedding is one "meant to change in an intelligent fashion," she wrote in the revised version.

It already had been changing, under the influence of the women's movement and women's increased earning power, along with the inflationary economy.

A caterer on Long Island said he began noticing the changing style in who was picking up the reception tab six or seven years ago. Sonny Dee said that it had reached the point where he found that roughly one-third of his receptions were paid for by the bride's parents, another third by the bride and bridegroom's parents, and most of the rest by the bride and the bridegroom. Then there are the occasional cases in which the bridegroom or his family pays for everything, he said.

"A lot of these young people will live together four or five years before deciding to marry," another caterer said, "and when they do they just don't feel like their parents should pay any of the costs."

They are certainly saving the parents a lot of money.

A top-of-the-line price for a reception in New York City can run $100 a guest when catered in the home. When the prospective bride and bridegroom or their parents don't agree on who is to pay for what weeks in advance, as advised by Miss Baldrige, it can lead to some fractious and embarrassing confrontations.

"I sometimes feel like a pre-marriage counsellor," said Abe Yamali, president of Dover Caterers.

"Couples and their parents come in here and ask me who should pay for different things and if they don't agree it can almost break up the wedding plans. With everything so expensive I don't feel like it is fair for one family to pay for everythng."

There are still plenty of young people who want "old-fashioned weddings and receptions with all the trappings," according to Madeline Kenyon of Convent Station, N.J., who knows from her contacts with them and from practical experience. She is an associate professor at Drew University in Madison, N.J., and she and her husband, Frank, gave one for their daughter, Nancy, earlier this year.

"It was the social event of the century," Mrs. Kenyon said. "We had 300 people at the reception from 12 to 5 with a band, lots of dancing, kissing, champagne and an open bar. It cost us a year's college tuition and it was worth every penny."

Nancy, who is now Mrs. William L. Campbell, said: "I thought the reception was tremendous. I always wanted to do things in the traditional way and my expections were completely fulfilled. I did everything but throw the garter and I would do it again."

Couples who plan a big wedding and then change their mind have a different problem — what about the deposit they have placed with a caterer? Efforts to help consumers receive refunds after cancelling a contract are increasing.

A 'different' fashion show

The fashion show arranged for next Monday evening in McPherson Playhouse will be different.

That's right . . . different!

Teachers and students in Greater Victoria District 61 are staging the event. Its titled Fashion Focus.

And, what makes it different is that every ensemble and article of clothing will be styled for young people, made by young people and modelled by those young people themselves.

Idea behind all this is to update the image of home economics, in this instance through clothing and textiles, and to help the public become aware of the extensive nature of the schools' program.

Also to stimulate interest of students at all levels and turn their thoughts to taking, or continuing, studies in these fields.

At present there are approximately 1,500 in Victoria area schools, taking home economics courses.

Some 170 of that number, in Grades 8 to 12, and from 15 schools, will appear in the fashion show.

Jean Sparks, a former home economics teacher who retired to marry and now has two young children, is the co-ordinator. Shannon Cook of CKDA radio, will be commentator.

The affair is sponsored by the Teachers of Home Economics Specialists Association of the Greater Victoria School District, and the McPherson Foundation.

Tickets for the show are $1.50 and they are available right now at McPherson box office.

Proceeds will go to a THESA scholarship for a student wishing to continue his or her education in home economics fields.

Last year that scholarship went to a young man, Doug Cawker, for chef training at Malaspina College, Mrs. Sparks tells you.

Talking to this knowledgeable former home economics teacher, one quickly learns of the changes that have taken place in recent years.

"At one time it was compulsory for ever girl to take home economics and the course was centred entirely on sewing and cooking," she explains.

"Today we've branched out from the traditional cooking and sewing into many different courses, all selective and all co-educational."

That means the over-all program has to be much more attractive and more diversified to create a desire in girls, and in boys, to enroll in these classes.

Boys! In this fashion show?

It's possible, Jean Sparks says. "After all boys are just as interested in tailoring and in textiles as the girls."

Teachers in the schools represented are selecting the students who will appear in the show and they could be either boys or girls.

"There is no thought of competition between these young people. Rather we are trying to make it interesting for all of them."

A grade 8 pupil perhaps may show a single garment, a jacket, blouse or a skirt. In other grades there will be students who find it easy to show complete ensembles, dresses, coats, tailored things.

"One is as important as the other as far as workmanship, ingenuity, imagination and flair are concerned."

A thorough understanding of textiles and the ability to create and make attractive clothes and tailored things, inevitably leads to consumer knowledge amongst the students, Mrs. Sparks believes.

"It can also lead, as many other home economics courses will lead, to any number of fascinating hobbies in their grown-up years."

Postscript- Jean Sparks concluded with a quick run-down on the aims of home economics education today.

-To acquire the knowledge, skills, and understanding of the principles necessary to provide food, clothing and shelter for the individual and the family.

-To develop a basic understanding of human nutrition.

-To develop abilities and attitudes needed to deal effectively with social, economic, and technological changes.

-To develop a variety of skills and interest for use in leisure time.

AND to acquire a broad base of knowledge as a useful background or specific training and/or further education.

Walking's healthy and hasn't gone up in price

leslie holbrook
the fourth quarter

There is one enjoyable, healthful activity for seniors which as not gone up in price.

If you are in good shape it will help to keep you so; if you are below par it can do wonders for those aging muscles, sagging shoulders, bulging belly, circulation problems and inner working parts.

Alone, with your spouse, with a group of fellow enthusiasts or with your dog, it is an ideal way to get and keep in shape — if you do it regularly.

Exercise in moderation is what most of us seniors need; I recognize that some folks in their sixties, seventies and even eighties enjoy and profit from more vigorous play (my good friend Roland Michener, for example) but for the majority two exercises — where you can set your own pace — are preferable. These are swimming and walking.

In earlier columns, I wrote of the joys and benefits of senior swimming. Walking can be practiced with even less trouble than exercise in water. About the only essential expense is a good pair of walking shoes — with leather soles as well as uppers.

These days the costs are considerable if you get your exercise in organized club activities, or even fishing (if you fall for fancy gear). Golf is particularly expensive and, on some courses, they won't even let you walk, insisting on the use of golf carts to speed things up and add to the take.

I do a lot of walking. I try to work on one good hike each day (two of at least 15 minutes each are better). Then I walk instead of drive when practical and, when I do drive, I don't worry about parking close to my destination.

Regularity and increasing the length and pace of your walks are keys to getting the most benefit from your efforts. After your doctor's O.K. you should be able to step up your pace enough (still not jogging) to need a refreshing shower when you get home. But such speed is not essential to getting considerable good from this exercise.

Walking is something you can do without deliberately thinking much about it; your mind is free to dwell on other matters (not ignoring busy street traffic, of course). I find it a good time to work out future columns in my mind or consider answers to your letters.

There now are several books out on the simple subject of walking (earlier it was a series on jogging) and they contain helpful advice, including "what to wear." But for seniors who are not likely to worry unduly about styles, comfortable clothing and proper footwear are about all we need.

Walking comes naturally and may be practiced close to home. I'm getting this afternoon's walk behind the lawn mower (electric so no gas fumes); along with gardening this is low-cost, satisfactory exercise too.

British writer George Trevelyan said "I have two doctors — my right leg and my left leg." Take the hint; take a walk. Don't let old rocking chair get you!

Send comments and questions (long, stamped, addressed envelope for reply) to Victoria Times, c/o Box 1506, Guelph, Ont. N1H 6n9.

Choking cures varied

VANCOUVER (CP) — The development of several first aid techniques currently being touted as lifesaving devices for choking victims has caused a trend away from basic medical approaches, a College of Family Physicians of Canada conference on middle age was told here.

In a series of discussions on emergency situations, Dr. Gregory Powell of Calgary told a gathering of 200 doctors that some methods of assisting a choking person have received so much publicity that many fundamental approaches are overlooked.

"When someone sitting in front of you in a restaurant is choking on a chunk of meat lodged in their throat and turning purple and blue, I would suggest very strongly you should do anything that works," he said.

Powell said that includes sharp blows on the person's back, abdominal and chest thrusts and "even hanging them upside down — do whatever you have to do."

He added no single method should be relied upon to do the trick, not even the highly-praised abdominal thrust method developed by Dr. Henry Heimlich of Cincinnati, which has been credited with saving the lives of many choking victims.

Powell said some restaurants are supplying gadgets used to dislodge foreign material that gets caught in peoples' throats, but "these kinds of devices are to be condemned. You get a lot of tonsillectomies that way."

Willie Walleye set in place

GARRISON, N. D. (AP) — Willie Walleye isn't just another big fish. He's billed as the world's largest walleye.

The 7.6-metre-high glass fibre fish, which cost nearly $10,000, was set in place Friday in Garrison City Park.

The fish, which weighs about 320 kilograms, is a reminder of the recreational opportunities at nearby Lake Sakakawea.

The scaly symbol was built by a Wisconsin display company and delivered by a Minot, N. D. sign firm.

Local service and sportsmen's groups raised money for the fishy figure after authorities gave their approval.

It takes effort to recover wedded bliss

VANCOUVER (CP) — Many middle-aged couples facing a marriage crisis can overcome the threat of divorce by facing reality and by hard work, says a noted Toronto psychiatrist and marriage counsellor.

Dr. Allan Lyall of the Clark Institute of Psychiatry said Tuesday couples need to realize they are growing older and must learn to cope with their fears and a new kind of marital relationship.

"I'm seeing more and more people with 10, 20 and 25 years invested in their relationships on the verge of cashing in their chips," he told 500 members of the College of Family Physicians.

"I think it has something to do with marriage being in a state of transition."

The husband and wife relationship has changed.

"The model was always one of autocracy with one (spouse) up and one down. The roles people tried to play were fairly clear. . .

"But I hear more people saying they are clear they don't want to do it (stay married) the way their parents did."

Couples need to sort out their personal roles and the intimate power struggle involved in marriage.

Middle age is a time for a couple to renew their relationship, he said. Most couples actually spend less than two hours a week together including time both are not tired or pre-occupied.

"Most of us spend more time than that on hobbies we don't even like."

A middle-aged couple should be able to put new excitement and some fun into their marriage.

"If you are set in your ways, it's hard to know what to do. The hardest person in the world to change with or to court is your spouse," Lyall said.

"But the goal of knowing another person as fully as possible is an endlessly exciting exploration."

Marriage in the middle years is further complicated by the fear of growing old without having achieved personal goals in life.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, May 21, 1980
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Dependent could take one step "too far." Means know when to draw line. Be sympathetic, concerned — but avoid being gullible. Message will be clarified. Another Aries and a Virgo figure prominently. Keep resolutions concerning nutrition. Burden is lifted — you get wider recognition.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Get to heart of matters — be direct, independent, leave speculation for another time. Love, creativity, swift changes, new starts — these are featured. You find out where you stand with "special" person. Leo, Aquarius natives figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Settle affairs related to basic policies, property, security. One who wants you to get involved in more red tape is merely talking for sake of talking. Stand tall for firm offers. Cancer native could aid in earning greater profit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cooperate with Gemini — market place for your products, ideas is located. Stress versatility — and do combine business with pleasure. Contact made at social occasion proves valuable. You are going places — and you will have additional funds.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study Gemini and Cancer messages for valuable hints. Accent on income, money, valuables, surprise of locating what had been lost or stolen. You recover from recent setback. You could be compensated by one who originally "went South" with funds.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You make favorable impression, "charisma rating" is high — changes occur and circumstances boost your chances for success. Make personal appearances, imprint style, highlight originality and greater independence. Gemini, another Virgo and a Sagittarian play key roles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Slower pace proves beneficial; moderation and diplomacy should be highlighted. Accent on employment, dependents, basic services and pets. Taurus, Scorpio and another Libra figure prominently. Relative in transit makes request via call or telegram.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Aura of romance pervades scenario — wishes are on brink of being fulfilled. Pisces, Virgo and the number 7 figure prominently. You get news concerning investment — business venture "looks good" from financial standpoint. Throw a party!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent power and "clout." Means cycle is such that you advance, can take lead and dictate your own pace. Someone "at the top" is your ally, whether or not you are aware of it. You will be making money and love!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Expand sphere of operations — means "spread your wings." Finish what you start, make contact with individual who is familiar with travel, public relations. You receive "word" that your projections are on target.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Dig beneath surface — one close to you attempts to explain recent actions. Revise some of your notions. Make creative, intelligent, humane concessions. You get "new lease," based on comprehending what really is — as contrasted to make-believe world.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Maintain wait-and-see attitude. Check legal rights, permissions. You have two valid opportunities for advancement. Key is to go slow — cautious approach results in progress. Cancer, Aquarius natives figure prominently. Confusion will evaporate.

IF MAY 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY You can laugh, express, generate enthusiasm in others — and members of opposite sex find you attractive. You are artistic, versatile, fond of travel, restless and willing to help others develop their talents. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. September will be your "power" month — this is a year of pressure, responsibility, intensified relationships — if single, you could marry. Married or single, you could be promoted, could also be running your own business. In June, you travel and there will be an exciting change in your lifestyle.

Postal settlement by Friday is Ouellet's aim

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet was brimming with determination to quickly settle a contract dispute with the country's 23,000 postal workers without a confrontation and without a strike as he emerged Monday from a Liberal cabinet meeting.

Today he leads a small army of officials from three government departments into the first post-conciliation talks with Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, who will be accompanied by a four-member national bargaining committee.

Following Monday's three-hour cabinet meeting called to discuss the postal dispute, Ouellet told reporters he wants a strike-free negotiated settlement and hopes this can be achieved by Friday.

Parrot has pledged to call a strike vote Thursday or Friday if he is dissatisfied with the government's position in the next three days. The earliest a strike could be called is next Monday as voting would take place over the weekend.

Ouellet described the cabinet meeting as very positive, said he is optimistic a negotiated settlement can be obtained and summed up his feeling of the situation with:

"I believe there is a possibility of avoiding a national strike and we will be working hopefully in close co-operation with the union to avoid a national strike."

The union says the government can settle without a strike by accepting as a package the proposals for a new one-year contract recommended last week by Germain Jutras, chairman of a conciliation board appointed to bring the two sides to an agreement.

Ouellet refused to tell reporters whether cabinet authorized him to accept the Jutras recommendations in part or as a package, saying he must talk to the union before he tells the public how far the government plans to bend.

"You will appreciate that it's difficult for me to bargain in public," Ouellet said.

Officials scheduled to accompany Ouellet in union talks include representatives of the post office, the federal treasury board and the labor department, including Bill Kelly, the government's top troubleshooter in industrial disputes.

The key conciliation recommendations include the government's last wage offer, a half-paid meal hour within the regular eight-hour shift, higher compensation for overtime, night and weekend shift, restrictions on part-time workers and a special grievance clean-up system.

Parrot says this is the minimum the union will accept in exchange for giving up a sweeping set of contract demands that would be resurrected if the union ends up striking. In addition, he wants the government to consider five other demands that Jutras did not endorse.

These include a 20-week paid maternity leave, a ban on electronic surveillance of employees, higher health and safety standards, more generous vacations and shift premiums calculated as a percentage rather than a dollar figure.

These five demands were cited as worthy of consideration by Jacques Desmarais, the union nominee on the conciliation board who otherwise endorsed the Jutras recommendations. Pierre Mercier, the government nominee on the board, rejected most of the Jutras recommendations as too expensive.

The basic hourly starting salaries for full-time postal workers are $7.11 for a mail handler, $7.33 for a postal clerk and $7.51 for a mail despatcher.

CP trainee engineer cited in derailment

VANCOUVER (CP) — Derailment of a CP Rail coal train which ran out of control at speeds of up to 137 kilometres an hour down the western slopes of the Selkirk Mountains near the Alberta-B.C. border has been blamed on a trainee engineer.

The 106-car, seven-engine coal train weighing 15,292 tons, tore out one bridge and damaged a second during a 14.4-kilometre descent from Glacier, below Rodgers Pass, before derailing Nov. 26, 1977. Damage was set at $6 million.

An investigation into the incident by the Canadian transport commission found the train, which was nearly 2,000 metres long, negotiated 24 curves at mounting speed before vehicles started to leave the tracks.

The long-delayed report released Saturday said the trainee engineer from Revelstoke, who was not named, halted at Glacier, 1,033 metres above sea level, to allow an eastbound train to pass before beginning the descent towards Revelstoke.

"Shortly after leaving Glacier it became apparent that efforts to control the speed of the train were not meeting with success and that a loss of control was being experienced," the report states.

Speed is not supposed to exceed 32 km/h, but by the time the train was 3.8 kilometres west of Glacier, it was moving at 69 km/h, and, the report said, the runaway's maximum speed was in excess of 113 km/h.

However, CP Rail officials say that is a serious understatement and the train speed hit 137 km/h before the train derailed.

The lead locomotive stayed on the tracks and the three people in the cab were unhurt.

The conductor and a trainman in the caboose managed to detach themselves from the runaway, come to a stop and then coast safely downhill to the crash site, relying on the hand brakes fitted to the cabose.

The lead locomotive emerged from a concrete snowshed and ran safely across two bridges. By the time it came to rest, 72 cars have been demolished and two badly damaged.

Three locomotives spliced in the middle of the train and valued at $3 million were destroyed while a fourth was badly damaged.

CP Rail, using a spare bridge span was able to clear the damages within 6½ days and get traffic moving again.

The commission ran a detailed series of tests with loaded trains and with a simulator to determine why the brakes of the runaway failed, the report states.

It concluded that the engineer mishandled braking.

Nobody wins Rhinos' vote

MONTREAL (CP) — Almost everybody in the Rhinoceros Party supports nobody as the next president of the United States. That's why they're backing Andy Nobody.

Garbed in floppy black tails and tops, leaders of the satirical party commandeered a funky street festival in Montreal's bohemian district Monday to pledge Rhino support to whoever hobos select at their national convention in Britt, Iowa, on Aug. 2.

So far, only Nobody — an 82-year-old retired vagabond believed to be living in Los Angeles — has declared his candidacy.

Rhino organizer Charles Mckenzie, whose party has become a fixture of Canadian politics with such zany promises as repealing the law of gravity, said Nobody's unaware of his new supporters: "Right now we're looking for Nobody, but nobody can find him."

But the King of the Hobos — a kindly, silver-bearded elderly gent named Steam Train Maury — was bused in from his home in Toledo, Ohio, to mount the Rhino platform and accept the party's support while a brass band played a discordant Star Spangled Banner.

Mackenzie said American Rhinos have already begun proposing planks to help build the hobo candidate's platform, including a plan to construct a causeway between Hawaii and Alaska via San Francisco.

"It would provide hundreds of thousands of jobs, as well as give the hobos thousands of more miles of tracks to travel on."

Mackenzie said a poll of the 318 American Rhinos showed 264 favored nobody for president, which Rhino executives quickly interpreted as support for Nobody.

He added that all U.S. Rhinos would make fine running mates for Nobody. Hence their campaign slogan: "Nobody for president, and everybody for vice."

J.R.Mutchmor, 87, dies in hospital

TORONTO (CP) — James Ralph Mutchmor, a former moderator of the United Church of Canada and known for his relentless fight against alcohol, gambling, commercial sports and literature he considered obscene, died Saturday in hospital after a lengthy illness. He was 87.

Canada's most quoted churchman in his time, he attacked what he called the trend to "eat, drink and play bingo" and called for discipline and control in society.

Mutchmor was elected to a two-year term as church moderator in 1962, but had become the most outspoken United Church leader in Canada years earlier with his attacks on the evils in Canadian society.

Born on Aug. 22, 1892, Mutchmor served during the First World War with the Canadian Artillery and was wounded in action at Vimy Ridge in April, 1917.

In 1920, he was ordained in Winnipeg, where he served until 1936.

India envoy dies at 59

OTTAWA (CP) — General T.N. Raina, India's high commissioner to Canada, died here Monday morning.

Raina, 59, was chief of army staff in India before coming to Canada on March 8, 1979, the high commissioner's office said in a release.

Hostage taking, rioting ends at prison

DRUMHELLER Alta. (UPC) — The routine has returned to normal following a weekend hostage-taking incident and a subsequent riot at the medium security prison here.

Six prison guards — four of whom were injured — were "resting comfortably" after being held hostage for more than five hours by two inmates, said prison warder Dan Wier.

The incidents began Saturday when two "living unit officers" — plainclothes prison guards who work among the prison population — were grabbed when they tried to break up a fight between two inmates about 8:10 p.m.

They were taken to an office in one of the institution units, as were four other guards who went to the office after hearing there was trouble.

Wier said Monday he was not sure how all six came to be held hostage. "We haven't worked that all out for ourselves yet."

During the 5½ hours they were held hostage, one of the guards was stabbed in the shoulder, one had his arm cut and two others received "superficial cuts and bruising from punches and kicks," Wier said.

He said the two inmates who took the officers hostage did not have specific demands when the incident began, but eventually demanded to be moved to a maximum security institution ("which they would get anyway") and phone calls.

One inmate called a girlfriend and another his father, Wier said. After the calls the two released the hostages and turned themselves in.

Meanwhile, about 200 prisoners were being held in an open area of the prison after refusing to return to their cells when the hostage incident began.

About 1:40 a.m., when the prison officials turned their attention to shepherding the inmates back to their cells "a number refused and went on a bit of a spree" damaging about 25 cells, a control unit and burning three living area offices, Wier said.

How U.K.'s 'saboteurs' became Canadians

"Canada was duped," says British author Peter Gillman, in an exclusive interview with FP News Service. "They were under pressure to take Britain's prisoners of war, but ended up with a lot of innocent civilians." Gillman's new book Collar the Lot tells a chilling story of how, in the early stages of the Second World War, Canada tried to help the British war effort by locking up Britain's "enemy aliens." The end result was that instead of getting a dangerous consignment of "spies and saboteurs" Canada found itself guarding a high proportion of doctors, lawyers, pianists and Talmudic scholars.

By JANE O'HARA

LONDON — Canada, under the wartime leadership of the mystic prime minister Mackenzie King, was the unwitting stooge of the British government in 1940, when it agreed to serve as a prison camp for thousands of innocent men and women — many of them Jewish refugees fleeing from NAZI Germany — who were interned and deported from the United Kingdom.

This fact is painstakingly revealed in a new British book, Collar the Lot (Quartet Press $23) by Peter and Leni Gillman, which details Canada's part in Britain's mass deportation of "enemy aliens" during the Second World War. The authors have called the deportation one of the most disreputable acts of the Second World War and Canada's part in it is more to be pitied than censured.

"Collar the Lot" was the phrase used by wartime prime minister Winston Churchill on June 10, 1940 when he ordered the internment of all Italians in the U.K. Shortly after hearing that Italy had entered the war and that France had fallen. But it was not the first time Churchill had advocated wholesale arrests. At his first war cabinet meeting as prime minister on May 11, 1940, Churchill had demanded "a very large round up of enemy aliens and suspect persons".

Although there were grave doubts in cabinet about the willy-nilly dragnet of people of foreign origin, Churchill's orders were followed and within two months more than 27,000 aliens had been arrested, a number just short of the 29,000 interned during the First World War. A number, incidentally which pales in comparison to the 100,000s of Japanese interned by the U.S. and Canada during the Second World War.

Churchill's desire to root out the country's fifth column was doubtless more precautionary than paranoid. After all, the country was living under the threat of an invasion and there were a significant number of ardent Nazis about, many of them in the German merchant marine, who could prove potentially hazardous. The age-old trick of putting spies and saboteurs into a fleeing group of refugees was also a worry, but the indiscriminate seep of aliens could hardly be justified.

Except perhaps to the British military chiefs, the men in MI5 and the ministries who cared little about stepping on the toes of innocent people if it meant stomping on the heads of a few saboteurs. You can't be too careful.

Once the aliens had been encircled, however, the problem became what to do with them? As the numbers — consisting of old men, pregnant women and young children — continued to swell, the places to put them diminished. Already they were occupying race courses and decrepit housing estates and desolate castles in Scotland. They were foul living conditions, for the most part, but it was termed "protective custody."

At any rate, this is where Canada came in.

According to the Gillman's narrative, on June 1[illegible], '40, former prime minister Neville Chamberlain, (who was running home affairs after being ousted by Churchill) announced to British cabinet that Canada had agreed to accept 7,000 internees. Formal negotiations for the transfer however began in late May, when then high commissioner to London, Vincent Massey, was asked by British officials whether Canada would help out with the deportation. According to the British, the aliens presence in Britain posed "serious questions of security."

One June 5, the Canadian cabinet met to discuss the request.

According to documents, dredged up from the National Archives in Ottawa, the cabinet was less than enthusiastic. One minister complained that Canada had its own trouble with aliens, most notably in Saskatchewan, and it was agreed that Britain should be first asked to dump their human lot in either Newfoundland or the West Indies.

In a terse reply, the Canadian government told the British that there were "considerable difficulties" to be overcome. A survey, to be conducted by Canada's director of internment operations, General Edouard Panet, on the facilities "possibly available" was commissioned.

Meanwhile, Churchill was becoming irascibly impatient. On June 3, he dictated the following memo, showing if nothing else his numbers were way out of whack, as only 9,000 aliens had been arrested. "Has anything been done about shipping the 20,000 internees to Newfoundland or St. Helena? . . . I should like to get them on the high seas as soon as possible but I suppose considerable arrangements have to be made at the other end."

On June 7, the British stepped up their pressure on Massey. He was told that there were now 12,000 internees, 2,500 of whom were pro-Nazi sympathizers, and that "in the circumstances the U.K. government hopes that the Canadian government may be pressed to come to our assistance by agreeing to receive the internees as their continued presence is bound to be a most serious risk."

By this time, Panet's report had also been completed. It said that accommodation was available and that retired army vets could act as guards. The next day, the Canadian government sent a message to Britain asking for the British particulars, emphasizing they would have less difficulty accepting prisoners of war rather than garden variety internees.

On June 10, the Canadian cabinet agreed that the prisoners were a "pressing military problem" for Britain and agreed to take 3,000 prisoners of war and 4,000 internees. Of these, 1,500 were Italians who they were assured were the most "dangerous characters of all."

Shortly afterward, Australia also said it would accept a number of internees from the motherland and Newfoundland agreed to take 1,000.

By June 20 the plan was at full steam, when the Canadian Pacific liner, the Duchess of York, pulled up at a Liverpool dock and started loading its human cargo. The passengers were not told where the liner was heading. Many thought they were going to the Isle of Man. With 2,100 internees and 500 prisoners of war aboard, it was loaded to twice its capacity. It was on its way to Canada, and it made the journey safely. The same could not be said about the second liner en route to Canada, the ill-fated Arandora Star.

The people aboard the Arandora Star were a motley lot, not the subversives that Canada thought it would be getting. More than 700 of them were Italians, collared after the Churchillian outburst at Mussolini declaring war. Most of them were restaurateurs, waiters or employed in the catering trade. All were considered members of the Fascio, the Fascist party, yet many were militantly anti-Nazi. Four hundred Germans, some Jewish refugees and some Nazis were also put aboard, as were 374 British soldiers.

On July 1, the Arandora Star left Liverpool and one day later it was torpedoed and sunk by a German U-boat in the North Sea. Half of the passengers were drowned, most of them were Italians who by reason of birth had become entangled in the Churchillian web.

Although the sinking of the Arandora Star threw the British into a slight tailspin, two days later another two liners sailed for Canada and by July 15, close to 7,000 internees and prisoners of war washed up on its shores.

According to the Gillmans' book, their reception was not very exactly warming. When the third ship, the Sobieski arrived in Québec on July 15, the passengers were searched and robbed, although few had anything much to steal. Home became a barb-wire enclosure erected in a sports stadium in Trois Rivieres. Passengers on the second ship, the Ettrick were also robbed by guards on their way to their camp in Sherbrooke, Que., those who sailed on the Duchess of York ended up in an unused mining camp, surrounded by barb wire, just outside Nipigon.

At Nipigon, Canadian officials were first alerted to the fact that they were not guarding a group of spies and saboteurs but a boatload of civilians. Word travelled fast, first to Panet, in charge of internment operations and eventually to Massey, who wired Britain with the message: "A number of questions have now arisen regarding the internees transferred to Canada . . . a number of them, are in their opinion, innocent refugees." In Massey's words, this was a "responsibility of a character which Canada had certainly not contemplated when they consented to receive those internees."

In an embarrassing reply, the British home office confirmed the Canadian suspicions, suggesting somewhat sheepishly "a system of less rigid custodial treatment." General Panet, in turn, attempted to remove all guards from the camps and turn them into "Refugee Republics." This was blocked by the Canadian ministry of defence, with a little strong-arming from the U.S. state department, which wasn't particularly keen about the idea of aliens floating around footloose near their border.

In November, Britain sent ex-prison commissioner, named Alex Paterson, to Canada to sort out the mess. Paterson was welcomed in Ottawa by the new director of internment operations a Colonel H. Stetham, who subjected his British colleague to "a tirade against refugees, Jews and voluntary agencies."

Said Paterson of Stetham: "It was exhilarating to find that anyone could be ruder than an Englishman on his travels." Refugees were a "sick headache" to Stetham, said Paterson. "He disliked them, despised them and distrusted them."

Paterson's first act was to separate the prisoners of war from the civilian internees. Of the 3,100 civilians many hoped to emigrate to the U.S., some hoped to be released in Canada, but the best that Paterson could do for them was to return them to Britain. The U.S. wanted no part of the aliens, even though some, who had ended up against their will in Canada, had visas and were weeks away from emigrating to the U.S. When they were arrested in Britain.

The Canadian government was little better in this regard, saying that it had accepted the deportees for internment, but was not prepared to set them free as civilians.

Various schemes were concocted to get the internees into the States. One was to set them free in Newfoundland, or Cuba, countries from which they could then reapply for emigration. In June, 1941, however, the U.S. House of Representatives closed the door on the British internees for good when it passed an act "To authorize the refusal of visas to public aliens whose admission to the U.S. would endanger public safety."

It is interesting to note that at the sme time as tensions built with the Japanese in the Pacific, the U.S. state department asked the British home office to supply them with instructions on how to carry out their own internment procedures.

It's a grizzly? Climb like hell!

OTTAWA (CP) — If you are confronted by a grizzly bear this summer, the parks department advises that you speak softly and slowly back up against the nearest tree.

"And if it moves towards you, climb like hell and make sure you get high enough," says Dave Adie, a parks employee. "Adult grizzlies aren't good climbers but the big ones have a reach of from eight to 10 feet."

"And never run or yell," says Adie, with the department's visitor services in Calgary. "That will just make them more aggressive."

Grizzly and black bears are regular customers at park campsites in Jasper, Banff and Waterton, all in Alberta, and British Columbia's Kootenay, Yoho and Glacier parks.

An adult black bear weighs about 400 pounds and a grizzly runs 600-800 pounds and sports three-inch claws. Both stand about six feet on hind legs.

Jim O'Brien, head of the department's legislative and policy branch here, says it was once a great attraction to go down to the local garbage dump and see the bears.

"They're seen as cute, cuddly, Yogi Bear types but. . . they're extremely dangerous and unpredictable."

Three persons have been killed in national parks by grizzlies in the last five years.

In Banff, a biologist died when a bear he tranquilized suddenly regained consciousness. In Glacier, a park employee died when he got between a female and her cub. A companion was badly mauled.

And in Waterton, a small girl was pulled from the shore of a lake while her father fished nearby.

Adie warns that bears live in most of the parks and campers have a good chance of meeting one.

"We've had reports of bears robbing campsites and scaring people off so they could eat their dinner."

In Ontario's Algonquin park near Pembroke, three boys were killed and partially eaten in 1978 by a black bear that officials believe was attracted by the smell of fish coming from the youngsters' clothes.

Others have lost their fear of humans and will wander into town looking for food.

"Anything they can get at they will and you've got to go a long way to stop them," says O'Brien, who pointed out that it is illegal to carry firearms in the parks.

Bears have been known to knock over 1,000-pound garbage containers by rocking them.

To solve that problem, the department had a new trash container designed. The five-foot-high container is mounted on fixed posts and must be hydraulically lifted and tipped to remove garbage.

It's worth about $2,000, and 100 will be installed in Jasper and Banff. New park rules now specify the exact type of enclosure to be used to store garbage.

And department officials hand out pamphlets warning campers to store food and garbage away from their tents.

Adie says the rule of thumb is: "If you see a black bear make a detour. If you see a grizzly bear leave the area at once."

And don't feed the bears.

"The problem isn't feeding them," laughed Adie. "It's when you stop that you've got a problem."

Yukon shrinks in new survey

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Yukon Territory is actually 10 per cent smaller than the size long enshrined in atlases and gazeteers.

That discovery was made by Dr. Y. Jim Lee while doing systems-design work in the Yukon for the federal Pacific Research Centre.

Officially, the Yukon is now 482,515 square kilometres, not 536,325.

The 53,810 square kilometres lost represents an area that, if it existed, would be nearly twice the size of Vancouver Island.

"I checked the data with the department of energy, mines and resources," Lee said. "And to everyone's amazement it was found that the official figures were wrong."

As a result, and after a lot of official checking, the size has been whittled down in the Canada Year Book, published by Statistics Canada.

Could this mean that Canada, over-all, is less of a giant from sea to shining sea than we had been led to believe?

"It may well be," Lee said. "It would depend on how area sizes were arrived at in each province originally."

Suspect nabbed

MONT ST. HILARE, Que. (CP) — Police have arrested a man for the theft last January of a sculpture by Quebec artist Robert Roussil. The work, estimated to be worth $135,000, was recovered in St. Hyacinthe from an auctionneer who had bought it in good faith.

Time again ripe for U.S. war hero film?

scott's world

by vernon scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — How long has it been since you've seen a movie with an unmitigated military American hero?

Since John Wayne?

Following the Second World War there was a plethora of films celebrating the exploits of heroic American soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen.

But for the past two decades the military man as protagonist has been out of favor, excepting such rare and flamboyant figures as Patton and MacArthur.

Where are the combat heroes of Korea and Vietnam? Who are the nameless, faceless, unpublicized men who fought in those conflicts?

There were Medal of Honor winners in both wars and, to be sure, there was no dearth of courage, sacrifice and patriotism.

Tragically, they found themselves in the wrong wars at the wrong time.

One wonders if the exploits of Sgt. Alvin York in the First World War and Audie Murphy in the Second would have been been the subject of movies had their accomplishments taken place in the unpopular wars of Korea and Vietnam.

Probably not.

Instead of films portraying heroic American GIs, strong tides of anti-war sentiment in this country have given birth to the unsympathetic soldier in Coming Home, Apocalypse Now and The Deer Hunter.

If they are not made to look like outright villains, combat troops, at best, are portrayed as dupes or automatons.

Producer Tom McDermott, unfazed by current sentiment, is convinced American moviegoers are ready for a a genuine war hero on the screen. But like other film makers he has turned to the Second World War.

McDermott is preparing a four-hour CBS-TV movie on the life of General Claire Chennault, the controversial founder of the Flying Tigers and a towering figure to this day in China.

"Chennault was a hero in the true sense of the word," McDermott said. "He spoke up for his principles knowing full well he was incurring the wrath of the military establishment in Washington.

"He was more than just a military genius and strategist. He was a real combat officer. He shot down 40 Japanese planes himself.

"The amazing thing to me is that his story has never been told on the screen. I wanted to do a Chennault feature film in the 1960s, but movie people weren't interested.

"I bought screen rights from his wife, Anna, who also gave me Chennault's personal diary. Now we're getting ready to roll.

"The last war hero success on the screen was Patton. It succeeded beause it was more than just a war story. This film will include Chennault's romance with Anna and his love for China, too.

"Actually, Chennault was a greater hero in China than in the United States. He virtually saved the Chinese from annihilation by building an air force from scratch.

"Few stories about larger-than-life heroes also include a great love story. Chennault was in his 60s when he fell in love with a Chinese girl of 19. Her family objected to the interracial marriage. But he won them over.

"They were married and had two children. Anna became a powerful influence on his life. Chennault died in 1958 but Anna, who lives in Washington, D.C., is still an active woman and recently wrote a new book about her husband."

McDermott will film his movie on locations in the Philippines if he does not win permission to shoot on the Chinese mainland.

He said the two most worrisome elements of the film are the casting of the title role and rounding up enough P-41s — the famed Flying Tiger pursuit plane — to lend a sense of reality to the action scenes.

He would like to land William Holden, George C. Scott or Karl Malden for the Chennault role. He will comb air museums and private collectors to come up with at least a dozen P-41s.

McDermott's primary concern should be American antipathy to war heroes.

"I'm not so sure about that," he said. "Some of the old values are coming back. Adversity brings a country together.

"Times are changing. People seem to be getting more patriotic, especially since the hostages were taken in Iran and since the Russians invaded Afghanistan.

"I realize Korea and Vietnam didn't produce any public heroes. You can't cast a man in bronze for participating in an unpopular war. But Chennault and other Americans were fighting on the side of the angels in World War II.

"Americans today are looking for heroes. God knows we don't have any in Washington."

TV viewers falter in retaining facts

NEW YORK (AP) — A study conducted for advertisers indicates that television viewers misunderstand between a quarter and a third of what they watch, whether it is news, entertainment or advertising.

In fact, the study conducted by Prof. Jacob Jacoby of Purdue University shows that viewers are more likely to misunderstand news and entertainment programs than commercials.

"Of course, a reasonable argument is that the consequences of miscomprehending most TV programs tend to be trivial when compared to the consequences of miscomprehending, and then acting upon, advertising," Jacoby added.

The study was done for the Educational Foundation of the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

Jacoby and a team of Purdue researchers made the study in shopping malls of 12 major cities, where each of 2,300 viewers above the age of 13 looked at two 30-second excerpts from television.

The researchers used 60 different excerpts, from commercials, entertainment shows, news programs and public affairs annoncements.

Immediately after each screening, the viewers were given a six-question, true-and-false test on what they saw.

Jacoby said the study showed that 83.2 percent of all viewers misunderstood some part of what they viewed. None of the 60 excerpts totally escaped misunderstanding by viewers.

The range of misunderstanding was between 23 and 36 per cent for all communications, the report said. However, entertainment and news programs had a misunderstanding rate of 32 per cent compared with 28 per cent for advertising.

Jacoby said sex, income, marital status and size of family seemed to have no effect on misunderstanding, but he found a slight relationship between misunderstanding and age or education.

The more educated viewers understood better, and those between 18 and 44 understood better than those under 18 or over 44.

French Kiss leads slate

MONTREAL (CP) — A movie with the titillating title of French Kiss leads the slate of movies starting production in Montreal after the winter hiatus.

Directed by Roger Vadim — who put Brigitte Bardot on the screen — French Kiss began filming last week in the Montreal subway system.

A romantic comedy produced by Harold Greenburg of Astral Productions, the movie pairs French actress Marie-France Pisier and American actor Wayne Rogers, star of the television sitcom, House Calls.

The petite Miss Pisier played the brunette wife in Cousin, Cousine, and more recently starred in the American movie, French Postcards.

After an eight-week shoot here, French Kiss moves to New York.

Producer Greenburg also plans to make The Secret Self here this summer. Formerly given the working title Freaks, the film is about bizarre circus performers.

Opening lead — four of hearts.

Let's assume you're West and lead a heart against three notrump. East wins dummy's king with the ace and plays the queen, on which you play the three, informing partner that you started with five hearts.

East then leads the jack, South following suit. At this point — before playing to the trick — you have the 10-7-5 of hearts left. They are all equal in value, so it seems that it makes no difference which one you play.

However, the card you select is of tremendous importance to the discriminating eye. Let's suppose you play the five, which is what most players would do. East, who is not a mind reader, would almost surely return a club and South would then romp home with nine tricks.

Now let's suppose you played the ten of hearts on East's jack, instead of the five. In that case, if we assume that you and East are familiar with the suit-preference convention, your partner would return a spade. You'd win the spade with the ace and cash the 7-5 of hearts to put the contract down two.

If you are a devotee of the suit-preference convention and have a choice of which card to play from a group of equal cards, the one you play indicates the suit you'd like partner to lead next. A high card asks partner to lead the highest available suit; a low card asks partner to lead the lowest available suit.

And so, in the case before us, where East has no heart to return and a diamond return would be downright ridiculous, there are only two suits left — spades and clubs — for East to choose from.

Your play of the ten of hearts, a high card, commands East to return the higher-ranking suit — spades.

21 HELP WANTED GENERAL

GROUP HOME STAFF NEEDED

Experienced mature staff (couples or individuals) are needed to operate an independant group home on a contractual basis for up to six retarded teenagers. These youngsters currently live in community or institutional settings and attend community schools. They need the warmth and security of caring parent figures. They also need the structure and guidance necessary to develop personal life skills and appropriate social behaviours to enable them to function in the community. Since seizures and hyperactivity can be problems staff should be prepared to deal with these. Staff should be familiar and comfortable with a variety of behaviour management techniques. They would be expected to work closely and effectively with the Ministry of Human Resources, other community resources and, with the social workers help, the parents, in meeting the needs of these children. Some bookkeeping experience would also be useful. Please send resume including relevant experiences and references by May 31th to Doug Matheson, Ministry of Human Resources, 1627 Fort St., Victoria, B.C., V8R 1H8. Phone 598-5121.

39 PERSONALS

BE THERE A LADY SO FAIR, who misses what she feels ought to be, and dares to care? If there is, she may wish to know that there is, a Canadian gentleman "of English decent" who feels likewise. The question then of course, is how do they discover each other? this experiment is designed to enable but a beginning. The view held is that the Lady will now be a widow sufficiently unencumbered by bias, bigotry, prejudice and poverty that will enable her to enter into a mutual agreement with a suitable Gentleman with a free heart. She should, to interest the Gentleman, be matured by 50 to 60 years of time, reasonably tall, conscious of her figure, enjoy the outdoor things of life, most sports and be not afraid to let it "hang out, if a suitable occasion arises. She will most definately not run and hide if he gets "into a fight trying to protect her." The Mid West "at present located" Gentleman you may meet is a very young active Aquarian Widower, aged 66, nearly 6' tall, usually about 155 lbs. in reasonably good health and because of past experiences can quickly adapt to almost any situation. Does intend, upon relocation, to become actively employed and will reply to all respondents if possible. Thanking in advance anyone who rises to this occasion I'm, Shayne Cook, Victoria Press Box 823.

Watchdog Richards Report #170. Congratulations to former Mayor Peter Pollen for his letter to the Editor in last Thursday's Times entitled Pollen's view. Your City's Watchdog asks all Victoria residents interested in seeing that the Rainbow site remains a park area to attend the City Council public hearing on May 22nd at 7:30pm. If you wish further information regarding Municipal matters, please continue to phone 383-6259 Your City's Watchdog C. Joe Richards or write P.O Box 154. Seen in passing, Bunny Smith, it has been good to have you prepare most of the food for City Hall Functions these past 7 years, best of luck to you in the future. Postscript: Ted Hunt of Duncan, it was good to know you while you were a patient at Victoria General Hospital. PPS: Please drive safely over the holiday weekend, the life you save may be your own.

I AM IN MY LATE FIFTIES, tall, physically attractive, well bred and healthy. A man would be proud to be seen with me anywhere. I have an outgoing, charming personality, but have also been dictatorial opinionated, critical, domineering and tempestous most of my life. So the man who wants to know me will have to be well above average, willing and able to discern, appreciate and encourage the beautiful loving loyal gentlewoman I really am. Victoria Press Box 723.

The Lord is my Shepherd

I shall not want

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures

He restoreth my soul

He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake

Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death

I will fear no evil

For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff
they comfort me

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies

Thou anointest my head with oil

My cup runneth over

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

309 IN MEMORIAM

HILL - In loving memory of Gloria K. Hill who passed away May 20, 1979.
I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own:
And day by day I miss her more,
As I walk through life alone.
Always remembered by her husband Alex.

PORTER—In loving memory of my beloved husband Richard (Dick) Porter who died May 18, 1968.
There is a link death cannot sever,
Love & Remembrance last forever.
May

SHEPPARD — Glen Andrew. In loving memory of our one and only dear son who passed away May 20, 1979.
It's been hard to lose you dear Son
And our tears will forever flow.
But with God's help, perhaps we'll understand
Why our dear Son had to go.
We feel your presence every day
Which helps our heavy hearts.
Rest in peace dear Son, we really are not apart.
—From his Mother and Father Edward and Jacqueline Sheppard.

Sleep on dear good mother, it has been long years

Since you left our hearts filled with sadness and tears

Yours was a heart that was blithesome
and gay

Scattering sunshine all along the way

You know how we love you
love you yet

Though God took you from us, we cannot forget.

Japanese trade lesson

MONTREAL (CP) — Giant Japanese trading companies called sogoshosha are models Canada could use to boost exports of manufactured goods, says a study issued Tuesday by the Institute for Research on Public Policy.

Sogoshosha combine financial strength and marketing intelligence to serve groups of large industrial companies, institute director Zavis Zeman said as he presented the study. These in turn are attached to a group of smaller client companies.

These firms have been an essential element of Japanese prosperity by offering smaller manufacturing firms essential information they need to penetrate foreign markets, and they bring many firms together to provide economies of scale and access to financing.

They also provide distribution channels and managerial expertise, and their large internal market function permits them to barter goods and services among themselves.

Hot flames of black rage put the torch to Miami

Woman tries on sneakers in razed shopping centre while old man watches

By MICHAEL FOWLER

MIAMI (UPI) — After long hours of violence, the sound of black rage was the crunch of tires on streets paved with broken glass.

The smell was the acrid odor of burning factories, warehouses and stores. The look was gaping holes in windowless buildings, husks of burnt-out cars, collapsed roofs, twisted girders and piles of rubble.

Police call it a "war zone" and Monday, during the first hours of calm since four former Dade County policemen — whites — were quickly acquitted in Tampa Saturday of participating in the beating death of a black man. The nickname fits.

In the sunny, smoky, uneasy calm of Monday afternoon, Liberty City, 20 square miles of squalor and industry in the northwest part of Dade County, looked like a bombed-out city, a scene of devastation.

Streets glistened with broken windshield and bottle glass. Dozens of burned cars sat in the middle of thoroughfares, minus tires and windows. Thick black smoke poured from half a dozen buildings.

Only the ragged edges of walls marked where dozens of buildings, most of them large stores, once stood.

At major intersections and along the perimeter, National Guardsmen stood beside jeeps with M-16 rifles balanced on their hips.

People had died during the two preceding nights of violence that began in Liberty City and spread to other parts of the city. More were to die.

In the quiet, life went on — but not as before.

Three black women and a man washed clothes in a launderette. Next door, the contents of a small grocery store spilled through broken glass doors.

A teen-aged bike rider peddled curiously by firefighters battling flames still flickering from the Miami Cordege Co., a factory now reduced to a pile of rubble and twisted steel girders.

At Earl's Supermarket, three portly women picked through the litter in the parking lot, loading things into shopping carts.

Cars parked helter-skelter filled the parking lot of a shopping centre. All had flat tires and on the side of each was spray-painted "looter."

Few stores were open. Small groups of black men clustered at street corners and watched as a procession of cars filled with whites carrying TV cameras passed.

Some mugged. Some raised their fists in black power salutes. Others hoisted a single finger in a more blatant show of defiance while many shouted obscenities sprinkled with threats.

On a section of smoke-charred orange wall at the Norton Tire Co., someone had written in 2-foot-high letters with black spray paint: "F—- the white."

Six Guardsmen sat on boxes at one corner, a few storefronts up from a looted liquor store, its windows broken out. A few feet away, three small black children in shorts and T-shirts watched them intently.

Guardsmen and police were not the only armed white men in Liberty City.

Three, named Benny, Crazy Steve and Rod Schram, sat in front of the Palm Lake Trailer Park, half a block from a vigorously burning store called the Thrift Shop. All three hoisted 16-gauge shotguns.

"We're just protecting our homes," said Benny, who declined to give his last name. They said they had sat, armed and ready, since Sunday night when a nearby shopping center burst into flames and they chased away a carload of young black men with volleys from shotguns, rifles and handguns.

"The cops are all for what we're doing," said Crazy Steve, a 29-year-old mechanic. "They came by and looked at us and said 'Keep it up.'"

Crazy Steve said he was baffled by it all.

"I spent a while in Texas and a while in Mississippi and what they're doing doesn't make any sense to me," he said.

Keith Orsborne, 43, a white man whose T-shirt displays his nickname, "Big Nigger," said: "Hey, those cops was wrong, they should have put those cops in jail. But these people are only hurting themselves. They're burning out their own people."

Many blacks said they weren't baffled at all.

"This was predictable," said Betty Deal, a black social worker, as she watched the Thrift Store burn. "A person can only tolerate so much before he starts biting back."

A muscular, 29-year-old black named Murray, who declined to give his last name, added: "I hope it's not over. If it's over now, we didn't accomplish anything. It was just a weekend thing.

"I want it to go on, so people know we have something to say."

Monday morning, and the Culmer section of Miami looks like a war zone after the weekend's rioting

Wisterias: questions and answers

When the beautiful climbing Wistarias come into bloom (or fail to bloom) questions on their care and culture reach a peak. This column contains answers to the six or eight questions most frequently asked.

Two things the Wistaria does not like are transplanting and fertilizer. It suffers some setback when planted, but a good plant soon recovers.

Fertilizer causes rampant growth at the expense of flowers. The only time to apply a general fertilizer if it is needed (not otherwise) is during late February. Since the root system is deep and extensive, a small amount has to be spread over a wide area.

The two best known species in this latitude are Wistaria sinensis (chinensis) from China, and W. floribunda (multijuga or macrobotrys) from Japan. These two have distinct characteristics.

W. sinensis has flower clusters 6 to 12 inches long, leaves with 7 to 133 large leaflets, no fragrance, no autumn coloring, flowers appear before the leaves, and vines twine from left to right.

W. floribunda has flower clusters to 48 inches in length, fragrant, 13 to 19 leaflets to a leaf, turns yellow in fall, leaves appear during flowering, vines twine from right to left.

The flowers of sinensis are large, the entire cluster opening within a few days, a brief but outstanding display. Flowers on floribunda are much smaller, opening slowly down the long flower stem to the tip, giving a few fragrant flowers on each cluster for over three weeks.

Named varieties of floribunda have peach, pink, pale lilac, and white flowers, and the variety floraplena large double blooms of deep violet. Sinensis is limited to purples and pure white.

Cultural practices considered essential at the end of the last century are now considered harmful, and the culture for one part of this continent seems useless in another part.

All climbers climb to get above other plants; when planted in full sun they often remain as bushes. Wistarias need a deeply dug, humus rich soil, and plenty of moisture. E. H. Wilson, studying the genus in China, found plants growing by pools and streams produced flower clusters 64 inches long. The two American species are both native to damp ground, one being a bog plant.

Under garden cultivation, Wistarias need pruning twice a year for good flowering. Rampant growths are cut back to 4 leaves (not leaflets) in July to August, and the shortened growths cut back to two growth buds in February-March until flower spurs develop.

Eventually these shortened growths will produce flower buds near their bases and the growth becomes a flowering spur which continues to produce flowers year after year. Flowering spurs must never be cut off, but the extension growth beyond the flower buds is shortened a little at winter pruning.

The Wistaria is a long lived plant and worth careful cultivation. There are specimens over 100 years old covering hundreds of square feet, branching from a main stem 12 inches in diameter at soil level.

While fertilizer and the lack of pruning are reasons for some of the poor specimens seen in local gardens, there is also the problem of plants raised from seed.

All named varieties are grafted plants, therefore the most expensive. While sinensis comes fairly true from seed, there is great variation in floribunda seedlings, and cheap seedlings are expensive at any price.

The plants are usually offered for sale when 3 years old, 18 inches high with a cluster of leaves at the tip. Two years after planting (5 years old) the first climbing vine appears, after which top growth is rapid.

Marine park on agenda

Building a marine park in Cordova Bay won't harm ocean life, but would be very unpopular with people who live in the area, says an impact study prepared for Saanich.

Dumping fill to construct a five- to 15-acre breakwater near a municipal beach access at Fenn and Walema is biologically feasible, according to the report by Thurber Consultants Ltd.

However, negative impact of the proposed marine park on Cordova Bay residents is rated high.

There is a strong possibility some waterfront property owners will sue the municipality for damages if it builds the breakwater, the report says.

Residents close to the shore will be subjected to noise, dust, overcrowding and a deterioration of waterfront views.

A breakwater would change tidal patterns along the shoreline, it says.

The marine park idea was suggested last year by the municipal engineering department as a way to get rid of fill and create a recreation area at the same time.

Thurber has been working on its report since last fall.

The consultants say a marine development would benefit residents of other areas of the municipality by providing more beach access and boat launching areas.

Dumping fill steadily for several years would have little effect on the 44 tons of geoducks believed to be in the study area, the report says.

Other ocean life along the shore would probably just avoid the disturbance caused by the fill, it says.

The park could be developed without cost to the municipality by charging independent truckers a dumping fee, the report suggests.

Council will discuss the report at tonight's meeting.

CP ship officers huddle

Licensed ships' officers employed by CP Rail met today to plan future strategy in their contract dispute which has shut down the company's passenger and freight service to Vancouver Island.

Leo Gray, business agent for the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, said one of the questions to be answered is whether the cruise ship Princess Patricia will be idled by the dispute when it arrives back in Vancouver Friday.

The Patricia is currently on her first trip up the coast this season.

The passenger ferry Princess of Vancouver and two other truck and rail ferries have been tied up since last Thursday when the 75 officers began a study session.

The only reason the walkout is not labelled a strike is that such action is not allowed by the B.C. Federation of Labor until the union has served 72-hour notice. Gray said that notice will be given today, allowing the officers to set up pickets, if they wish, in 72 hours.

Gray said there was no contact with the company during the long weekend and no talks are scheduled.

RCMP have identified two men killed in separate Vancouver Island traffic mishaps.

Harald Gerke, 18, of Lantzville, was killed Sunday morning in a single-vehicle accident on the Island Highway about 20 kilometres north of Nanaimo Police say Gerke died when his sports car left the highway and plunged down a steep embankment.

Ingo Wolfgang Horst Marcel Brust, 61, of Old Cowichan Lake Road, died in a two-car collision two kilometres northwest of Duncan Thursday.

Chuck your old chequing account

Write all the cheques and make all the withdrawals you want and never be charged a penny. With charges at some banks of up to $1.00 that could add up to a big saving. No-charge chequing is a bonus for keeping as little as $200 in your account throughout the month.

and a whole lot more

Daily Interest

Most chequing accounts pay no interest. Bank of Montreal pays interest on every dollar in your account, every day. So when you make a deposit you're earning interest on your money for all those days before the cheques you've written go through.

Interest Paid Monthly

We don't stop at daily interest. Instead of paying you interest semi-annually, interest you earn is credited to your account each and every month.

Automatic Transfer

Even though we pay daily interest on your chequing account, don't leave your savings there. You just might be tempted to write a cheque and spend them. We can arrange to have your money automatically transferred to a Daily Interest Savings Account that pays you the high rate of interest you expect for savings. Just ask.

Descriptive Monthly Statement

We'll keep you up-to-date on your account by providing an easy to follow detailed record of all your transactions. Our new Descriptive Monthly Statement works with your low cost sequentially numbered, personalized scenic cheques. The number on each cheque that is paid will appear opposite the appropriate entry on your statement.

Forget the fuss of storing your cancelled cheques. We'll do it for you and keep your cheques for 15 years, should you ever need them.

Monthly Bottom Line Balance

Another advantage is that this one statement identifies the balances in each of your accounts in every branch and totals them to give you your bottom line. This way you'll always be on top of all your account balances every month. Available on request at no additional charge.

Multi-Branch Banking™

Get to your money instantly at almost every branch of Bank of Montreal. Across town, across the country, it's just as easy as banking at your own branch.

Ask about the new personal chequing account that saves you money, earns you money, makes money management easier and more efficient and lets you get to your money almost anywhere you go. It's available at most branches. Start taking advantage of the new chequing account that gives you so much for so little.

Sun storm effects feared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A magnetic "super storm" may be lurking in the future, ready to create chaos and unprecedented blackouts in power transmissions around the world, a government report says.

Conditions are ripe for a massive radiation burst from the sun, one that could disturb the earth's magnetic field and in turn cause significant problems for power systems, said Howard Sargent of the Space Environment Services Center at Boulder, Colo.

The powerful magnetic storms, invisible to the eye, tend to occur after the peak of the sun's 11-year sunspot cycle and seem particularly likely following every second solar cycle, Sargent said.

The latest 11-year cycle of sunspot activity has just peaked and it is the one most likely to produce the outbursts of solar flares.

The resulting magnetic disruptions around the earth set up currents in power transmission lines that cause overloads and eventual blackouts.

Radio communications often are hampered by more common, small magnetic storms, but the smaller storms rarely cause power outages. Those storms have been reported in recent months as the sunspot cycle peaked.

In 15 years of government monitoring of magnetic storm activity, the most powerful episode of solar flares was recorded in August, 1972. There were numerous, but minor power disruptions.

The world's power transmission systems have become more vulnerable since then with longer lines and more fragile interconnections, said Sargent.

He said on an index where a major magnetic storm rates 100, the 1972 event reached 220. In the past 100 years, he said, it is thought there have been 17 registering more than 350 and those are what Sargent calls "super storms."

The temperate and even tropical climates can see the shimmering lights of the aurora, which usually appear in the skies of the polar region, during unusually strong magnetic storms.

In 1972, the aurora was spotted as far south as Kentucky.

Genetic damage evidence

New York Times

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has found evidence that some residents of the Love Canal area in Niagara Falls, N.Y., may have suffered chromosome damage from toxic chemicals buried there, federal officials have reported.

Sources familiar with the study said that 11 of 36 people tested on Jan. 18 and 19 — just over 30 per cent — exhibited very rare chromosomal aberrations. Seventeen adult men and 19 adult women were tested, these sources said. None seemed to be ill when they were chosen, as a representative sample, for the blood tests.

The 11 with chromosone damage reportedly exhibited chromosome breakage of an extraordinary nature in that extra pieces had been discovered. Most scientists in this field believe that such chromosomal changes are frequently linked to cancer and should be taken seriously as a harbinger of the disease and that in adults they could lead to genetic damage in offspring.

A spokesman for the Hooker Chemicals and Plastics Corp., which dumped the chemicals at the site over the years, commented that the conclusions of the study were "premature" and were bound to cause "unnecessary anxiety" among Love Canal residents.

The federal officials who disclosed the findings asked not to be identified.

So far 'Euroterrorism' is being licked

By MARIO ROSSI
Christian Science Monitor

PARIS — Despite the enormous damage it causes, European terrorism is a failure. In all the countries where it has struck — mainly West Germany, France, Italy and Spain — the targets for disruption have resisted the onslaught.

Terrorists have two main objectives: (1) to disorganize the economy so as to cause its breakdown; (2) to produce such political and social tension that the army and the police will follow the example of Argentina and install a right-wing counterterror.

Once a country has turned to fascism in whatever form, terrorists believe, the enemy becomes clearly identifiable and the struggle acquires an ideological undertone around which to mobilize the masses. The resulting situation would lead to civil war and the subsequent disintegration of the state. Radical communism then could be erected over the state's ruins.

So far, the gamble has proven a losing one. The country most touched by terrorism, Italy, is typical in this respect.

In its effort to disorganize the Italian economy, terrorism is abetted by the inefficiency and corruption of the Christian Democratic administration. With their almost instinctive diffidence towards the state, however, Italians have reacted with all sorts of subterfuges. The most successful is the creation of a parallel economy where industries work, produce and export. Thanks in good part to it, the Italian balance of payments and gold reserves are in excellent shape.

The Italian economy is in serious trouble owing to inflation and unemployment; but it is very far from collapsing and the same can be stated with an even greater emphasis for the other European countries where terrorism is active.

The danger that the military might turn these countries into another Argentina seems equally remote. Thanks to the reforms that followed an attempted coup d'etat in Italy by army elements some time ago, the Italian military people today are fully trusted for their attachment to the constitution by all political formations, Communists included.

In France, the traumatic experience of the Algerian war split the military very deeply at one time, causing rebellions. Today, however, no such threat exists.

Only Spain is causing some anxiety. So long as the army remains faithful to the king, no major problem will arise.

Two more reasons contribute to render terrorism ineffective: the role of the labor unions and the co-ordination among the various European police forces.

The workers realize that a disorganization of the economy would hurt them as much as the capitalists. The terrorists also are against the Communist parties, which they accuse of following the wrong road to power. The Communist-controlled labor unions, powerful in France and Italy, favor the measures to combat terrorism.

The various terrorist groups support one another across the borders in what the press now refers to as "Euroterrorism." But the police support one another, too.

Last December, the nine members of the European Community signed a convention at Dublin against terrorism. The ministers of the interior, responsible for the police, meet at regular intervals in places kept secret. The Italian police, for example, close both eyes if their French colleagues pursue a criminal for a number of miles inside Italy's own territory, and vice versa.

This entente among police causes some concern for the future of civil liberties. At the same time it is being realized that the greatest threat to liberty is terrorism itself.

Huge turnout for Quebec vote

MONTREAL (CP) — Lineups and some frayed tempers were the order of the day at many polling stations as Quebecers voted today to determine the outcome of the province's historic referendum.

People queued at many urban polling stations before the polls opened at 9 a.m., and there were reports of 45-minute waits in some cases as many of the province's 4.3 million voters heeded appeals to cast their ballots early and avoid an expected late-afternoon crush.

With most regions bathed in sunshine a record turnout for a Quebec vote, perhaps as much as 90 per cent of the electorate was predicted. Turnout at advance polls last Friday and Sunday was extremely heavy.

Both CBC and CTV will begin televised coverage of the referendum results at 4 p.m. this afternoon.

Full details of the voting, the reaction of Canadian citizens and political leaders and of the financial community at home and abroad, along with analysis of what the results mean will be carried in Wenesday's Times.

Two men and a woman were arrested by police for parading around a polling station in nearby St. Bruno dressed in military camouflage garb, police reported. The trio were not armed.

St. Bruno police said they had their faces painted black in combat style. They will be charged with impersonating military personnel.

Police were called to a polling station in the city's Outremont district when a shoving match ensued among voters angry with slow service from their poll clerk, and there were reports of minor problems at several other Montreal-area polling stations.

Campaign material was supposed to be removed on polling day, but police here decided to turn a blind eye to violations except where there were specific complaints.

The referendum on sovereignty-association was viewed as an historic turning point for Quebec and Canada, since it was the first time Quebecers had been asked to vote on their place within Confederation.

However they voted, Quebecers may have felt they couldn't win — if they believed the parting pleas Monday from leaders of the yes and no camps.

"It would be tragic to leave Canada," Quebec Liberal Leader Claude Ryan told a rally in his home riding of Argenteuil. "Let us accept instead the great challenge of co-existence."

Premier Rene Levesque warned, however, that a refusal to grant his Parti Quebecois government a mandate to negotiate sovereignty-association would be "very sad for Quebec and Canada."

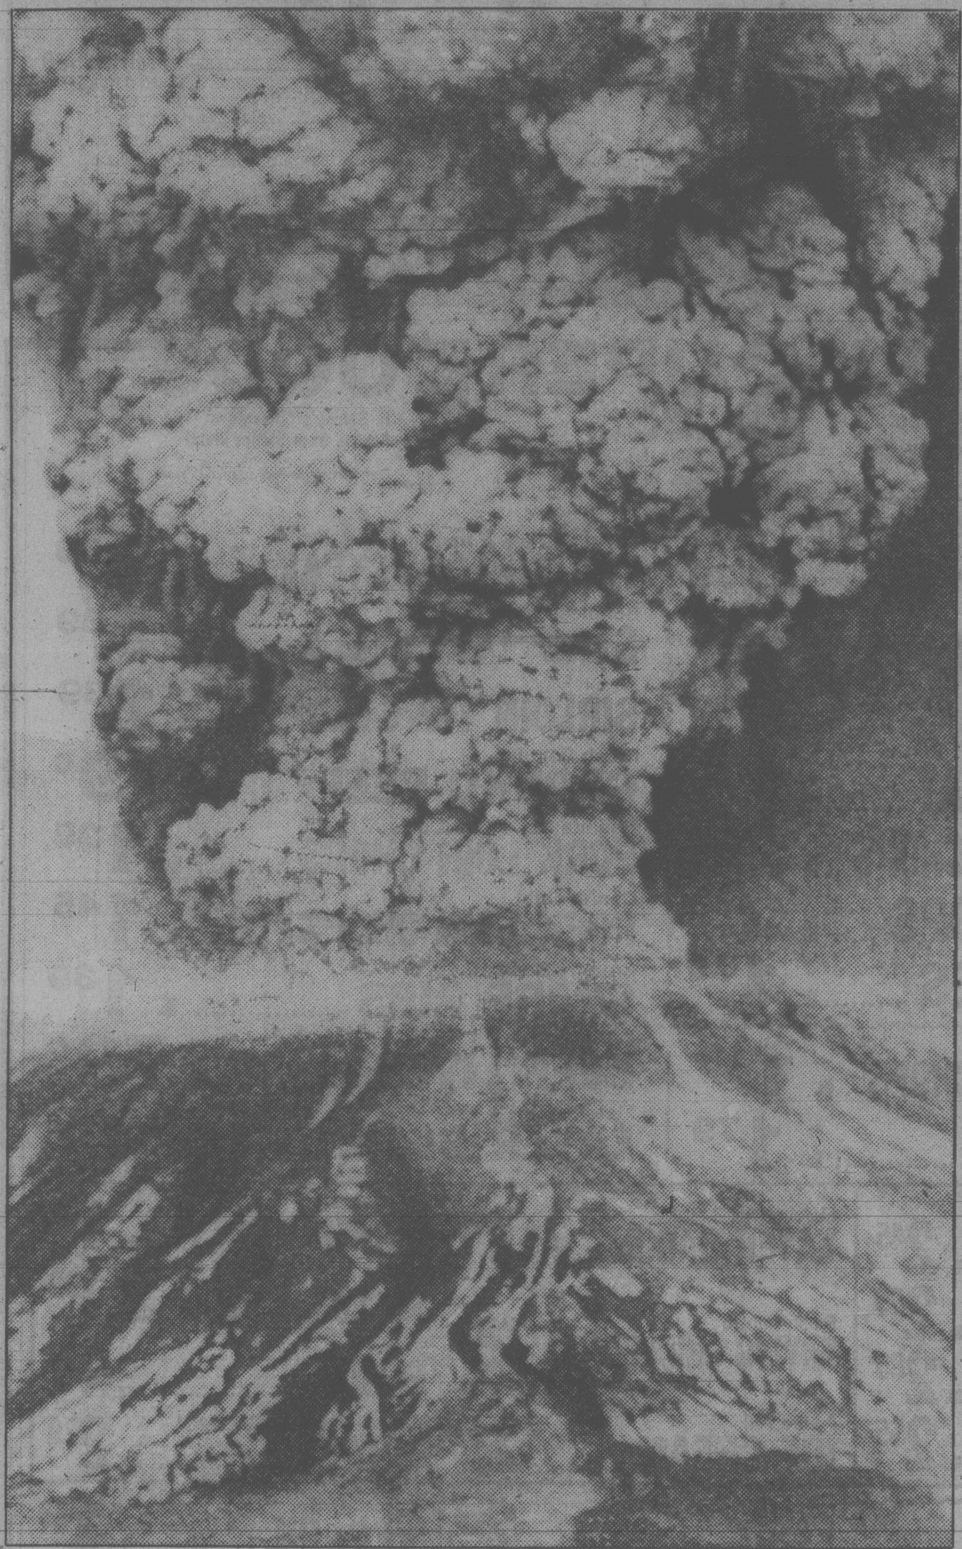
Chaos in volcano's wake



Mount St. Helen's unleashes blast of ash and debris (above) forcing Spokane residents (lower right) to use gas masks on a shopping trip to protect themselves from the blanket of ash over the city. Like a rag doll, an unidentified victim of the volcano lies in a truck (upper right) succumbed to heat and gases. More pictures and stories are on pages 6, 7 and 15.

Spreading ash closes roads

Times News Services

Volcanic ash from erupting Mount St. Helens wrought havoc today with travellers throughout the Pacific Northwest. Most roads, airports and railroad tracks remained closed, and mud and debris blocked ship travel on the Columbia River.

Schools were closed, telephone lines were jammed with anxious callers, while hospitals filled with patients suffering respiratory problems. Amtrak and Burlington Northern halted all rail traffic in the region.

The ash seriously restricted visibility and forced the closure of all major highways from the east slopes of the Cascade mountains through eastern Washington and Idaho to the Montana border and north into parts of B.C. and the Canadian prairies. Driving conditions were hazardous in many areas and drivers were being encouraged to avoid all but emergency travel.

The number of persons listed as missing increased today to 98 from previous estimates of 29 despite the discovery of a number of survivors.

At Mount St. Helen's, small groups of survivors of the eruption, including at least two children, have been located huddled in clearings in the devastated landscape.

Military aircraft which made a detailed search of the Toutle River Valley area at the northern foot of the volcano reported finding the survivors late Monday.

"It's impossible to try to say what these people have undergone, what intense heat and horror they have endured," a spokesman for the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration said. "It's a miracle they are alive."

The family, which was camping within 10 miles of the mountain when it erupted Sunday, had found refuge in an abandoned mine shaft.

Nine people in relatively safe areas were picked up by helicopters Monday but a rescue attempt to pick up two adults and two children spotted standing in a clearing of the scorched terrain had to be called off as darkness fell.

Five more people were seen waving just north of the river and more were spotted about 32 kilometres away.

Around the survivors, lakes are bubbling beneath torrents of hot mud.

The sister of Harry Truman, the stubborn 84-year-old man who refused to be evacuated from the Spirit Lake area, said Monday her brother is probably entombed in the lodge he refused to leave.

"It all happened too fast. There was no chance, no chance at all" that Truman scrambled from his lodge to safety in a secret mine shaft he talked about, said Geraldine Whiting, his sister.

The Cowlitz County coroner's office said at least seven badly burned bodies were spotted in mud, ash and downed timber in the Toutle River Valley northwest of the mountain. There were unconfirmed reports of three more deaths.

The eruption of the mountain Sunday ripped off the top 396 metres of the peak, letting loose numerous mudflows and "glowing avalanches" of hot ash and superheated gases that raced down the Toutle

16 dead in Miami race riots

By DUNCAN SPENCER
Washington Star

MIAMI — With an armed force of 7,000 police, National Guardsmen and state law enforcement officers on the scene, Miami authorities expressed cautious hope today that the worst may be over in the racial rioting and looting that has devastated part of the city and left 16 dead.

There was sporadic sniping and at least two fires in the riot-torn North Miami area overnight, but by dawn Joe Keith, the city's public safety spokesman, said, "It appears like most everybody went to bed after midnight — finally."

"It looks at this time like the tide has kind of turned. We have control of the streets," said city police Maj. Michael Cosgrove. "It's the best its been in three nights."

But Dade County Public Safety Director Bobby Jones cautioned: "We're not out of the wood I think any situati cident could ignite thing again."

Schools remained closed for the second straight day.

In addition to the 16 deaths blamed on the rioting, more than 300 persons have been injured and 787 arrested since the rioting broke out Saturday night. Two hundred fires were reported. As the city cooled, the extent of damage became clearer. Entire blocks were burned out in the Liberty City neighborhood, where the violence first erupted. Losses are expected to top $100 million.

Tourist officials already were worried about the "Miami image", particularly in England where thousands of sunseekers have been booked for summer excursions to Miami Beach.

"We have noticed some (domestic) cancellations of hotel and airline reservations already," said Arthur Ellick, research director for the Metro Dade tourism department.

Firemen, with armed troops standing guard, fought two major fires during the night — at a junior high school in southwest Dade County and at a print and body shop in the so-called "war zone" where the rioting was centred. A house in the predominantly black section burned to the ground because firemen had to wait for police to scout the location for snipers before they could bring in their equipment. "The reported shooting delayed our response time considerably," a spokesman said.

Florida Gov. Robert Graham doubled the strength of the National Guard force patrolling the riot-scarred black community Monday and ordered an investigation of the prosecution of the case that sparked the violence.

There was one shooting death in Miami Monday. As dusk approached, a 33-year-old black man on a bicycle at 57th Street and 7th Avenue was shot to death by police. The shooting brought to 16 the total number of deaths reported in the rioting.

Poorhouse inferno kills 173

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — At least 173 people — many of them old, some invalids and some children — are believed to have died in a fire that swept through a government-run poorhouse here early today.

Prime Minister Michael Manley said "first reports from the security forces indicate strongly that this may have been the work of arsonists."

If arson is confirmed, the prime minister said, "it will represent a crime against humanity with no equal in our history."

'Mountain moved sideways . . .then it all went up'

CASTLE ROCK, Wash. (AP) — "I could not believe the mudslides . . . hot, steaming mud carrying trees, logging equipment and parts of houses," said Pam Siddens, a camper who was whisked to safety by helicopter after Mount St. Helens erupted with a blast felt 320 kilometres away.

Logger Joe Sullivan said the mountain "just moved sideways and the whole thing went up," when it erupted Sunday. "It scared the hell out of me."

Many people, campers and the curious, had narrow, harrowing escapes down the mountainside. And thousands of others, near the volcano and several kilometres away, suddenly were shrouded in eerie darkness and thick ash.

"I was knocked out of bed by the explosion . . . It's just boiling — going way up in the air," said Ann Katzer, owner of a general store in Toutle, Wash., about 55 kilometres northwest of Mount St. Helens. Toutle's residents were evacuated.

"The devastation on the mountainside is incredible," said Air Force Lieut. D. E. Schroeder. "Trees are knocked down, animals are standing around in shock, covered with ash."

Thirty-two kilometres northeast of the mountain in Randle, ham radio operator James Lanterman said: "The air is so full of smoke and pumice stone that a person would not live outside. I was thinking of evacuating but I didn't think I could make it, so I'm staying inside."

"What we saw, we probably will never see again," said Ms. Siddens, 29, her black hair flecked with grey ash after she reached Castle Rock, 55 kilometres west of Mount St. Helens.

She and Terry Clayton, 41, both of Seattle, had camped Saturday on the shore of Riff Lake, 32 kilometres north of the volcano. They were awakened Sunday by lightning striking the ground and a towering column of black smoke and ash.

They began trying to drive back to the main highway, crossing several bridges covered by water and flowing mud but abandoned their car when they spotted a coast guard helicopter.

The aerial view was astounding, they said.

"I used to fish the north fork (of the Toutle River) and I could not believe the mudslides," Ms. Siddens said. The river was full of "hot, steaming mud carrying trees, logging equipment and parts of houses," she added.

The pair guided the helicopter back to the mountain to warn others, finally convincing hold-out residents to jump in the helicopter.

Logger Sullivan, his wife, brother-in-law and fellow logger Mark Dahl, had driven up back roads to about five kilometres west of the peak Sunday to get a look at the mountain. As they took pictures of the already-steaming volcano, they saw a cloud of pitch-black ash and smoke and jagged bolts of lightning at the top of the mountain.

They jumped into their pickup and raced down the mountain.

"There was this massive black cloud," said Dahl. "We were lucky to get out alive."

Another couple, Tony Caprara, 29, and Mary Lambert, 25, both of Tacoma, missed the roadblocks that ringed the mountain and drove up a logging road Sunday after hearing of the eruption.

Five kilometres from the volcano, their car, affected by volcanic ash, stalled. Luckily, a helicopter spotted and rescued them.

"I just thank God we got out," Caprara said.

Year without summer?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thick volcanic ash in the upper atmosphere is believed to have caused the infamous "year without a summer" in the northeastern corner of the United States in 1816.

Ash belched from the Mount St. Helens volcano might produce a slight cooling trend in the months ahead but government weather researchers expect nothing like the summer of 1816 when crops failed and frost was widespread in upper New York and New England in July and August.

Although much of the volcanic debris spewed high into the sky from Sunday's eruption has settled over eastern Washington, Idaho and Montana, some suspended in the atmosphere 30,000 to 50,000 feet high is moving into the Midwest.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Monday predicted the leading edge of the ash cloud would sweep across much of the U.S. today and into a broad area of the East Wednesday.

Dr. Lester Machta, director of NOAA's air resources laboratories, said the sunlight scattered by the ash would produce spectacular sunrises and sunsets in areas beneath the ash cloud if the weather is clear. And he said rain falling through the ash could be dirty when it hits the ground.

Ash 50,000 feet or higher in the stratosphere is above most of the weather and can stay aloft for a year or two.

Missile firing gives China giant military leap foward

PEKING (UPI) — China has test-fired a huge missile capable of carrying a nuclear warhead to Moscow or the west coast of the United States in a giant military and political leap forward.

Japanese military experts said the political impact of the test of the long-range rocket will be enormous, noting it came as China and the United States moved toward military co-operation to counter the growing might of the Soviet Union.

Although the test was a big step for China, Peking is still far behind the United States and the Soviet Union in development of Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles, the Japanese experts said. They said the rocket apparently used liquid fuel, indicating China's development of an ICBM is in an early stage.

Launched from an unidentified base in China, the missile travelled about 7,450 miles before landing on target in a triangle roughly bounded by the Solomon, Fiji and Gilbert Islands in the South Pacific.

Diplomats said China has smaller rockets capable of carrying nuclear warheads about 3,750 miles — meaning the firing was twice as far as any previous test carried out inside China.

People's Daily, the official newspaper of the Chinese Communist Party, trumphantly issued a one-page extra edition Sunday afternoon to announce the successful test. The paper, entirely printed in red ink, carried a map of China and the splashdown area, but did not show where the rocket was launched.

Diplomats guessed the rocket may have been fired from a space launching complex at Shuangchengzi about 1,000 miles west of Peking, or from the Lop Nor area in the northwest, where China tests nuclear weapons.

The same sources said the rocket probably was a Chinese model known as the CSSX4, which has been tested over shorter distances inside China.

Angry families grab officials in protest

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — After detaining two federal officials for about five hours, angry residents of the Love Canal area say they hope they got their message across to the Carter administration.

If not, "what they've seen here today is going to seem like a Sesame Street picnic," said Lois Gibbs, president of the Love Canal Homeowners Association.

The residents want the Carter administration to declare their neighborhood a disaster area so the remaining 700 families can be moved away at federal expense.

Mrs. Gibbs said she had received no assurances that their demands will be met.

The two employees of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency — Frank Napal, a public affairs officer, and Dr. James Lucas, deputy director of a health effects research laboratory — were in Niagara Falls to answer homeowners' questions about the chemical contamination of the area.

Residents would not allow them to leave the meeting as a crowd gathered outside.

After the five hours, the two men were led through a booing, jeering crowd of about 200 people in front of the association headquarters.

As lights for television news cameras glared, Mrs. Gibbs told the crowd she believed the association had made its point.

She said she had learned that U.S. Rep. John LaFalce (Dem. N.Y.) met with President Carter about the situation.

"It reached the White House," she said. "That's all we were really trying to do."

Tension, fear and anger have intensified in the Love Canal area since the agency's announcement Saturday that chromosomal abnormalities had been detected among 11 of 36 residents studied in a research project.

The abnormalities were early warnings that cancer, birth defects, miscarriages and other health problems could occur.

Meanwhile, the agency in Washington denied reports that the White House has rejected proposals that the Love Canal residents be relocated.

The Hooker Chemicals Plastics Corp. used the Love Canal as a chemical dump site from 1942 to 1953. The chemicals were buried in drums and capped with clay. Several years ago, people living in the area began complaining of illness and the odor of fumes.

In August, 1978, after some of the chemicals began oozing to the surface, the state health department declared an emergency.

The state bought the homes of 235 families living on streets next to the canal and relocated them. The state also launched a cleanup project that involved the construction of draining ditches to siphon off leaking chemicals.

Did China copy U.S. jetliner?

New York Times

PEKING — Peking has secretly built a jetliner that bears a very close resemblence to the Boeing 707, but it does not fly and has evidently turned into an embarrassment for both the Chinese and Boeing, which are negotiating for further aircraft sales.

Reports about the plane's existence come from several American aircraft industry representatives who saw it at a factory in Shanghai recently.

The sources say Chinese aviation engineers apparently tried to copy the Boeing 707but they failed to establish the plane's center of gravity so it cannot be flown.

The plane, officially called the Y-10, has four Pratt £ Whitney JT3D engines. China bought 40 of them for its 10 Boeing 707's, far more replacements than normally needed.

When Peking bought three long-range versions of Boeing's 747 jumbo jet last year, it also ordered four extra engines for each.

An official of the China National Aeronautical Technology Import and Export Corp., part of the military ministry that built the plane, denied that it was in any way modeled on the 707.

If the copy is confirmed, it could have serious repercussions for Western businesses that want to manufacture here or set up joint-venture factories using their advanced technology. China does not belong to the international patent and copyright conventions, a problem that worries foreign businessmen.

Snake-sit challenger puts bite on new record

HARTBEESPORT, South Africa (UPI) — Austin Stevens, new holder of the world snake-sitting record, already has a new challenger dismissed by some as a fraud for dining on his cage-mates.

Stevens has pledged he would leave his 8-by-10-foot glass cage on his 30th birthday today, ending nearly two months of confinement with 24 of the world's deadliest snakes.

At 6:01 p.m. (9:05 a.m. PDT) Saturday, the South African broke the previous world record of 50 days, six hours at the Hartbeespoort Snake Park.

But his rival, Johannes Mothemane, who today entered his 47th day in a cage with 38 deadly snakes, said Stevens' record "will not stand . . . I will do one day better than Stevens."

Mothemane entered his cage four days after Stevens amid a controversy which might deny him the right to international snake-sitting fame and mention in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Jack Seale, Stevens' mentor and the first record holder, claims Mothemane has eaten several of his cage-mates for dinner — a violation of the spirit of snake-sitting — and does not allow for random checks since the park is closed at night.

"There have been ground rules set down for snake-sitting and they have not followed them," Seale said. "In my book, that's no record."

The charges are dismissed as "rubbish" by Colin Patterson, Mothemane's mentor and director of the Transvaal Snake Park.

Stevens was confined with six mambas, six Egyptian Cobras, six puff adders and six Boomslangs (tree snakes). Mothemane sits in a larger cage filled with 38 deadly snakes, a television set and a radio.

Wisterias: questions and answers

When the beautiful climbing Wistarias come into bloom (or fail to bloom) questions on their care and culture reach a peak. This column contains answers to the six or eight questions most frequently asked.

Two things the Wistaria does not like are transplanting and fertilizer. It suffers some setback when planted, but a good plant soon recovers.

Fertilizer causes rampant growth at the expense of flowers. The only time to apply a general fertilizer if it is needed (not otherwise) is during late February. Since the root system is deep and extensive, a small amount has to be spread over a wide area.

The two best known species in this latitude are Wistaria sinensis (chinensis) from China, and W. floribunda (multijuga or macrobotrys) from Japan. These two have distinct characteristics.

W. sinensis has flower clusters 6 to 12 inches long, leaves with 7 to 133 large leaflets, no fragrance, no autumn coloring, flowers appear before the leaves, and vines twine from left to right.

W. floribunda has flower clusters to 48 inches in length, fragrant, 13 to 19 leaflets to a leaf, turns yellow in fall, leaves appear during flowering, vines twine from right to left.

The flowers of sinensis are large, the entire cluster opening within a few days, a brief but outstanding display. Flowers on floribunda are much smaller, opening slowly down the long flower stem to the tip, giving a few fragrant flowers on each cluster for over three weeks.

Named varieties of floribunda have peach, pink, pale lilac, and white flowers, and the variety floraplena large double blooms of deep violet. Sinensis is limited to purples and pure white.

Cultural practices considered essential at the end of the last century are now considered harmful, and the culture for one part of this continent seems useless in another part.

All climbers climb to get above other plants; when planted in full sun they often remain as bushes. Wistarias need a deeply dug, humus rich soil, and plenty of moisture. E. H. Wilson, studying the genus in China, found plants growing by pools and streams produced flower clusters 64 inches long. The two American species are both native to damp ground, one being a bog plant.

Under garden cultivation, Wistarias need pruning twice a year for good flowering. Rampant growths are cut back to 4 leaves (not leaflets) in July to August, and the shortened growths cut back to two growth buds in February-March until flower spurs develop.

Eventually these shortened growths will produce flower buds near their bases and the growth becomes a flowering spur which continues to produce flowers year after year. Flowering spurs must never be cut off, but the extension growth beyond the flower buds is shortened a little at winter pruning.

The Wistaria is a long lived plant and worth careful cultivation. There are specimens over 100 years old covering hundreds of square feet, branching from a main stem 12 inches in diameter at soil level.

While fertilizer and the lack of pruning are reasons for some of the poor specimens seen in local gardens, there is also the problem of plants raised from seed.

All named varieties are grafted plants, therefore the most expensive. While sinensis comes fairly true from seed, there is great variation in floribunda seedlings, and cheap seedlings are expensive at any price.

The plants are usually offered for sale when 3 years old, 18 inches high with a cluster of leaves at the tip. Two years after planting (5 years old) the first climbing vine appears, after which top growth is rapid.

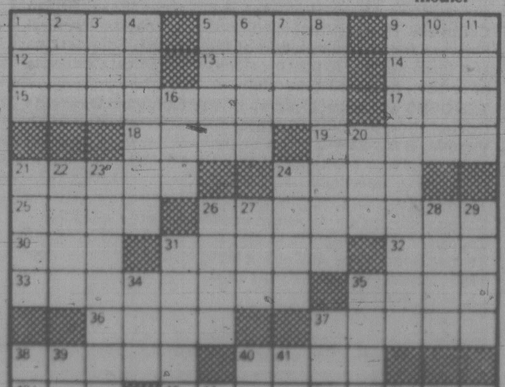
Answers to Friday puzzle.



Marine park on agends

Building a marine park in Cordova Bay won't harm ocean life, but would be very unpopular with people who live in the area, says an impact study prepared for Saanich.

Dumping fill to construct a five- to 15-acre breakwater near a municipal beach access at Fenn and Walema is biologically feasible, according to the report by Thurber Consultants Ltd.

However, negative impact of the proposed marine park on Cordova Bay residents is rated high.

There is a strong possibility some waterfront property owners will sue the municipality for damages if it builds the breakwater, the report says.

Residents close to the shore will be subjected to noise, dust, overcrowding and a deterioration of waterfront views.

A breakwater would change tidal patterns along the shoreline, it says.

The marine park idea was suggested last year by the municipal engineering department as a way to get rid of fill and create a recreation area at the same time.

Thurber has been working on its report since last fall.

The consultants say a marine development would benefit residents of other areas of the municipality by providing more beach access and boat launching areas.

Dumping fill steadily for several years would have little effect on the 44 tons of geoducks believed to be in the study area, the report says.

Other ocean life along the shore would probably just avoid the disturbance caused by the fill, it says.

The park could be developed without cost to the municipality by charging independent truckers a dumping fee, the report suggests.

Council will discuss the report at tonight's meeting.

CP ship officers huddle

Licensed ships' officers employed by CP Rail met today to plan future strategy in their contract dispute which has shut down the company's passenger and freight service to Vancouver Island.

Leo Gray, business agent for the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, said one of the questions to be answered is whether the cruise ship Princess Patricia will be idled by the dispute when it arrives back in Vancouver Friday.

The Patricia is currently on her first trip up the coast this season.

The passenger ferry Princess of Vancouver and two other truck and rail ferries have been tied up since last Thursday when the 75 officers began a study session.

The only reason the walkout is not labelled a strike is that such action is not allowed by the B.C. Federation of Labor until the union has served 72-hour notice. Gray said that notice will be given today, allowing the officers to set up pickets, if they wish, in 72 hours.

Gray said there was no contact with the company during the long weekend and no talks are scheduled.

2 die in island crashes

RCMP have identified two men killed in separate Vancouver Island traffic mishaps.

Harald Gerke, 18, of Lantzville, was killed Sunday morning in a single-vehicle accident on the Island Highway about 20 kilometres north of Nanaimo. Police say Gerke died when his sports car left the highway and plunged down a steep embankment.

Ingo Wolfgang Horst Marcel Brust, 61, of Old Cowichan Lake Road, died in a two-car collision two kilometres northwest of Duncan Thursday.

Chuck your old chequing account

for no-charge chequing

Write all the cheques and make all the withdrawals you want and never be charged a penny. With charges at some banks of up to $1.00 that could add up to a big saving. No-charge chequing is a bonus for keeping as little as $200 in your account throughout the month.

and a whole lot more

Daily Interest

Most chequing accounts pay no interest. Bank of Montreal pays interest on every dollar in your account, every day. So when you make a deposit you're earning interest on your money for all those days before the cheques you've written go through.

Interest Paid Monthly

We don't stop at daily interest. Instead of paying you interest semi-annually, interest you earn is credited to your account each and every month.

Automatic Transfer

Even though we pay daily interest on your chequing account, don't leave your savings there. You just might be tempted to write a cheque and spend them. We can arrange to have your money automatically transferred to a Daily Interest Savings Account that pays you the high rate of interest you expect for savings. Just ask.

Descriptive Monthly Statement

We'll keep you up-to-date on your account by providing an easy to follow detailed record of all your transactions. Our new Descriptive Monthly Statement works with your low cost sequentially numbered, personalized scenic cheques. The number on each cheque that is paid will appear opposite the appropriate entry on your statement.

Forget the fuss of storing your cancelled cheques. We'll do it for you and keep your cheques for 15 years, should you ever need them.

Monthly Bottom Line Balance

Another advantage is that this one statement identifies the balances in each of your accounts in every branch and totals them to give you your bottom line. This way you'll always be on top of all your account balances every month. Available on request at no additional charge.

Multi-Branch Banking

Get to your money instantly at almost every branch of Bank of Montreal. Across town, across the country, it's just as easy as banking at your own branch.

Ask about the new personal chequing account that saves you money, earns you money, makes money management easier and more efficient and lets you get to your money almost anywhere you go. It's available at most branches. Start taking advantage of the new chequing account that gives you so much for so little.

Comeback for mid-sized autos

DETROIT (AP) — Americans eventually will return to intermediate-sized autos, although they now favor the smallest, most fuel-efficient models, says Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of General Motors Corp.

It is rare to find a top auto-industry executive willing right now to predict that larger cars will regain popularity. But Murphy is not a run-of-the-mill auto executive.

He starts his day reading the comics and clipping ones with barbed lines to send to colleagues. On his desk is a sign saying "Bless This Mess." And a mess it is.

But Murphy's company not only is the largest auto manufacturer in the world, it is the healthiest of America's famous Big Three.

In an interview, Murphy said the public has overreacted to last year's televised gasoline lines. He bases that opinion on figures showing there was no over-all gasoline shortage — just shortages in some places and less-publicized surpluses in others. The latest figures show that gasoline inventories now are more than 20 per cent higher than a year ago.

Last year's lines, Murphy believes, had the beneficial effect of finally convincing people the energy shortage was real and not a conspiracy of the producing countries and the oil companies.

But he added that the public went a little overboard.

"I think when you get religion you sometimes over-react," Murphy said.

The year-long industry slump can be divided into two parts, he believes, one produced by gasoline shortages and the current steepening slump produced by tight credit.

In February, when GM trumpeted the recalls of 15,000 employees, "We were saying, particularly for the intermediate-sized cars, that we thought there would be a resurgence of demand."

"We still feel fairly confident that the (retail) demand level is going to be OK. We still have to express concern about the dealers not ordering. That may mean there may be some product shortages if the market is there."

Most experts say the market will not be there until the recession is over. GM sees that happening toward the end of the year.

Cattle

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. today at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 375 cattle and calves consisting mainly of slaughter cows and a few good quality slaughter heifers.

Slaughter cows met a moderate demand from local buyers while slaughter heifers met a dull demand and were hard to sell. Too few slaughter steers sold to quote prices. A1-2 heifers traded $4 below last week's close. All grades of slaughter cows traded steady.

A1-2 heifers over 850 lbs. $68-$69. D1-2 cows 47-50; D3-5 42-47.

SELF—PROPELLED BARGE Douglas Fir lies alongside at Ogden Point Docks after unloading a cargo of hardwood from Columbia. The 147.5 metre vessel has a cruising speed of 12 knots and because of her shallow draft can go much further up rivers than other vessels. She will load pine and fir for delivery, mostly to ports in California, returning with a cargo of bunker oil for lumber camps on the northern part of Vancouver Island.

today's markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market was up moderately in moderately active mid-afternoon trading today.

Trading in shares of Canadian Utilities Ltd. was halted briefly and by 2 p.m. the stock jumped 5¼ to $26.

Calgary Power Ltd. said it plans an offer of up to 8,725,000 shares of Canadian Utilities or 42 per cent for $27 cash or 1.6 Calgary Power common shares for each Canadian Utilities share.

The exchange also said shares of Skyline Hotels Ltd. have been removed from the trading list. Shareholders approved at a meeting Friday the amalgamation of the company with York-Hannover 421386 Ontario Ltd. and will receive $5.50 for each Skyline share held.

Among industrials, Crush International climbed 2½ to $14⅞, Texasgulf 1¼ to $41¼, Imperial Oil B 1⅛ to $36⅝, Noranda Mines ⅜ to $25⅜ and Dome Petroleum ⅜ to 72¼.

Falconbridge Nickel lost 2½ to $80, Alberta Natural Gas 1 to $19, Nowsco Well Service ¾ to $23, Torstar Corp. B ¾ to $20 and Gulf Canada ½ to $28½.

Dome Mines gained 2 to $74, Carolin Mines 1½ to $17 and Teck Corp. B ⅜ to $13⅜. United Keno Hill dropped 1⅝ to $28⅜ and Gibraltar Mines ¼ to $11¼.

Rupertsland Resources rose ½ to $6, Oakwood Petroleums ½ to $18¼ and Coseka Resources ½ to $20⅝. Basic Resources International fell 1⅜ to $13½ and Canadian Natural Resources ¾ to $17½.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials and lost .10 to $6.40 on 28,009 shares. Northway Gestalt declined .05 to $1.60 on 5,125 shares, Proflex Ltd. was steady at .20 on 4,000 and Potter Distillers A gained .01 to $1.35 on 1,000. Canadian Javelin Ltd. was unchanged at $1.30 and Great National Land dropped .04 to $1.01.

On the resource and development board, Zone Petroleum was the volume leader as it gained .01 to $2.06 on 91,900 shares. Giant Explorations advanced .06 to $1.01 on 64,700 shares, NRD Mining Ltd. gained .20 to $4.60 on 46,025 shares and Sweetwater advanced .15 to $2.15 on 40,300. Seneca Development dropped .05 to .65 and Highwood Resources warrants declined .05 to .20.

Spectrum Industrial Resources led curb traders and lost .02 to .48 on 310,000 shares. Tracer Resources gained .20 to $2.10 on 31,200 shares, Belmont Resources was steady at $2.75.

New York

The stock market drifted around Monday's closing levels today, struggling to maintain the momentum of its spring rally.

The Dow Jones industrial average has climbed more than 90 points from its low on the afternoon of March 27, the day when the collapse of the silver market reached its climax.

Since then, stock prices have responded favorably to a steep decline in interest rates. But considerable debate continues on Wall Street over whether the market has yet fully recognized the effects of the developing recession on corporate profits and dividends.

Vancouver

Prices were down in active trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 11 a.m. PDT was 1,928,339 shares.

Of the stocks that traded, 98 advanced, 132 declined and 155 were unchanged.

London

The London stock market was mixed near the close of quiet trading today.

The Financial Times index slipped .4 to $433.4.

Industrials and golds were mixed.

Canadian stocks were higher.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARINGS

Re: Trades of Industrial Electrical and Electrical Work — Construction Section

The Provincial Apprenticeship Board will hold Public Hearings for the purpose of receiving representations on a proposal to combine the above Trades into a single Trade to be known as ELECTRICIAN and to require that persons hold a certificate of qualification to practice or be employed in the trade.

It has been proposed that the trade of ELECTRICIAN be defined as: the installation, construction, alteration, repair, maintenance, operation, commissioning, testing, servicing and calibration of electrical and electronic systems in any premise, place, building or structure.

Persons who make submissions at the Public Hearings may wish to comment on the following points:

1. The proposed definition of the Trade;
2. The proposal to require a compulsory certificate of qualification;
3. Any special provisions that might apply to persons currently engaged in Electrical Work, if a requirement for a compulsory certificate of qualification were to be introduced.

Both written and oral submissions will be accepted at the Hearings. Persons wishing to make written submissions are requested to provide nine (9) copies.

The Public Hearings will be held at the time and place shown on the schedule below:
